SOCIETY OF ARCHITECTURAL IRON MANUFACTURERS, Thomas Dimond, president, has formulated a set of resolutions which were adopted at a meeting of the society held March 22. These resolutions were called forth by statements which have appeared in the public press purporting to be the substance of a report made to His Honor the Mayor by his Commissioner of Accounts, in which it is stated that the Society of Architectural Iron Manufacturers is not representative of the iron and steel industry, which the Legislature sought to conserve when it enacted the City Charter. The resolutions state: "This society denies the statement that it is not representative of the iron and steel industry of this city. Its membership performs at least 75 per cent. of the work in the steel building business and employs 75 per cent. of the labor engaged; and that it would be a very grave disaster to the property owners, architects, builders and citizens, should the efforts prevail to deprive this society of representation on the Board of Examiners. This society resents most strongly the insinuations cast on its representative on the Board of Examiners, and hereby affirms its confidence in his integrity and deplores the unwarranted attack [illegible] upon him."

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

ATLAS ADVANCES FUTURE DELIVERY CEMENT PRICE TO $1.42 AND THROWS IN ITS ENTIRE HUDSON RIVER KILN CAPACITY

A Financier's Reasons for Being Optimistic—Much Suburban Building

FOLLOWING the lead of the Allentown Portland Cement Company in advancing its price five cents last week, the Atlas Portland Cement Company this week advanced its price for future delivery ten cents, making the quotation $1.42. Incidentally the company will start its Hudson river mill next week, utilizing its full capacity. The Lehigh Portland Cement Company's Fogelsville plant is running 47,000 barrels a day. This company's storage capacity is 700,000 barrels, and it has at present only 200,000 barrels in reserve, so that it would appear that although this company is now operating its full plant capacity the increasing demand for this commodity is such as to indicate that the market is taking care of it despite the fact that the railroads have not yet come into the purchasing market as heavily as usual.

There is some business being taken at levels below the $1.32 future delivery price, but only for exceptional trade. It is extremely hard to buy cement in the market even on a spot basis at $1.23, because none of the companies selling standard cement of a dependable quality appear to care for any more business at that figure. Dealers who have contracted for cement at the sixty cent mill base are advised to get their supplies into their own hands at the earliest possible moment, because, some in the trade question the validity of the agreement should, for any reason, the manufacturers find it inconvenient to fulfil the contracts.

It was pointed out, for instance, that if the building season should develop the strength that plan filing reports at present indicate, the mill price might advance to a figure even higher than the ninety cent base ruling before the late break in prices. If dealers proceed to contract upon the basis of sixty cents and under to builders upon the assumption that the manufacturer will make deliveries thirty cents a barrel below prices that may exist around August, and the demand for cement as the result of the building movement should crowd most of the mills, it might prove difficult for the dealer to make good on the business he has taken. Proceeding on the basis of a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, most dealers are making room for all the cement they can in their sheds now.

While there is a great quantity of building plans being filed in the metropolitan district, and especially in Manhattan, the peculiar condition of the money market is holding actual work back to a considerable extent. There is, however, a better demand for material everywhere save in the Southern section of Manhattan. Harlem is doing well and so are those outlying sections that are going to be reached by the new subways.

Brick sales in the wholesale market were weak because dealers apparently are riding from stacks. Prices run from $5.50 to $6.00 for good Hudsons. Raritans are stronger at $6. Other departments are without feature, save in steel, which, while adhering to the $25.20 basis, is stiffening in tone for future requirement.

"There have been changes for the better in business," said a prominent New Jersey financier this week, "and there is a better tone to building finance as well as in the money market in general. Gold, to the amount of $5,500,000 was transferred from Ottawa, Canada, to New York this week and additional engagements are pending. Total imports of gold, thus far this year, amounts to $28,000,000, the bulk of which came from Canada, where the Bank of England has established a special reserve. Exchange rates are distinctly favorable to bringing in gold. The first quarter of the calendar year promises to show a trade balance of between $400,000,000 and $500,000,00 in favor of this country. This money must be placed.

"Furthermore the individual savings bankbook holder has had his lesson during the late depression. He has found that his little nest egg in the savings department has been safe. He will figure upon positively putting aside as much, if not more, to rebuild that refuge. This will mean hundreds more millions to be reinvested. Building construction and expansion of all kinds will go ahead."

Looking over the construction situation practically every person concerned admits that changes are better. Lime, cement, lumber, steel, plaster and specialty mills are all developing and throwing in greater capacity, brick being the only exception, mainly because the Hudson district is still in its winter season when no brick is made at all, even under normal conditions. The upturn in the price of building materials has come and it is merely speculation to attempt to fix the limits to which quotations may go. The consuming public must bear in mind that factory and mill stocks have been seriously depleted and that demand for some time probably will be in excess of supply which always means higher prices.

Plan filings for the week in New York follow. In the corresponding week last year there were 349 plans filed with an estimated total value of $4,037,806.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE NAMED.

President Howland of the Dealers Association Selects Five.

WHEN the annual meeting of the Association of Dealers in Mason's Building Materials held its annual meeting last week Frank N. Rowland, its president, was authorized to select a committee to serve as conferees with cement manufacturers with reference to trade conditions. He appointed as the committee on Labor and Trade Conditions, Wright D. Goss, president of the Empire Brick & Supply Company, chairman; John J. Bell, Audley Clarke, Ernst Braun and William H. Barnes.

PORTLAND CEMENT.

More Kilns Operate in Lehigh District—Hagar's Plans Soon Out.

CONDITIONS in the cement situation are improving. Nine more kilns went into service in the Lehigh district. Part of these were blown in by the Alpha Company. Next week the Atlas Portland Cement Company throws in all its kilns in the Hudson district. It advanced its price ten cents on future deliveries last week. The quotation on this brand is now $1.42.

E. M. Hagar, former president of the Universal Portland Cement Company, who is forming a cement manufacturing corporation with plant each covering a radius of 200 miles and sea bring from coast to coast, is expected to have an important announcement to make within a very short time. The project is well financed with a capitalization of something like $25,000,000.

Practically all of the plans in the Lehigh district have taken all the business they care to handle at quotations below seventy cents, mill. The head of the Allentown Portland Cement Company, backed up by the Atlas and presumably by other companies who are not yet ready to formally announce the high quotations to the New York trade for one reason or another, at least, show which way the wind is blowing.

This week practically closes the month of March, and the first quarter of 1915. In many respects it has been as bad a three months as the trade as a whole has ever passed through. But conditions are changing. The country's balance of trade in its favor now runs well over the $300,000,000 mark. Within the last three weeks more than $23,000,000 has been shipped from Ottawa to this country. Exchange rates are the lowest in history and savings bank deposits begin to show a return of money to depositories. These moneys have to be reinvested and the prospects are that only the beginning of this inflow is apparent.

Accompanying reports on this page indicate the movement of building in this city. Plan filings for the five suburban counties in New Jersey show a gain for the week of $1,033,000 in value and 79 new building plans, as compared with the reports for the same week last year. One is likely to consider this improvement in the prospective building season as due haste on the part of builders to file plans in anticipation of the final approval of the proposed building code, until the conditions in the neighboring city of Philadelphia are noted, where building permits for March up to the 25th had actually exceeded the volume of operations in any March during the last four years. February exceeded the business of the previous year by more than $3,000,000.

What already has been gained in the building material and construction department promises to be increased as the influx of gold makes for further easement of the money situation. The head of a great financial institution said this week that by the time the building season gets under way this year such a thing as premiums for loan accommodations would not be dreamed of expressed the opinion that Manhattan was still over-built and that there was little need for further construction there for a year or two as far as commercial buildings were concerned. The suburbs, he said, offered the golden opportunity to building investors and there premiums even now are not always required in negotiating for money.

COMMON BRICK.

Wholesale Movement Takes on Normal Volume—Building Better.

JUDGING by the volume of common brick moving in and out of the wholesale market this week there is a decided improvement in the number of building operations going ahead. Heretofore dealers have followed the policy of moving out stocks rather than go into the barge market for supplies, but the fact that fifty-two bargeloads or 15,600,000 started on their way toward ultimate consumption this week indicates a decided improvement in building conditions. The unloading movement as reported by the Greater New York Brick Company also showed a gain of almost a million.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Mar. 25, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follows:

BUILDING METALS.

New Steel Bar Prices 1.20c. for Second Quarter Delivery.

BUILDING METALS are showing a turn for the better. Structural steel is still being quoted, at tidewater, at $25.20 a ton, but the new quotation for steel bars out of Pittsburgh is 1.20c., a five cent gain over the 1.15c. base for March. Some large consumers who had covered themselves in the first quarter at 1.10c. and in some cases as low as 1.05c. were slow to

THE NEW CODE OF CITY ORDINANCES

The Mayor Signs the Recodification Bill, Which Includes the Building Code as Amended up to the Present Date—Old and New Laws Rearranged for the First Time in Eight Years

THE city's long struggle for an intelligible and up-to-date Code of Ordinances reached a most satisfactory stage on Tuesday of this week, when Mayor Mitchel signed the ordinance constituting a new code and returned it to the Board of Aldermen with the following message:

"I have approved the proposed Code of Ordinances and return it to you herewith. It is my duty to congratulate the committee upon their diligence and ability in producing this revised code for the city. You may well feel proud of the result attained."

The new code went into effect immediately upon its approval by the Mayor, and by its terms repeals all other general ordinances or parts thereof. For these reasons, it is advisable that the public generally, and our readers in particular, should become acquainted with the provisions of the new codification, which will have an important and constant bearing upon their interests and responsibilities.

A Forgotten Duty.

Section 57 of the Greater New York Charter provides that the general ordinances shall be reduced to a code and published. It also directs the Board of Aldermen to appoint a committee that shall compile and publish such ordinances annually. The Code of Ordinances repealed by the new codification became effective on Jan. 1, 1906. Since then, it had not been revised, nor had there been prepared and published in any year the required compilation of the general ordinances. This mass of general ordinances was an enigma to lawyers and laymen alike.

The provisions of the old code were not arranged subjectively, as convenience demanded, but were imperfectly correlated, according to the jurisdictions of the officers charged with their enforcement. It was divided into sixteen parts, containing, with the amendments made since Jan. 1, 1906, over 250,000 words. This was greater than the volume of the Charter, as amended and supplemented to date. As in the case of the Charter, the old code was congested by needless repetitions, obsolete provisions and other redundant material. Its phraseology was antiquated, and, in many instances, so involved as to be almost unintelligible.

The Plan of the Code.

In form, the new Code of Ordinances has been moulded on the lines of the Consolidated Laws. The provisions relating to particular subjects have been correlated and divided into chapters, which have been arranged in alphabetical order. By statute the Sanitary Code, the Park Ordinances and the Regulations of the Municipal Explosives Commission must constitute separate and independent chapters of the Code of Ordinances, and each has its own scheme of section numbering. For these reasons, it was not feasible to number all sections of the recodification in a single series, in the fashion of the Charter. That there might be a uniformity in this particular, the sections of each chapter of the new code have been numbered in a separate series and grouped in appropriate "articles."

The Building Laws.

The Building Code was omitted from the original draft of the new code, because it was in process of revision on the date when the preliminary report of the Committee on Codification was submitted to the Board of Aldermen. Subsequently, however, the Committee on Buildings of the Board decided to undertake the amendment of the code subject, rather than to attempt to prepare an omnibus revision thereof for submission as a single ordinance. This change in plan necessitated the inclusion of the Building Code, as amended to date, in the general recodification of ordinances. Its text has been correlated and rearranged in articles and sections, in conformity with the general plan of the new code and in the order suggested by Mr. Rudolph P. Miller, the technical adviser of the Committee on Buildings, but without change in substance; except that there has been transferred to the Building Code chapter all ordinance provisions relating to the construction and alteration of motion picture theatres and open-air motion picture theatres contained in the motion-picture ordinance, approved by Mayor Gaynor, July 8, 1913.

Thirty-two Articles.

The new compilation of the Building Code contains all of the amendments thereof, to date, and is divided into thirty-two articles numbered and entitled as follows:

2 Materials.
3—Strength of materials.
4 Classification of buildings.

An Inexpensive Work.

The splendid service rendered to the city by the production of the new Code of Ordinances is particularly notable, in that the work was accomplished without burdening our taxpayers with the huge outlay for municipal "experts," "efficiency" engineers and other superior persons, imported from the prairies and the everglades, usually required for an important local undertaking. The new code was prepared under the supervision of the Committee on Codification of Ordinances of the Board of Aldermen, consisting of William H. Pendry, Chairman Lauren Carroll, Joseph W. Spencer, Frederick H. Stevenson, William H. Chorosh, Isidor M. Rosenblum, John Kochendorfer, Harry Robitzek, Louis Jacobson, Arnon L. Squiers, Louis Wendel, Jr., and Clarence Schmelzel, with Frank J. Martin as clerk. The planning and drafting of the code was the work of A. C. MacNulty, Assistant Corporation Counsel, who acted as counsel to the committee. Aside from the salaries of these officers and the cost of the necessary printing, the actual expense of the recodification was less than $1,000.

The Board of Aldermen recognizes that the new code requires revision of substance in many of its provisions. Several ordinances having this end in view are now pending, and others are in preparation. The leaders of the board hope that, before the end of the year, the code will be made as complete and satisfactory in substance as it is now in form and arrangement.

MORE JOBS FOR LICENSED ENGINEERS

Every Steam Heating Boiler of Over Twenty Horsepower Capacity Affected by a New Legislative Bill—Digest of Other Measures

GENERAL attention has been directed during the week to a bill in the Legislature making radical changes in the law governing the inspection of steam boilers in this city, since the discovery was made that the bill would compel the owners of thousands of apartment houses and other buildings to employ licensed engineers and licensed firemen to take charge of their steam heating boilers, instead of the janitors who now discharge this service.

The licensed engineers mostly belong to local trade unions which have a fixed scale of wages and prescribed rules. In effect, the bill unionizes the janitor service in all the steam-heated apartment houses and business buildings having boilers of more than twenty horsepower capacity.

The bill, which was introduced by Senator Wagner (Int. 1193) transfers the duty of supervising the licensing of engineers and the inspection of boilers from the Police Department to the Department of Licenses. It creates a new bureau with eleven specified employees (and authority to appoint others) who are to take the place and perform the duty now discharged by seven policemen and two civilians. All heating boilers carrying no more than ten pounds of steam per square inch are exempted as at present, but when they are of more than twenty horsepower they must be in the charge of a licensed engineer, who is a citizen of the country.

The bill also requires that refrigerating machines of three or more tons of daily output shall also be in charge of a licensed engineer, even if the motive power is only a small electric motor or gasoline engine, such as any boy can run. Every boiler that is used for pressure is to be tied up with a licensed fireman as well as a licensed engineer, and no man can obtain a fireman's license unless he is twenty-one years of age or more, which prohibits an engineer from taking a youth to break him into firing.

The labor unions back of the bill estimate that there will be four to five thousand more jobs for them if the bill is enacted, but other estimates are considerably higher. The number of plants now regularly inspected by the police department is thirteen thousand. A plant may consist of one or a hundred boilers. Many janitors would have to qualify as licensed engineers and American citizens or be displaced, and the owners of the property would find their expenses increased considerably.

Only Citizens Eligible.

No person would be eligible for examination as an engineer unless he is a citizen, twenty-one years old, and has been a fireman or oiler for five years under the immediate supervision of a licensed engineer, and two years in the City of New York. A fireman, in order to obtain a license, must also be a citizen twenty-one years old, and have been employed as an oiler or coal passer or assistant to and under the instruction of a duly licensed engineer for two years. Firemen are not now required to be licensed. No boiler can be operated (under this law) except under the immediate supervision of a duly licensed engineer. The bill is being opposed by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the National Boiler Manufacturers, the janitors' society and real estate interests.

The boiler code of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers fixes the allowable maximum working pressure for low pressure steam heating boilers at fifteen pounds per square inch. Such a boiler may be constructed of castiron except connecting nipples and bolts.

Advisory Council Objects.

The Advisory Council opposes this bill on two grounds: "First, that every effort should be made to discourage the repeated attempts by the legislature to amend the City Charter, in view of the proposed revision of the charter which will be referred to the voters for consideration next year. Inasmuch as the Revision Committee of the Board of Estimate will conduct a very comprehensive and exhaustive study of all the provisions of the new charter for the city it is inadvisable at this time that such amendments should be put into operation.

"Second, this bill will further mean a burden to property owners in that it provides for the licensing of firemen for boilers which are more than 20 horsepower capacity. It will mean further that two firemen and two engineers will be required, where one of each is today. Under the Labor Law the licensed firemen or engineers may work only a certain number of hours each day. If this bill should be enacted into law it would be necessary to have two shifts of licensed firemen or licensed engineers in each apartment house over five stories high. It has been conservatively estimated that the requirements of this bill will mean an additional increase from one to two hundred thousand licensed firemen to be employed by property owners.

"There seems to be no question as to the safety of boilers and their operation under the present law, so that life and property would not be conserved by licensing firemen. While, on the other hand, the burden of supporting such a large number of employees would be imposed directly on real estate at a time when it is little able to assume any additional expense for maintenance. When both the city and the state administrations are endeavoring to relieve property owners of over-inspection, it is inopportune to enact a law which merely aggravates the serious situation now existing."

A New Bond Tax.

In anticipation of the repeal of the Secured Debt Tax, a bill passed both houses of the Legislature (and was signed by the Governor), which suspends the operation of the Secured Debts law until May 1, when it is now expected a new law laying a tax of two mills upon bonds and other evidences of secured indebtedness. There are two bills before the Legislature now to repeal the secured debts tax law. One was introduced by Senator Boylan, but the one that most likely will be adopted is the Talmage bill, in the Assembly. A hearing on the bill will be held April 6. This is the measure which imposes an annual tax of two mills, and will result in an access of approximately $1,500,000 to the State's revenue.

The Mayor's bill to establish a central purchasing bureau for the city was laid aside by the Assembly. The Phelan bill for the interchange of transfers on the city's traction lines also was advanced. The bill permitting the use of school and other city buildings for polling places, and Mayor Mitchel's marginal terminal bill for Brooklyn were passed.

Senator Cromwell's bill providing for the improvement of Coney Island Creek passed the Assembly and went to the Governor for approval.

In the Senate the Thorn Compensation amendment, supplementing the compensation bill now before the Governor, was passed by a vote of 30 to 17. An emergency message from the Governor served to bring about quick action. The bill to reorganize the Department of Weights and Measures, by placing its management under the Secretary of Agriculture, was passed by a vote of 29 to 17. The Tax Reorganization bill, which has the Governor's sanction, was hauled out of committee amended and passed. Supervision over up-State assessments is abandoned.

Assembly Bills.

The following new bills have been introduced:

A. 1633 (Landon). Amending the Tax Law (Sections 21, 22, 7, 8, 11, 12, 28, 306 and new article XVI.), by providing for the exemption from taxation of furniture, household goods, books, professional instruments, pictures, jewelry, wearing apparel and other personal effects, not held for sale or profit, to the value of $1,000. At present household furniture is exempted to this amount. Working tools, implements, teams, vehicles and domestic animals, owned by a householder and not held for sale, are exempted to the value of $1,500. "Tangible personal property" is defined as corporeal personal property, and not money, deposits in bank, shares of stock, bonds, notes, credits, or evidence of an interest in property or evidences of debt. An annual tax of 5 mills on each dollar of the full value of all tangible personal property is imposed.

Senate Bills.

S. 1295 (Wagner). Amending the Labor Law (new section 174), by making the occupant of a mercantile establishment responsible for compliance with the provisions of the Labor Law. The Labor and Industries Committee.

S. 1337 (Sanders). Amending the Labor Law (Sections 3, 4 and 21), by permitting more than eight hours' work a day in all cases of emergency. At present this is allowed only in case of extraordinary emergency caused by fire, flood or danger to life or property. Any citizen may maintain proceedings for the suspension or removal of a state or municipal officer, agent or employee who knowingly permits the violation of any of the provisions of the labor law. To Labor and Industries Committee.

S. 1339 (Wagner). Amending the Greater New York Charter (Section 391), by providing that the inspection of removals of pavements or disturbances of street surfaces shall be performed by inspectors appointed by borough presidents in accordance with the provisions of the civil service law. Such inspector shall be paid by the city out of funds deposited or secured by the person or corporation by whom such pavement is removed or street surface disturbed, or by the owner of the premises for whose benefit such removal or disturbance is made.

S. 1364 (Towner). Amending the Insurance Law (Section 130, and new section 132-a), by prohibiting the establishment of guaranty surplus and special reserve funds by fire insurance corporations, and authorizing such corporations to discontinue such funds. To Insurance Committee.

S. 1393. (Carroll). Inserting in the Greater New York Charter a new section (1212-a), requiring the removal, after July 1st, 1915, of all slaughter houses and fat rendering establishments within the limits of the City of New York. To Cities Committee.

MAKING AN OLD DWELLING PROFITABLE

Many Structures on East Side Altered Into Stores and Apartments, Thereby Materially Increasing Gross Rentals—Cost Not Excessive

OLD - FASHIONED dwellings are being extensively and profitably remodeled and modernized along Madison avenue, particularly above 59th street, even as far north as 68th street, as trade continues its northward march and claims its toll of residential properties. The same development has characterized a good deal of the activity on the avenue south of 59th street, and its expansion in a northerly direction is a reflection of the memorable business movement on Fifth avenue, which has practically reached 59th street.

Central Park a Barrier.

Central Park, it has been predicted, will serve as an effectual barrier to further business growth on Fifth avenue, and it is already evident that trade, seeking an outlet, has selected the most available north and south thoroughfare for its continued activity. Madison avenue, one block to the east, is receiving the benefit of this trend.

Madison avenue is a logical thoroughfare for business invasion and is easy of access, on account of the trolley system operated on the avenue. In some instances the changes of occupancy have extended into the adjacent side streets, and in almost every case tenants have been obtained without considerable trouble, and at rentals which net a fair return to the owner of the property.

MODERNIZED DWELLING AT NO. 801 MADISON AVENUE.

An influencing factor, which has contributed largely to recent changes on Madison avenue in the 59th street section, has been the extensive apartment house building movement on Park avenue and the adjacent side streets. The influx of a large number of new residents of means, who in some cases pay as high as $12,000 a year for apartments, has created a demand for shops and store space for tradesmen to cater to their immediate needs. Stores on Park avenue, in these high-class multi-family buildings, were out of the question, and rents on Fifth avenue were considered too high.

There has been no building of new structures because the demand of caterers, grocers, cleaning and dyeing establishments, florists and milliners, etc., was principally for stores on the street and first floors. The best way of meeting this demand was in the remodelling and modernizing of the existing buildings. This has generally been found not only expedient, but unusually profitable to the owners.

Viewpoint of a Broker.

Frederick T. Barry, who has figured prominently in this class of alteration within recent years, and who has successfully remodelled more than sixteen buildings along the lines above outlined, discussed this week the improvement from the practical viewpoint, and said:

"An alteration at a sum not exceeding $7,500, which includes all the expenses, the decorations, the cost of management and renting, for the first year, will increase the return to the owner of a private house from $2,000 to $6,000, after the alteration has been completed.

"This applies to the stereotyped four-story brownstone residence abounding on Madison avenue and in the side streets. The cost of maintenance in these buildings is low, as steam heat is obtained from a private corporation which has mains on the avenue, causing a reduction in the janitor bill of about $15 per month. This service obviates the cost of upkeep of the furnace and all the resultant inconveniences and vexations, such as taking in coal, etc.

"The pecuniary advantages of the modernization of a dwelling into a business building can best be outlined by the experience of 801 Madison avenue. This was the eighteen-foot four-story private residence of the type with which we were all familiar. It was altered last summer and completely rented by October 1. The house before its transformation could not find a tenant at $1,800 a year for private house purposes. In its present condition it is returning to its owner $5,500 a year, an increase of 300 per cent., with the question of renting or desirable tenancy eliminated.

Rentals Largely Increased.

"The stores on the street floor, in other modernized dwellings, are bringing as high as $2,000 a year and the first floors as high as $1,500, a rental in many cases exceeding the earning capacity of the entire building when previously occupied by a single tenant as a private house. On the upper floors, two-room apartments are renting for about $40 a month and tenants are not lacking at these prices."

Modernization usually consists of the following structural alterations, whereby the four-story and basement dwelling becomes the five-story store and apartment building. There is a large store installed on the grade floor; the parlor floor becomes a spacious loft or office or show room and the three upper floors are arranged into small apartment suites of two and three rooms for residential uses exclusively, that is, for living purposes without cooking. Under this arrangement there are often four or more tenants on one floor and cooking in stoves under such conditions is not permitted by a section of the Tenement House Law. Vigilant inspection by the men of the Tenement House Department has brought about the general enforcement of this rule, but this situation has not interfered with the rentability of the apartments.

All Improvements Installed.

The apartments are equipped with all up-to-date improvements, designed for the greatest convenience and comfort of the tenants. There are, of course, the electric light, telephone, steam heat, hardwood floors, attractive decorations, hall service, new plumbing, etc. These buildings usually do not have elevators, as the cost of installation would be too great to warrant such an expenditure, and the height of the structure does not really require such a service.

Where corner properties have been remodelled for such purposes the builders have tactfully provided an entrance into the building from the side street, in order that the tenant may not be required to enter the building from the store side, and the idea that he is living over a shop is not so forcibly brought to his attention.

That old-fashioned dwellings which have outlived their usefulness for private residential purposes may be profitably remodelled has evidently been demonstrated not only by the increase in the number of such structural alterations, but also by the class of tenants which have been attracted to the new buildings.

Although the requirements of the Building Department, the Tenement House Department and other divisions of the city government have become more exacting within recent years and, as a result, have caused the expenditure of larger sums on the improvement, yet this additional outlay is to the benefit of the occupants of the house.

The fireproofing of the halls and of the lower floors, the building of extra fire-escapes, and the installation of all the apparatus that tends toward further protection of the tenant from fire or other hazards mean the ultimate gain of the landlord.

Increase in Cost.

It has been estimated by those who have specialized in this class of alteration, that its cost has been increased in some cases by a thousand dollars or more, owing to the new requirements, but this additional expense, in the final analysis, has been counteracted by the better condition of the building and its readier adaptability for renting to desirable tenants. The orders of the various city departments are usually designed and issued with the definite purpose of protecting the occupants, and in the modernized dwelling these conditions cannot very well be overlooked.

The modernization of a building means making it up to date. An up-to-date building is attractive to tenants. Good tenants are most desirable from the viewpoint of the landlord.

REALIZING ON RICHMOND'S RESOURCES

Three Lines of Development Now in Progress, Which Will Tend to Increase Home Building and Attract Industrial Concerns

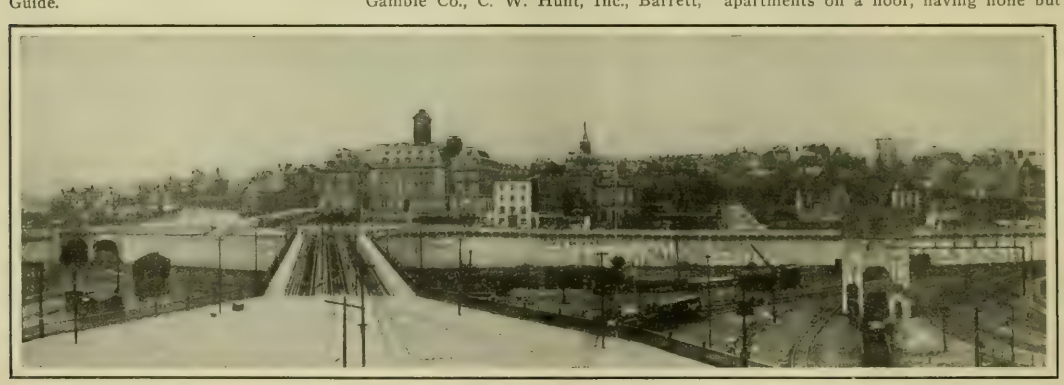
THREE distinct developments have been conspicuous in Staten Island's recent real estate activity, and their importance is enhanced with the launching of a campaign, by the Staten Island Civic League, which will have for one of its purposes the procuring for Staten Island of the New York free port advocated by the Merchants' Association. The details of this project have appeared in previous issues of the Record and Guide.

First, there has been apartment house construction in the vicinity of St. George's ferry; secondly, the bungalow colony along the south shore has become so popular that from present indications the entire stretch of beach along that section of the island shortly will be utilized, and, thirdly, there has been such a pronounced demand from people of moderate means for small one or two acre farms that a great many of the large tracts are being cut up, subdivided into smaller units, and sold with or without arrangements for the erection of dwellings and out buildings.

"Satisfactory results have been achieved along these lines," said Cornelius G. Kolff, this week. "Principally in the phase which deals with the subdivision of the large farms into small farms which enable a buyer to introduce farming on a small scale. Those builders who have been erecting medium sized structures ranging in cost from $3,000 to $5,000 have had little or no difficulty in disposing of their finished product."

Staten Island with a population of about 95,000 occupying about 57 square miles of territory, which is nearly three times as large as Manhattan Island, and with more waterfront property available for immediate use than the other four boroughs combined, has a great many possibilities for residential and industrial expansion.

A number of prominent firms have already become established in Richmond, including such concerns as the American Dock Company, which several years ago built several piers and warehouses at Tompkinsville, with a total storage capacity of 6,000,000 cubic feet and a total pier and bulkhead area of 400,00 square feet. Other important manufacturers include the Proctor & Gamble Co., C. W. Hunt, Inc., Barrett, Nephews & Company, the Richmond Brick Company, and C. D. Durkee & Company. The latest addition among the waterfront establishments is the Mexican Petroleum Company, a syndicate of California capitalists, which has purchased about 100 acres at Mariners' Harbor.



The establishment of the Municipal ferry at St. George and the converging of the transportation lines at that point have figured prominently in Staten Island's development. The ferry handled last year about 15,000,000 passengers and 325,000 vehicles between the Battery and St. George. In addition, there has been a large increase in the water-borne traffic on the Kill-Von-Kull in Staten Island Sound, the United States Government records last year showing that 30,000,000 tons of freight, at a value of $515,000,000, was carried through this section of New York harbor. The government, realizing its importance, is increasing the depth of the navigable channel 25 feet at mean low water and will ultimately increase this depth to 30 feet at mean low water with a proportioned widening of the channel.

The establishment of the free port in Staten Island would mean a great deal to Richmond. The Staten Island Civic League, which is working hard for the achievement of this end, believes that, with the co-operation of the railroad, which has direct connection with the mainland, Staten Island with its great stretches of undeveloped waterfront and comparatively low land values, is a most desirable location for the free port.

Several years ago the possibility of apartment house construction was realized by property owners, who controlled holdings in the St. George section, and upon the site of the old Castleton hotel a large structure was erected, with three apartments on a floor, having none but outside rooms. The success of this venture induced other builders to follow suit, and today there is a large and growing colony of multi-family houses, most of which have no vacancies. The rentals are well maintained. From these buildings beautiful outlooks over the harbor can be obtained.

One of the attractive residential sections in Richmond is Grymes Hill, which has been artistically laid out and improved with costly residences. This section has been laid out with plots of irregular size, most of which command extensive views of the bay. Most of these dwellings are used for all year occupancy.

FERRY AND RAILROAD TERMINAL, AT ST. GEORGE, S. I.

AN AMERICAN ARCHITECT ABROAD

Mr. Serracino, Notes the Prevalence of a New Architectural Style in the Principal Cities—Reinforced Concrete Popular in Current Work

IT was interesting to hear directly from an active New York architect fresh from a tour on the other side, a description of what is being done there in architectural design and construction at the present time.

Are the architects following any new leads in design, and did you seen anything strange in construction methods? Do their public buildings of recent date excel ours, and in what respect does the current work of our architects differ from theirs?

These were the first questions which came to the writer's mind when he was accorded an opportunity to converse with Mr. N. Serracino upon his observations while in the Britain and the Continent.

"When I left New York for Liverpool and London I anticipated that I would find that the buildings of those cities were of Gothic design, but I found that, with the exception of the Houses of Parliament, in London, all the public edifices either in the Greek or Roman style. In France, Switzerland and Italy I noticed that most of the buildings in course of erection were designed after what is coming to be called the Modern style. Hotels, residences, theatres, in fact all kinds of buildings, even chapels and mausoleums, are so built. Some architects call it the Floral, others the Liberty and still others the Art Nouveau style. These names, in my opinion, are not exactly correct. I think it might more legitimately be termed the Modern style.

The Modern Style Described.

"This style varies from all others, in that it is unhampered by the rules, traditions and proportions of the classic orders. The art of decoration is based more on imitation of natural flowers and plants, transforming them in order to suit decorative purposes. In France, Switzerland and Italy it seems that this Modern style is being generally used, and it appears that a large part of the public is beginning to like it. This architectural decoration is inspired by simplicity, limiting the ornamentation, and is free from all tradition and rules of everything that was ever done before. Flowers and plants are imitated and in some buildings polycrome effects are produced. While these are the ideas of the Modern style, we highly condemn the so-called Futurists who in art are like anarchists, in that they would destroy the artistic heritage of the past and attempt to create something entirely new, which would be a difficult task for the greatest of architects.

Eccentric Architecture.

"This modern style is highly commendable in a great many instances, but it is being carried to excess, and a great many architects are employing for ornamentation, flowers and plants which have been transformed to such an extent that in many cases the style has been made to appear ridiculous. Eccentricity has been given too much latitude."

Asked if he had observed anything new in materials of construction, Mr. Serracino said:

"Most of the buildings in Europe are now being built with reinforced concrete, using stucco on the outside, with different finishes. Even natural stones are imitated in a surprising manner, by using the cement, and finishing the surface with powder of the real stone they are imitating. There are many fine examples of this in Switzerland and in Northern Italy.

"I have seen beautiful examples of the Modern style in residences and theaters, but in other buildings, where there was too much ornamentation and eccentricity, the style did not appeal to me at all. I should not like to see this style employed for public buildings, or for that matter, for buildings of importance.

The Italian House of Parliament.

"In Rome I noticed several examples of this architecture and I wish to criticize strongly the extension to the Montecitorio building, now being used as the House of Parliament. This old building was begun by the great architect Lorenzo Bernini, in 1650, and completed by C. Fontana. It is a beautiful specimen of the good period of the Borocco style.

"The new extension, however, is being erected in the Modern style, flowers, fruits and plants being used for ornamentation. The new addition as it is being built would look very well if it were going to be used as an apartment house or hotel, but it is by no means suitable for a House of Parliament, particularly as an extension to the work of Bernini, who was an architectural genius. In my opinion it should have been compulsory that the same style be employed for any addition to such a building. The Bernini's facade will be left unaltered, but the rear and portion of the side elevations will be in Modern style. While I do not think this new style is appropriate for a building of this character, I do think it will look queer and ridiculous to have the facade in one style and the rear and side elevations in an entirely different style, especially in this new one.

The American Academy.

"While in Rome I visited the American Academy of Fine Arts, which is situated on the Janiculum Hill, one of the beautiful spots of the city. The director, Mr. Jesse Benedict Carter, kindly showed me the old and new buildings and also took me through the gardens. The new building is beautiful and simple in design; the outside is dignified and correct and the inside very comfortable and sanitary. The building is provided with the latest and best systems of heating and plumbing and the rooms are all well lighted and ventilated.

"Another important thing to which my attention was called was that while all the important buildings in Europe, old and new, are carefully decorated on the outside and inside, it appears that to a greater or less degree the heating and ventilating systems and the sanitary requirements are deficient. In this respect America is far in advance of any of the cities I visited in Europe."

JURISDICTION OVER BUILDINGS

The Conference Committee of Allied Organizations Holding Fast to the Borough Principle in the Reorganization Plan

THE situation with respect to the bill for simplifying building inspection in New York City has changed considerably during the past few days. The original Lockwood-Ellenbogen Bill has been amended four times, so that at present it varies widely from the first measure presented for consideration.

To such an extent is this true that at a meeting of the Conference Committee of Real Estate and Allied Organizations held this week one or two of the members of the conference expressed the opinion that the pendulum had swung too far in the direction of compromise.

The point raised was on the composition of the Board of Standards and Appeals, which in the bill as finally amended is placed entirely in the hands of the Mayor, to include his Fire Commissioner, Tenement House Commissioner, Health Commissioner and four other appointees. Representatives of the Joint Committee on City Departments, namely, F. Livingston Pell and Robert Christie, voiced a preference for a technical rather than a political board. The Board of Standards and Appeals takes the place of the Board of Examiners and the Board of Standards provided for in previous drafts of the bill.

The present wording of the bill also removes any doubt with respect to the statutory provisions of the Tenement House Act, and gives the Tenement House Commissioner a representative in the several Building Bureaus, and a right of appeal within five days to the Board of Standards and Appeals, of which he is a member.

Every effort has been made by the Conference Committee to meet all reasonable objections to the bill. The one vital feature which is unchanged is that of Borough jurisdiction over buildings. But the conference feels there is not the same ground for opposition on this score as there was before the Mayor's idea of centralization was embodied in the bill by providing for a Board of Standards and Appeals.

It is also provided that the act is to take effect on October 1 instead of April 15. The Board of Estimate is to prepare in the interval a schedule for the necessary transfers from the several departments to the several Bureaus of Buildings.

Action by the Brooklyn Board.

The Committee of the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers appointed to cooperate with others in an effort to secure simplicity in building inspection, at their meeting to-day resolved to call upon their fellow members and the public to urge the immediate adoption of the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill. In the letter to members the following facts are brought out.

"Our Board believes that any taxpayer should be able to apply to one department within his own borough to find out exactly what he must do to comply with the various laws affecting any building erected or about to be erected on his property.

"This is the fundamental principle of the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill, and not even the paid emissaries of the so-called 'charity trust' have dared to directly attack this principle.

"In spite of our offer to accept any amendment which would retain the principle of some department within the borough, these knights of commercialized philanthropy have sent scurrilous and mendacious letters to many estimable people in the hope that by such misrepresentation they would be induced to oppose the bill.

"Some of these good citizens, misled by the letters, have opposed the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill in letters to the press and to the legislators.

"The bill has now been amended so as to protect every legitimate interest and our members and their clients are urged to write or telegraph to the members of the legislature to urge its immediate adoption."

Outside investors often ask, where can money be made in New York real estate? New transit facilities have always been the main incentive for growth in this city. Watch the construction of the various branches of the Dual System—there's where money is to be made. The opportunities were never more numerous.

With 51 per cent, of population, and 41 per cent. of representation, New York City pays 77 per cent. of the tax burdens of the State. Is it not time to invoke the American spirit of fair play?

There is merit in the argument that when a building has been once completed in accordance with the laws, which in every era exacted more than was really required for safety, it ought in reason to be free from molestation while kept in good repair. Why should a completed building be subject to the passing emotions and fashions of extremists?

The Uplifters continue to cite the Triangle factory fire as an excuse for compelling radical structural changes in old buildings, when as a matter of fact the construction of the building in which the fire occurred was in nowise at fault. Did not the courts place the blame for the loss of life, and why impute wrong where there was none?

The usual number of strike bills have been introduced in the Legislature this year, but are less likely to get through than ever before. The Wagner bill, to saddle more licensed engineers upon apartment house owners and, in fact, upon every building owner where there is a steam boiler of over twenty horsepower, is back again. Doesn't Senator Wagner care anything for real estate interests any more?

There are over eighty thousand parcels of land in Queens Borough still officially classified as vacant. This is about sixty per cent. of the total number of parcels. The statistics of the Department of Taxes show that the lands available for improvement are very evenly distributed throughout the four wards; that is, in the Corona, Flushing and Jamaica sections, as well as in Long Island City. All these fine residential lands will be opened up by the Dual System, and it is the most inviting field of speculative enterprise for young men of the home-seeking class that the real estate market has offered in years.

The Excellence of Co-operative Apartments.

It is an open secret that among the plans for new buildings which are now being matured is one which provides for the construction of a large co-operative apartment house east of Central Park. Stock in this project has, we understand, already been sold. A sufficient number of purchasers practically to assure the construction of the building and the financing of the enterprise is being undertaken on a basis which promises well for its ultimate success. If these statements prove to be true we shall be witnessing an interesting recovery of form by a really desirable class of building improvement. For some years no co-operative apartment houses have been built because the failure of a number of such enterprises gave the whole class a black eye.

But there is no intrinsic reason why the satisfactory results which followed from the erection of most of the earlier buildings should not be repeated. The later projects failed chiefly because they were managed by inexperienced people who were over-optimistic about the way in which the buildings were financed. The co-operative apartment house can easily be made a disastrous experiment for its stockholders in case its managers accept irresponsible purchasers, underestimate the cost of the building or overestimate its income from rented apartments. On the other hand if its finances are conservatively arranged and care exercised about the selection of the stockholders, it has proved its ability to furnish to its owners more space than they can obtain at anything like the same price in an ordinary rented building.

It has the additional advantage, moreover, of enabling the owners to plan their apartments according to their own convenience and taste. The co-operative building can never become a popular type, because the number of people who will risk their money in that kind of a building will always be restricted, but if such enterprises are conservatively managed it should be possible to find owners for one or two of them every year. It is very much to be desired that they will be conservatively managed and that they will continue to be built up to the limit of the legitimate demand. Besides satisfying the needs of a certain number of families who might otherwise seek a house in the suburbs, they have a tendency to raise the general standard of apartment house design and planning. They are usually placed in the hands of comparatively skilful architects who have in several cases turned out buildings well above the average in convenience and appearance.

The Slow Demand for Sites.

One of the most prominent characteristics of the current real estate market is the lack of demand by speculative builders for sites for new buildings. Early in the winter the erection of a considerable number of new buildings was announced, situated chiefly along the line of Broadway, but this encouraging development did not continue. Considering the season of the year there is a conspicuous scarcity of demand for apartment house sites to the east of Central Park. This want of demand is wholesome, in so far as it is concerned with buildings in which the apartments are very expensive, but it is somewhat extraordinary in the case of cheaper buildings—of buildings that is whose accommodations fetch from $1,700 to $2,700. The houses of this type now existing on the East Side are well rented and if a very small number only are erected there will be an actual scarcity next fall. Of course, notwithstanding the large amount of property for sale on the East Side, it is increasingly difficult to put together a plot large enough to justify the erection of a modern building, and no doubt this fact has a good deal to do with the scarcity in the new projects announced of nine-story buildings on the side streets, but that is not the whole story.

The expense of financing speculative building enterprises deters a great many builders, and only very responsible people can get the money at any price.

The consequence is that buildings that could be perfectly well rented are not being put up, and that when the improvement in conditions does come a great scarcity will justify the erection of a comparatively large number of new buildings all at once. It may be expected that the blocks between Third and Lexington avenues will be largely used for this class of improvement.

Hostility to New York City.

New York City is always being badly treated at Albany, but never has the treatment been worse than that which it is receiving from the existing Legislature. The legitimate grievances of the city are being left unredressed, and its fair claims for consideration are ignored. Almost all the bills, the passage of which is particularly desired by the city administration, are either being neglected or turned down. When they get through the Legislature the Governor promptly vetoes them. The behavior of the Republican leaders in Albany is more than ever before being dictated by positive hostility to New York City. The most conspicuous instance of this hostility is, of course, afforded by the disinclination of the Legislature to provide a remedy for the outrageous abuse of the taxing power of the towns in which the new Catskill water system is situated.

It is extraordinary that in a country which provides an automatic legal remedy for so many administrative abuses, there should be no legal remedy in the case of a great public corporation where its property is taken away by the flagrantly discriminating action of local taxing boards. A year ago it seemed possible that New York might obtain a better chance of fair treatment by the inclusion in the new constitution of a larger measure of home rule, but the present outlook for any such favorable change in the relations between city and State is not very encouraging. The real estate interests of New York should organize to do effectual work at the coming convention, but they will have to work hard in case they are to accomplish anything. Essentially the same influences will control the convention as that which controls the Legislature.

A Defense of the New Factory Laws.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The activity of the real estate interests during the last days of the present session of the Legislature, in relation to fire prevention and safety to life measures, is to the writer most amazing, and indicates a short-sighted policy which in the end is sure to result to the disadvantage of those interests.

While the new factory laws were far from perfect as originally enacted, and imposed some hardships on owners, the department in its administration and enforcement of the laws, has been most considerate and liberal in all cases where discretionary power could be exercised. At least this has been the writer's experience in the cases that he has had before the department.

In every instance it was possible to work out some inexpensive and satisfactory solution of the problems in accordance with the laws.

Much time and honest effort were devoted to a thorough investigation of factory conditions by the original Factory Commission, and a fairly good and creditable start was made in the new laws, to eliminate the most serious dangers and hazards.

These laws have been in effect a year or more, and sufficient time and opportunity has been afforded to test their adaptibility and practicability, and ascertain such weaknesses and omissions as were found to exist.

In the revised recodification of the labor laws which was presented to the Legislature by the Factory Commission on the 15th of February this year, all of these weaknesses and omissions that have so far developed, were remedied, and if the revised recodification measure is approved and passed by the Legislature, a further and more important step in advance will have been made.

At the end of another year, it is probable that additional improvements could be made, and by that time it should be possible to so perfect the factory laws that they would be free from any hardships to owners, and fully realize the object for which they were enacted. This is the proper and only logical way in which a good, safe and sound factory law can ever be developed.

Unfortunately, there has been from the beginning, considerable antagonism toward any corrective measures in regard to factory conditions and factory buildings, and this antagonism manifested itself immediately after the first factory laws were enacted, by a disposition on the part of certain persons and organizations to obstruct and delay the enforcement of the new laws. Those back of the opposition insisted on interpreting the laws in their own way, and exaggerated as much as possible what to them, appeared to be onerous conditions. Instead of adopting a law-abiding spirit seeking light, and trusting in the reasonableness of the Labor Department's administration of the laws, those persons held aloof, engaged counsel and fought and obstructed progress. Those representing this same opposition are now before the Legislature with a multiplicity of new measures which purport to correct hardships in the factory laws, but which almost without exception, are imperfectly digested, ill-advised and would do much more harm than good.

It is to be hoped that the ill-advised measures will be defeated, and that the revised recodification of the Labor Laws will receive the support it deserves, and be passed before the present legislature adjourns, so the revisions may be tested during the coming year, and further material progress in health and safety made possible.

Concerning Telephone Rates.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

In a letter which I sent to the Public Service Commission of the Second District, referring to the proposed change of telephone rates, I computed some figures which disclosed that the old rate, less ten per cent, is almost as good as the new rate. I do not figure that the company is making any considerable or sufficient reduction.

My figures are arrived at by taking the average consumption per house, in houses of the three different types which are most prevalent in the City of New York. The principal item upon which the telephone company offers a reduction is the annual rental of extensions.

However, after twenty extensions are paid for, the rate per extension is reduced to $3.60. The company, on the other hand, states that where the switchboard contains over thirty extensions that $1.20 will be added to the rental of the switchboard for each extension, so that the regular rate per extension will average $4.80. These extensions, I understand, cost the telephone company $3 each to purchase outright; and on a charge of $4.80 the company will be making 60 per cent. profit the first year and will be making a profit of $4.80 thereafter on every extension. This is a reduction of $1.20 on the old rate, but when you consider that we have already received a reduction of 60 cents on the old rate, we are getting very little on this new rate.

The cost per message is still exceedingly high, and I think that the telephone company could easily afford to charge us only 2 cents per message. The switchboard charge at $24 might be O. K., but when you add to that $1.20 for each extension over thirty, you will find that in a house of fifty families your switchboard under the new system will cost you $48, whereas previously it cost $36, less 10 per cent., or $32.40. Furthermore, for each trunk line after the initial trunk the company charges an annual rental of $24 I believe that the trunk lines should be given free, with the understanding that there should be at least one trunk line for every 3,000 calls; and if the owner wishes any more than one trunk line per 3,000 calls, that these additional trunk lines should be paid for at a moderate rate.

Although the present scheme is somewhat improved, I am of the opinion that the telephone company should provide for us, as wholesale users, at least the same as they do for the nickel-in-the-slot machines which they place in all stores and public pay stations. In these machines the consumer is charged 5 cents per message and the storekeeper in whose store the slot machine is placed is given a commission of 20 per cent. on each and every call. From this you can see that the telephone company is supplying the nickel in the slot machine at the rate of 4 cents per call, whereas under their proposed rate to us, in spite of the fact that we use a great many more messages than in the single machines, we will be paying as follows under the new rate: In a twenty-family house, 7.45 cents per message. In a thirty-family house, 5.62 cents per message. In a fifty-family house, 5.33 cents per message.

These messages we must sell to the tenant at the rate of 5 cents per message, and in addition to our bookkeeping and general expenses, including collections, etc., we have to pay the operators at least $25 per month, which would bring the cost of supplying messages to the tenants in a twenty-family house 14.95 cents; in a thirty-family house to 9.61 cents and in a fifty-family house to 7.73 cents, so that we will be under the new rate still at a considerable loss.

We believe that the telephone company can afford and should give us a rate that will enable the owner to supply the tenants with messages at 5 cents per message and stand a chance of breaking even.

Besides the expenses mentioned above, you can figure on at least 15 per cent. additional to the cost, caused by loss through non-collections, loss of messages and for errors on the part of either the telephone company or the owner.

Under the present proposed rate, I do not think we are very much better off than we were heretofore; and in the event of no relief being given I am of the opinion that the real estate owners in the City of New York will be compelled to charge the tenants to whom they supply telephone messages at the rate of 10 cents per message.

The Object of the Torrens Law.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

It is a gratifying sign of the times that in spite of wars and rumors of wars the property owners in the State and City of New York have at last awakened to a proper realization of the beneficial results to be secured through the registration of their properties under the Torrens Land Title Registration Law, otherwise known as article 12 of the Real Property Law, as amended by chapter 627 of the Laws of 1910, whereby an absolutely indefeasible title in fee simple is vested by the State, after all clouds have been removed. Now that the Real Estate Board of New York has put itself on record as strongly in favor of the Torrens Law, and the Register of New York County, the Register of Kings County and the Register of Bronx County have all endorsed the Torrens system, and leading real estate operators are hastening to have their properties registered, it will not be a long time before all properties, including those owned by the City of New York, will be duly registered under the Torrens, "once for all."

Register Hopper properly suggests that the plant in his office, which represents an outlay of $500,000, paid by the taxes imposed on property owners, should be utilized in Torrens registration actions in this county. But the Register is altogether wrong when he remarks that, "The court proceeding in its nature is not a lawsuit or a contest of right between individuals, but is simply an application to the court by an owner to have his existing title confirmed." The exact contrary is true. As not one title in a million is absolutely flawless, a Torrens registration action naturally develops into "a contest of rights between individuals," where disputed questions as to easements, encroachments, rights of way, liens, encumbrances, etc., are fought out and finally determined and settled "once for all." If it were merely an application by the owner "to have his existing title confirmed," then the certificate of registration would set forth, in the memorials attached thereto, all such existing clouds or defects, and the owner would be in no better position than he would have been with a policy of title insurance with the exceptions in "Schedule B."

As the Court of Appeals truly remarked, "The object and purpose of the law are to register good titles, not to cure bad ones," which means that the mere registration of an "existing" title does not by itself remove clouds or cure defects, but that these must be removed or cured on the trial of the action, and then after the title has been cleared and the court has so adjudicated, it can be registered as a "good title," no matter what defects may have previously existed.

The present law provides for both individual official examiners and corporate official examiners. The latter must be a title insurance company organized and incorporated under the Insurance Law of the state. Such a company has been organized and incorporated within the past month, namely the Torrens Title Insurance Company, with an authorized capital of $150,000, divided into 1,500 shares of $100 each. The certificate of incorporation has been filed and a license has been duly issued by the Superintendent of Insurance. Arrangements are now being made for the necessary capital, all of which will be employed in making mortgage loans, to be approved by the Superintendent of Insurance, on properties which have been previously registered under the Torrens.

One of the most valuable features of the charter of the Torrens Title Insurance Company is that which gives it the right to guarantee mortgages and to sell such mortgages when so guaranteed. This will enable the company to turn over its capital constantly, so that the comparatively small original capital of $150,000 will be equivalent to millions of dollars before long.

The Color Tones in Buildings.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I am desirous of asking the architects of New York City and vicinity, through the valuable columns of the Record and Guide, their opinion with reference to color tones in architectural terra cotta, front brick and art decorative tile and mosaics.

We all know that coal tar dyes from Germany are extremely rare and hard to get. They are very expensive. Do the discerning architects of our great cities demand high color tones in decorative brick, architectural terra cotta or mosaics at the cost of permanency, or are they content with less brilliant, but absolutely permanent color tones, colors that will not fade; that is, earth colors?

The day seems not far distant when polychrome effects will be the rule in brick and facade work. What I want to know is whether there is sufficient demand in America for chemists to concentrate upon the matter of supplying earth colors for ceramic industries and whether the demand now already apparent is actually destined to continue for a reasonable length of time. Permanent color tones in greens, browns, reds, ochres and allied hues are possible of attainment provided the demand is there to make this effort worth while. Furthermore it can be made here in America.

SPRINKLER EQUIPMENT.

Application for an Injunction Against Fire Commissioner Denied.

Justice Newburger, in Special Term, Part 1, of the Supreme Court, has denied the application for an injunction made by Berlin & Jones Envelope Co. to restrain the Fire Commissioner from enforcing an order to vacate premises at Nos. 547-53 West 27th street, running through to West 28th street, Manhattan, because of the failure of the owner to comply with a fire-prevention order requiring the building to be equipped with automatic sprinklers. The Berlin & Jones Company is the occupant but not the owner of the building. The decision of the court says:

"This is an application to restrain the Fire Commissioner from enforcing an order heretofore made by him requiring the installation of an automatic sprinkler equipment. This order was made on December 5, 1913, and under the provisions of Section 777 of the Greater New York Charter, as amended by Chapter 695 of the Laws of 1913, the owner had a right to demand a survey of the building to determine the propriety of the order, but he failed to make such a demand. A careful reading of the moving papers fails to disclose that the order made by the Commissioner was unreasonable, unnecessary and oppressive, and the application for a junctive relief must therefore be denied." (See Record and Guide, March 27, page 508.)

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

The Local Board of the Hudson district will, on Tuesday, April 6, act on a resolution to alter and improve the sewer in West 33d street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues. The proposed improvement is due to the fact that the condition of this sewer is very bad throughout its entire length. It is distorted and cracked, and takes considerable water through the joints. The existing sewer was built in 1851.

The Local Board of Kips Bay district will, on April 6, act on a resolution to regulate and pave with a permanent granite block pavement East 30th street from the bulkhead line of the East River to a point 175 feet east of the easterly line of First avenue; estimated cost, $4,656; assessed valuation of property, $171,840. The report of the Chief Engineer of Highways states that there is no sewer in this block, and that none will be needed for many years to come. This portion of 30th street is included within the limits of a water-grant. An assessment for the existing Belgian block pavement was confirmed in 1873. Under the provisions of the Laws of 1889 a repaving at this time must be through assessment proceedings.

The Local Board of Harlem will, on April 6, act on a resolution to alter and improve the sewers in East 90th and 91st streets, between Second and Third avenues, and the sewer in 91st street. The estimated cost of the first-named work is $13,300, and of the other $16,100.

New Pavements in Manhattan.

Borough President Marcus M. Marks, realizing the great desirability of leaving undisturbed for the longest possible time streets which have been newly paved, will, from time to time, make public lists of streets which are about to be paved or repaved. Real estate owners, builders, public service corporations and others who for any purpose may desire to open the streets, having received this information in advance of the work, are urged and requested to make, immediately after publication of the list, all necessary installations, renewals or repairs of all the subsurface structures in the streets mentioned. By making such repairs or renewals before repaving is commenced, not only can the pavement be maintained in better condition, but those making openings before repaving will be saved the cost of restoring the pavement over the opening.

New Pavements—Work to be commenced during month of April.

Sheet asphalt: In Market street, from Cherry to East Broadway; in Monroe street, from Pike to Market; in 160th street, from Fort Washington avenue to 418 feet west of Fort Washington avenue; in 30th street, from Eighth avenue to Ninth avenue.

Granite block: 160th street, 418 feet west of Fort Washington avenue to Riverside drive; in 27th street, from Tenth to Eleventh avenues.

Wood block: Third avenue, from 6th to 8th streets.

The Long Island Exchange.

At a meeting of the Real Estate Exchange of Long Island, held Tuesday at Shanleys, 42d street, the general report expressed was that sales were beginning to show a fair average, and while they were sometimes hard to unearth they were always good and sound when they came through. This is primarily due to the refining process that suburban real estate has gone through during the last "dry spell."

Some very interesting matters were discussed, particularly the licensing of real estate brokers and the legislation on the new Rockaway turnpike from Jamaica down the peninsular. The exchange, since its reorganization on the ten-dollar-a-year basis, has taken on a spirit of new life and enthusiasm that indicates assured forceful action from this body in the future. About twenty-five of the most important operators on the Island attended the luncheon. Mr. Frank, of the Woodmere Co., presided.

New Uptown Trolley Service.

By an order of the Public Service Commission for the First District, the residents of upper Manhattan and the Bronx will be provided a through service of trolley cars on Broadway, Amsterdam avenue and 145th street by the Third Avenue Railways Company to and from the Lenox avenue subway station on 145th street, from and to the intersection of 225th street and Broadway, such through service to be instituted by April 19. The order relieves the New York Railways Company, the Third Avenue Railway Company and the New York City Interborough Railway Company from the obligation to exchange transfers at intersecting points on 145th street, but does not relieve any of the companies from the obligation to issue transfers at intersecting points to any other line of the same company.

Bungalows at Baldwin.

The recent proposal of certain real estate interests to purchase the abandoned reservoir of the city of New York at Baldwin, in the southern part of Nassau county, Long Island, calls attention to the structural features of home construction in that community. Bungalows are the prevailing type of improvement and this is in contradistinction to improvements in the communities on either side of Baldwin. The purpose of bungalows is to combine a house of economical cost with easy interior accessibility and modern improvements.

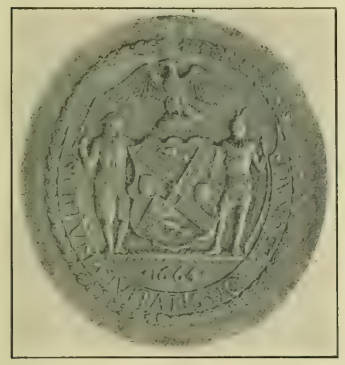
Up to a few years ago bungalows were Pacific coast types of residence, but, since their popularity on Long Island has been established they are largely superseding the two-story and attic type of detached houses that for thirty years met the demand for moderate priced homes in the suburbs. The tendency to individualize the architecture of suburban bungalows has added to the attractions of home communities within easy commuting distance of New York. Baldwin is a salient instance of it.



Situated between Rockville Centre and Freeport and accessible to both of them by trolley as well as by railroad, Baldwin is experiencing a spring real estate movement that gives evidence of surpassing in volume the marked activity of its neighbors. Waterways leading to Hempstead bay abound at Baldwin and the circumstance is attracting investors in homes who have nautical cravings.

The New City Seal.

A new City Seal has been adopted by the Board of Aldermen. The old one was not historically correct, it was said. Great care has been taken to have all representations made on the model for the seal submitted to be historically authentic and correct, and it is now believed that the seal proposed will contain all those features to which any historic authority is attached. The ordinance will enforce the use of one design on all city documents. The new seal is officially described as follows:

Arms: Upon a shield, saltier-wise, the sails of a windmill. Between the sails, in chief a beaver, in base a beaver, and on each flank a flour barrel.

hand resting on the top of the shield; above his right shoulder a cross-staff. Sinister, an Indian of Manhattan, his right arm bent, his right hand resting on the top of the shield, his left hand holding the upper end of a bow, the lower end of which rests on the ground. Shield and supporters resting upon a horizontal laurel branch.

Date: Beneath the horizontal laurel branch the date 1664, being the year of the capture of New Amsterdam by the English and the first use of the name of the City of New York.

Crest: Upon a hemisphere, an American eagle with wings displayed.

Legend: Upon a ribbon encircling the lower half of the design the words "Sigillum Civitatis Novi Eboraci."

Broadway Subway Contracts.

On Friday, April 9, 1915, the Public Service Commission received bids for the construction of Section No. 4 of Routes Nos. 4 & 36, that part of the Broadway-Seventh avenue subway in Manhattan lying between 51st and 59th streets, for operation under the Dual System agreements by the New York Municipal Railway Corporation. This line is now entirely under contract save for the stretch in Broadway and Seventh avenue between 38th and 59th streets. It is expected that the contract for the section extending from 38th to 51st streets will be advertised for bids within the next few weeks.

Birth of a New Town.

A station is being constructed for the Long Island Railroad, between Long Beach and East Rockaway, on the Long Beach branch of the electric railroad, and will be known as "Oceanside Station." The demand for this new train stop has been caused by the structural development in this community, known as Oceanside, which adjoins Rockville Centre, Lynbrook and East Rockaway. This entire section of the country has undergone improvements and changes in the last few years, primarily based upon the desire of people to have the combined pleasures of water and land. The East Rockaway harbor, a noted boating and fishing waterway, directly touches the borders of Oceanside. According to real estate operators in this section, the growth in population demands a station at this convenient point. The grounds adjoining the station building are parked.

Gas For Douglaston Section.

The New York and Queens Gas Company has been ordered by the Public Service Commission for the First District to extend its gas mains in such a way as may be required to serve with gas the Douglaston and Douglas Manor section of the Third Ward of the Borough of Queens. Construction must begin not later than April 30, and be completed as far as Alley Road or Main avenue, Douglaston, by September 1, 1915.

New Jersey Torrens Law.

The Hennessy bill providing for the registration of land titles in the State of New Jersey, was passed this week by the Legislature.

The total amount of property not subjected to taxation in New York City is $1,873,895,243.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

There were large sales and small sales this week. There was one deal involving a $2,240,000 Brooklyn tract and another concerning $1,625,000 Harlem apartment houses. Builders bought plottage for improvement in several sections of the city and buyers, large and small, bought various kinds of properties. Investors and speculators were among the purchasers. The business concerned practically every class of building. There were trades and cash transactions; resales by former plaintiffs in foreclosure proceedings and purchases of dwellings for occupancy. Business leasing continued moderately active, and apartment and private house renting maintained the steady improvement which has characterized that particular branch of the business of late.

All in all, the trading of the week represented practically every kind of activity, and while the market cannot be said to have undergone a substantial improvement, it showed, nevertheless, that the demand is becoming more general and is not confining itself to any class of holding on any section of the city. Such a tendency toward general activity, rather than specialized or localized activity, would be a most desirable development.

The business within recent times has been enlivened by investment buying of apartment houses on the West Side and heavy buying of building sites in the West Bronx. Perhaps the near future holds in store another flurry to show that there are other parts of the city which are meriting recognition.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 28 as against 32 last week and 26 a year ago.

In the "House That Jack Built" there were no GAS PIPES—they were not needed! But in this greatest manufacturing and commercial community in the world both GAS PIPES and the inexhaustible supply of clean, trouble-saving and economical fuel that flows through them are a vital need to every efficient building, large or small.

Gas is a universal fuel! The variety of its uses is without limit! It is especially adapted to WORK in such a city as New York, where floor space is always at a premium and where scores of important industries are frequently tucked away on the floors of a single loft structure.

The New York building owner never knows when a prospective tenant will insist on having proper GAS facilities for his needs before he will sign a lease.

The wise builder puts in GAS PIPES when he builds! If he doesn't he may have to tear out walls and pull up floors to put them in afterwards.

Procrastination in installing GAS PIPES means waste! And it never pays to be wasteful!

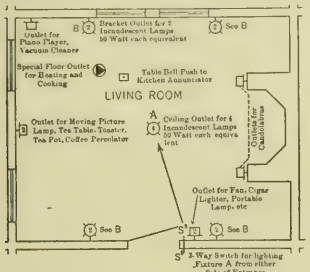
BUILDING MANAGEMENT

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR HOUSE WIRING

By H. C. CUSHING, Jr.*



Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

PART TWO.

Flush receptacles and plugs should be liberally distributed throughout the residence as they are very handy for a great variety of purposes and may be generally placed on or just above the baseboard. The plates may be painted to match surroundings and made very inconspicuous.

Receptacles for the same voltage and class of service should have interchangeable plugs to avoid the necessity of changing the plug on the flexible cord attached to any lamp or appliance should its location be changed.

Receptacles, however, should be so designed that the plugs on apparatus of different voltage or class cannot be inadvertently conected to wrong receptacles. If this is not done, a 110-volt appliance might be easily connected to a 200-volt receptacle, in which case the appliance would probably be destroyed, to say nothing of the fire hazard involved. Receptacles for lighting purposes are usually 110 volts. In addition to the lighting receptacles which are usually installed for reading lamps, piano lamps, etc., there should be one or two spare receptacles in each main room and hall. A porcelain lamp receptacle, mounted in a condulet or outlet box, is often placed under the kitchen range-hood and the conduit run around under the hood to the side wall where the controlling switch is located. A waterproof receptacle and plug should be located outside the main entrance, controlled by a switch in hall for step and walk canopy lighting.

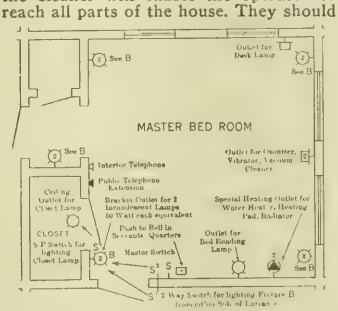
The living porch should have one or more flush wall receptacles placed in the side wall twelve or fifteen inches above the floor (to prevent water splashing on them). These receptacles for use of reading lamp, chafing-dish, percolator, etc. Bedroom porches may have a similar receptacle for reading light. Receptacles for mantel candles may be placed in the wall just above the shelf, or, where the design will permit, in the shelf itself.



Two receptacles, one for reading lamp and one for heating pad or similar sick-room appliance, should be placed at the side of each bed and connected to 110-volt lighting circuit. These may both be in the same outlet box and covered with one plate. Alongside of this equipment, but not in contact with same, may be placed a bell receptacle which must be of entirely different design from the two before mentioned so that by no possibility may the bell plug be attached to either of the other receptacles.

Where receptacles outlets come in the floor they should be placed in specially designed floor boxes which have cone shaped tops projecting above the floor to prevent water entering the box and to protect the wires. When these portables are not in use the cone top can be removed and a flush top substituted.

Flush receptacles for portable vacuum cleaners should be so located that the thirty to fifty feet of cord that goes with the cleaner will enable the operator to reach all parts of the house. They should be so arranged that the plugs are not interchangeable, except for the very small type. The momentary rush of current with many of the larger portable vacuum cleaners would blow the fuses of small circuits and it is advisable to put these receptacles on a separate No. 12 wire, and as but one point is used at a time, all the vacuum cleaner receptacles in the residence may be placed on the same circuit.

There should be a receptacle and outlet box placed in the floor under the dining-room table, a little off the center, so as to clear the center leg of table. This should be fitted with a removable plug connected to permanent table wiring (which is carried up the center leg of the table along the under framework and out on the crossbars, where the wiring should terminate in three 110-volts fused power receptacles). One of these may be used for electric chafing-dish or egg-boiler, one for electric toaster and one for electric coffe percolator.

Usually 10 or 15 watt lamps are sufficient for cellar lighting, except in case of work-bench or lathe, which should be brightly lighted by 25 watt or 40 watt lamps. Outlets should be so located as to illuminate sinks, furnaces and any pumps or apparatus that need attention. Store rooms and vegetable rooms should be well lighted from ceiling with controlling switch at door. There should be at least one outlet in cellar controlled by pilot switch at the head of the stairs.

In addition to mantel lights, side or ceiling lighting should be so designed as to properly illuminate all portions of a room in such a manner as to allow the shifting of furniture from time to time without destroying the harmony of the interior. For this reason residence outlets should not be limited to the fewest possible permissible with the original furniture layout, but should be planned with a view of any re-arrangement of furnishings. Outlets not needed with first scheme may be capped until required. For economy as well as for convenience, room-lighting should be controlled by switches. Most rooms require one or more receptacles for portable lights. The dining room table should be well lighted by ceiling domes or showers. For bedroms, in addition to the above room lighting, there should be a receptacle for desk lamp and there should also be a reading lamp at bed.

The pantry should be well lighted from a high center outlet so that contents of dressers and cupboards may easily be seen and this outlet should be controlled by a switch. Laundries are usually finished in light color and need comparatively little general illumination from ceiling fixture controlled by a switch at door. A drop-light should be provided at ironing table and a side-light at laundry machine.

Most bathrooms may be well lighted by means of a two-light ceiling fixture or side outlets placed over the mirror, the fixtures projecting eight to fifteen inches from wall and with two inverted lights in such position as to light top of head and each side of face, controlled by a switch at door. Bathroom lights should never be so placed as to throw the shadow of anyone in the room on the window shade.

It pays to light servants' room from high ceiling lights designed for wide distribution of lighting and install switch at door for control of same. The lights will be thus used more economically and the fixtures cannot be carelessly mishandled.

Portable vacuum cleaners should not be connected to the branch circuits feeding lights and small appliances, but should be provided with a special circuit and their own outlets. Sometimes a permanent machine is installed in the basement with pipes carried concealed in the walls and with convenient outlets on each floor to which hose may be attached. In such a case it is advisable to place near the motor an automatic distant control switch and carry one No. 14 wire branch circuit to flush receptacles placed close to each hose outlet.

Plate warmers may be placed under dressers or pantry table and should be fitted with two or three heat switch and pilot light. Electric dish-washers do their work quickly and well and need little attention. They may be fitted with a switch on machine or at wall.

Cooking by electricity is fast coming into more general use. The freedom from odors and escaping gas, the cleanliness and the application of heat only where needed, appeals strongly to the housekeeper. An electric range for a family of six would occupy a floor space of about 22 inches by 28 inches. It is generally fitted with a number of separate switches for the various parts and utensils and should be on a separate three-wire feeder with three-pole main switch and pilot light.

Laundry ironing tables may be purchased complete with swinging arms to take care of the cords and with two irons for different classes of work and so arranged with automatic stands that the iron when not in actual use takes only enough current to keep it hot.

The simplest type of electric clothes-washer and wringer may be mounted on the tubs and removed when not in use. Other types have all parts mounted on one stand which may be on rollers to bring it to the tubs on wash-days and remove it at other times. Such a machine for a family of six would occupy a floor space of about 28 by 32 inches. Has switch on the machine and should connect to receptacle on wall.

Curling-iron heaters may be mounted on the surface of the wall of the bathroom and are very small in size and consume current only when the iron is inserted into the heater. Hot water cups or stoves are much used, take up little space and should be connected to a combination pilot switch and receptacle.

AIDS TO RENTING.

By Making Judicious Improvements, Owners Can Increase Income from Investments.

MUCH is said about over production in multi-family dwellings and owners and agents, from time to time, complain of numerous vacancies. Vacancies exist mostly in apartments built from four to twelve years ago, those usually erected by speculative builders and designed by architects with a limited knowledge of apartment house construction. They were much alike in plan and only vary in size of plots.

Prospective tenants are impressed first by the condition of the premises. If orderly and clean, the fact helps greatly towards shaping their minds. Secondly, and more important than the first, is the finish and decoration of the apartment being shown. It is here that the owner or agent loses many good prospects.

In this age people are educated to the refinements of life and have a keener appreciation for the aesthetic. Education has been obtained through reading, and seeing the better things displayed. Modern department stores have helped by their artistic manner of displaying household decorations and furnishings. Thus the public has a better knowledge of what is correct and in good taste and is able to distinguish the neat from the gaudy. The period of machine carved wood-work, leaded glass of nondescript coloring, built-in furniture of any old design, has been superseded by a period in which plain surfaces and simple lines predominate. This fact seems to be realized by nearly everyone but owners of tenant properties.

In most cases the expense would not be great to improve the old-fashioned multi-family houses in a way that tenants appreciating better things, would be more likely to rent. Owners should wake up, and renting agents, through their experience, should see that they are brought to a frame of mind where they will make these properties rentable. The owner's education must, in a large part, become the labor of the renting agent, as he comes in personal contact with the owner, and is the one who next to him reaps the greatest benefit.

Better tenants are obtainable for apartments showing evidence of care, thought and taste on the owner's part, in decorations and general appointments, than are now obtained. Location of the building is oftentimes a secondary consideration to prospective tenants, but the interior condition will ever be first with them.

Studied the Situation.

S. H. Schwartz, of Schwartz & Gross, architects, an authority on high-class multi-family houses, has made an exhaustive study of this problem. It was made in an impersonal manner, partly for his own fuller knowledge of the renting situation, as applied to multi-family dwellings, and partly as the advisor of a client with large holdings of apartments built from four to twelve years ago. His investigation took in a number of old tenements, two families on a floor, four and five stories in height. These buildings are known commonly as railroad flats. Fortunately not many of this type are being erected now and existing ones are becoming obsolete. His studies were pursued in various neighborhoods but mostly in localities where during recent years modern apartments have been erected.

Older Buildings Suffer.

Naturally the older buildings suffered in comparison, and consequently rents were reduced and a large percentage of vacancies exist. We all know these old types. In one respect only are they modern. The Tenement House Department has compelled owners to completely modernize their bathrooms and kitchens and install sanitary plumbing and fixtures in compliance with the law. The remainder of the building is neglected and is often left as erected years ago, with entrance dingy and uninviting; courts narrow, and the apartments subdivided so that rooms are oftentimes almost useless. The more elaborate ones have imitation marble hallways and tiling of hideous design. Trim with elaborate moldings, machine-made grills between the rooms, and lighting fixtures belonging to the dark ages are not inviting, after years of use, to the tenant of to-day.

Dingy woodwork and trim, wall papers, dark in color with conspicuous designs, never attract permanent tenants. These are the conditions found however, in the apartments studied and lead to the following suggestions by Mr. Schwartz, which, if followed, would no doubt revolutionize the class of tenants now obtained for these old buildings.

Affect of Good Taste.

"Owners of tenement properties do not appreciate to what an extent prospective tenants are impressed with good taste in decoration," said Mr. Schwartz. "For instance, have woodwork in bedrooms, bathroom and dining-room enameled in white instead of the oak or chestnut stained in darker tones, as usually found. White enameled woodwork is harder to keep clean, but it appeals strongly to the taste of the modern home seeker and with it a much wider field of decoration and furnishing is permissible. White woodwork will attract a different class of tenant than does any other finish. Grills and fret-work went out of style years ago. They are only depositories for germs and dust and are invariably placed out of reach. When cleaned they must be reached by standing upon a step-ladder or chair, which entails the danger of a serious fall. Hence they are not always clean and, when covered with dust, are impossible. What useful purpose do they serve and, if not useful, why retain them?

"Take the question of wall paper. Here the owner or agent falls down hard. Oftentimes, when an apartment must be redecorated, the owner orders new paper hung before a tenant is obtained. Sometimes he selects the paper himself, but gives a maximum price per roll to the decorator and allows him to do his worst. The owner forgets he is not to live in the apartment, and that possibly the tenant might have certain ideas in regard to design and color combinations to harmonize with his furniture and draperies. He could save money at times, because there are instances when a tenant would select cheaper paper than that which the owner might hang, to obtain a desired effect. There will be no difficulty in any event in obtaining paper for the maximum price set by the owner.

"In this age of electricity, tenants even in moderate priced apartments, demand electric light. It might pay the owner, while redecorating his apartment, to install electric lights, particularly in the principal rooms. The question of lighting naturally leads to lighting fixtures and here a suite is made or marred.

Gas Fixtures.

"Gas fixtures installed ten years ago are not now considered beautiful from an architectural or artistic standpoint. Today there is a wide selection of moderate priced, well designed fixtures which if installed will help toward putting the tenement house in the apartment house class. Rough and splintered floors, with warped joints, should be relaid, not with hardwood, parquet, but at least with a good yellow pine with joints made absolutely tight, which can be stained to match furniture.

"Of course the owner says these improvements amount to a tremendous expenditure; but after careful figuring he will find that his building has been raised in character and he is able to obtain better and more permanent tenants, who are satisfied and more careful of his premises; and that a higher rental will surely be obtained than was ever received before. It would certainly pay to modernize these old apartments."

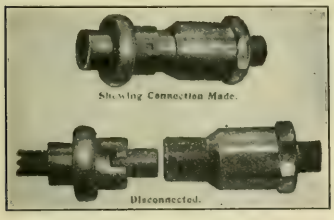
Taxing Special Franchises.

Special franchises consist of rails pipes, wires and the like situated in streets, waterways and public places, together with the privilege of building, maintaining and operating the public service performed by the aid of such improvements. The special franchise, therefore, includes both the tangible property in streets and public places of the character described and the value of the privilege of operating it. The State Board of Tax Commissioners assesses special franchises as real estate and certifies the assessments to the local assessors; the local assessors include the special franchise assessments in the local assessment rolls. It is thereupon taxed at the same rate and in the same manner as other real estate. It is the duty of the State Board of Tax Commissioners in assessing special franchises to assess them at their full value and then to equalize such assessments with the other real property in the particular tax district. Thus if the State Board finds that other real property is assessed at 90 per cent. of its full value, the special franchise assessments are reduced to 90 per cent. of the full value found by the State Board of Tax Commissioners, according to a report of the city tax department.

The Court House Project.

Mayor Mitchel has said no work should be done on the court house or the Sea Breeze Hospital, because of the money stringency, until the Committee on the Corporate Stock Budget reported on these proposed improvements. Comptroller Prendergast is not satisfied it is said, with the figures that have been submitted as to the value of the land the city will be able to sell after the court house is built.

Meantime the land the city acquired for the original site is lying almost idle. It costs about $6,000,000. The net loss to the city because of the delay, it is said, is about $600 a day in interest charges.



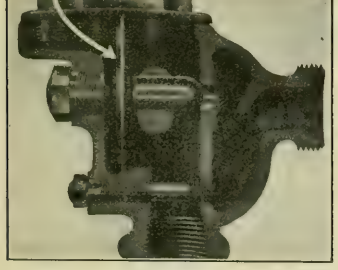
USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

Wall Gas Plugs.

SO many portable gas appliances are being used in stores, factories and homes that the demand for a practicable gas plug has been met by the device illustrated.

This plug has been devised with the object of obtaining through simple means a supply of gas in any required position. This, of course, enables consumers, with only one or two permanent gas supply outlets in a room, to utilize at will portable lights, fires, irons, boiler-rings, grilles, or any other efficient labor-saving devices which gas places within their reach; and it also permits the lighting fittings to be removed and replaced when desired.



There are no complicated parts through which trouble could arise; and the removable part of the interchangeable union valve can be instantly detached by a one-eighth turn from the fixed part, and plugged to any other position where a socket is installed. As the seat or valve is in the socket part, the arrangement is interchangeable without any possibility of leakage. The act of giving the necessary one-eighth turn to detach the portable part, closes the valve in the socket; so that no chance arises of leaving the gas turned on after it has been disconnected.

Thermostatic Efficiency.

ARCHITECTS in specifying heating equipment for buildings will find that there has been put upon the market a loose diaphragm thermostat that has advantages quite out of the ordinary.

There is no possibility of unreliable action because of the simplicity of operation. The cut shows where the loose diaphragm is located. This sheaf or disc is not attached to the cover or body of the valve and requires no adjustment. It has a spring bumper to take care of the over-expansion of the thermostat and to prevent its collapse or rupture.

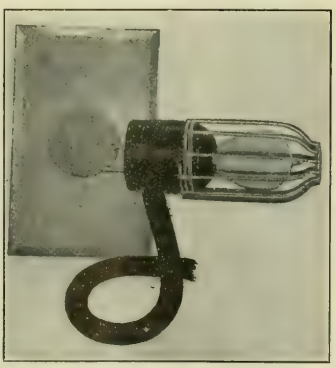
Mineral Pulp Floors.

VARIOUS kinds of flooring material are being introduced from time to time. In one of the latest is the application of mineral pulp for floor covering that may be laid over wood, concrete, stone and iron surfaces. For floors subjected to light wear it is stated that mineral pulp can be used alone and can be polished, stained, oiled and waxed like a wood flooring. For wainscoting and all similar work it is well adapted, as it can be applied as easily as plaster over wood or metal lath. It can also be used for molding ornamental and decorative work, such as friezes, columns, capitals and all exterior and interior trim. For stucco it can be combined with two and a half times the volume of stone or sand, and thus makes a surface which is said to cost only 1¾ cents a square foot. When used as a plaster coating it serves as a sound-deadening material. It is referred to as easy to work and finish; is low in cost, and water does not affect it.

Pipe Threads Protected.

ONE reason why contractors find it difficult to complete work on schedule is because pipe in transit often has its threads smashed. This necessitates cutting new threads which always takes time. It is especially true in conduit for electrical wires.



Realizing this fact a manufacturing company has introduced an enameled conduit that has its threads protected. Black pipe seldom comes to the contractor with clean threads, but it is now possible to specify protected threaded conduit. This pipe is delivered with a thin strip of protecting substance clamped around the threads and all that is required is for the worker to peel off the thread protector with a pocket knife, exposing clean, bright, new threads. Large claims of saving are made by contractors who have specified this device.

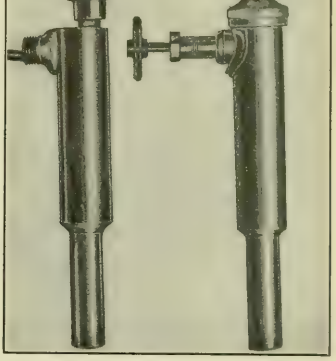
Saves Electric Fixtures.



WHERE electric fixtures are used and employees frequently forget to cut off the current thereby causing burning out of elements, a device now being introduced is designed to correct this danger by giving ample warning. The contrivance is illustrated and consists of a cap which is provided with a small lamp which is protected by a small wire guard. When the plates are inserted in the receptacle the lamp closes continuously reminding the user that the current is on should he start to leave the room. In this way there is no danger of leaving a valuable device to be overheated, thus ruining the element. The amount of current diverted into the lamp is so small that the efficiency of the electrical device being operated is not effected at all.

"Three O'Clock Fag" Remover.

BUSINESS men employing office help know well what "Three O'clock Fag" means. It is that period in the day when vitality is lowest, when the very air in the rooms seems to have a peculiarly heavy feeling and the stenographer and bookkeeper as well as the employer himself feels that a breath of fresh air would be about the most welcome thing he could have. This is a peculiarity of this part of the year when it is a little too cool to be without steam heat and yet the lassitude of spring is in the air. It is practically an every day feature of winter afternoons.

To overcome this a humidifying device has been perfected and is now on the market. It is shown in the accompanying cuts. This device operates by admitting steam directly into the air, thus eliminating that dryness in the air that saps human vitality in supplying moisture to membranes in the respiratory organs. In operation this device is automatic and when once adjusted it requires no attention. It permits no hissing noise and cannot get out of order.

Electrolysis Proof Pipe Hanger.

CONSTANT repetition of blow outs in the subway system stirs one's imagination to the possibilities of electrolytic action upon electrical cables in use in buildings and brings to mind the fact that there is being introduced an insulated hanger shown in the accompanying illustration that eliminates this danger. The shifting of cables in conduits and in cable shafts is made simple by the use of this appliance. The hanger provides a socket for the insertion of the porcelain cup which holds the cable. This can be taken out without the aid of tools.

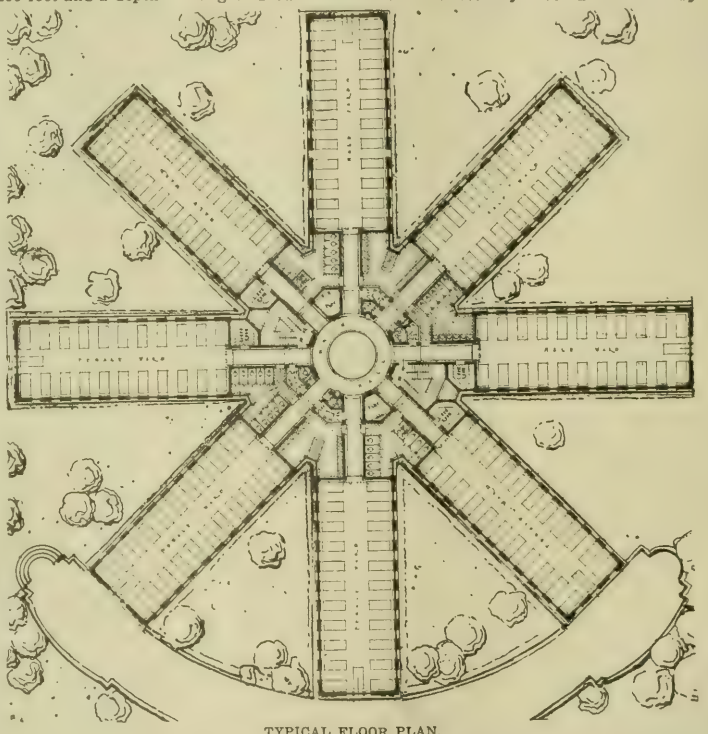
CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

New Structure for the Daughters of Jacob, to be Erected in the Bronx, Presents Unique Features and Innovations



SOME interesting features are being incorporated in the plans now being prepared by Louis Allen Abramson, architect, 220 Fifth avenue, for the new building soon to be started in the Bronx by the Daughters of Jacob, Mrs. A. D. Dworsky, president, as a home for the aged.

The building is to be erected in 167th street, between Teller and Finley avenues, where the society owns a plot, having a frontage of 200 feet and a depth of 475 feet. The structure to be built will be the first of a contemplated group and it will occupy the rear of the plot, allowing the foreground to be landscaped and planted until the construction of additional buildings is required.

Now standing upon the site of this proposed institution is the former mansion of Gouverneur Morris. While it is not possible to retain this historic landmark, something of the sentiment connected with the neighborhood will be retained by designing the new structure, which is to replace it, in the style of the American Colonial.

The plans for this building provide for a building four stories in height, with basement, built of brick and field stone. Over all it will require a plot 200 feet square. The structure will be fireproof throughout, with walls of brick, floor construction of reinforced concrete and partitions of hollow tile.

According to the present plans the building will provide for the accommodation of about 600 inmates. In plan the structure will be somewhat unusual in form, but the scheme is one which has many advantages and which can be built with economy. The complete structure will consist of eight radial wings grouped about a central structure. The wings are, above the first floor, entirely devoted to wards, etc. The central portion contains practically all of the mechanical portions of the equipment, elevators, pipe shafts, stairways, toilet rooms and lavatories, etc., as well as the executive departments of each floor. That this plan has many advantages may readily be seen. Better natural light and ventilation could not possibly be provided. Long and dark corridors are effectually eliminated. Fewer servants are required because there is less public space to be cleaned, and finally waste space is reduced to a minimum. The risers for heating and plumbing, and the ventilating ducts are grouped in the pipe shafts located in the central part of the structure where they may be easily reached through doors at each floor. In case of trouble, walls do not have to be broken into.

TYPICAL FLOOR PLAN.

The basement plan provides for the main and service entrances, coat rooms, steward's office, general storage room, morgue, boiler and coal storage rooms, kitchen and kitchen store rooms, Russian bath, locker and attendant's room. Upon the first floor will be located a synagogue, with a seating capacity of about 500, which can be converted into an auditorium by lowering the pulpit into a pit which is to be provided. On this floor will be located the ladies' dressing and coat room, men's lounge, coat room and smoking room. Sitting rooms for men and women inmates, supply and linen rooms, director's room, which can be used as a small banquet room, and the main dining and serving room. The dining room is constructed almost entirely of glass, which can be removed in summer, making practically an open-air room. The two pantries connected to the dining room are to be equipped with electric dumbwaiters for the lifting of food from the kitchens and lowering of dishes to the dish-washing machines.

The second and third floors are strictly ward floors, and are about alike in plan. On each floor are located four male and four female wards, with the essential toilet and bath rooms, linen closets, store rooms, etc. The fourth floor contains one ward, private rooms, hospital and infirmary, laboratory, dentist's office and store rooms.

From the standpoint of safety from the fire hazard this building is exceptionally well planned and includes modern safety appliances.

PROPOSED BUILDING FOR THE DAUGHTERS OF JACOB.

NEW BUILDING CODE.

Regulations for Excavations and Foundations—A Preliminary Draft.

The preliminary draft of Article 12 of the new Building Code has been issued, dealing with the subject of Excavations and Foundations.

In the matter of excavations the present law requirements are generally followed. The changes from present requirements are practically only verbal changes. A new provision, however, has been made under the title of "Support of Adjoining Walls," to take care of the case where an excavation is made on a lot which refers to a curb level at a different height from the curb level referred to in the case of the adjoining wall to be taken care of. The present law does not provide for this case.

While another article of the Building Code makes it clear as to the responsibility for the retaining wall to support adjoining earth under conditions where the curb levels of the two lots are at different heights, exactly when a wall is to be taken care of it is left open as to who will meet that cost. In the proposed article it is provided that such part of the necessary underpinning or foundation as may be due to the difference in curb levels shall be made and maintained at the joint expense of the persons causing the excavation to be made and the owner of the wall.

With this proposed change any party making an excavation more than ten feet below his curb level will have to take care of all adjoining walls. If he does not go more than ten feet with his excavation the owners of the walls will have to take care of them, except that where there is a difference in the curb levels the underpinning necessary for that difference is taken care of jointly.

A point that might be raised in this connection is whether all excavations within the building lines should not come under the provisions of this article. As the present law stands, only excavations for buildings are included.

There is no essential change in the proposed article from present requirements as to soil capacities.

Under foundations, provision is made for the design of footings in accordance with the generally accepted present-day practice, namely, that footings shall be designed so that the loads are reasonably uniform over their entire areas, and that they are proportioned to the dead loads instead of the total loads, provided, however, that the pressure on the soil due to the entire live and dead loads does not in any case exceed what is considered a safe load.

The provision as to foundation piers and caissons is rewritten in order to get it into a little more up-to-date form.

The subject of pile foundations is elaborated by requirements for concrete piles, three types being considered, namely: the concrete-filled steel tubes, piles moulded before driven, and piles moulded in place. The provisions in this connection are intended to follow as nearly as possible the present accepted practice.

The section on foundation walls remains practically the same as the present law, with the addition of provisions for foundation walls of hollow building blocks under buildings of small size.

A new section is added on retaining walls, providing that they shall be so designed that the working stresses of the materials are not exceeded and that the resultant line of pressure will fall within the middle third of the footings.

The proposed article will take the place of sections 22 to 26, inclusive, of the existing Building Code.

Elevator Inquiry.

The engineering office of Maurice Deutsch has been retained by The Merchants' Association to make a careful and unbiased investigation of the use of patent safety devices on elevators. Worth Planning For

When the Otis Elevator Company moved into its new quarters at 11th Avenue and 26th Street, it found a building equipped with Edison Service that had been contracted for two and a half months previously

No concern of such standing and experience as the Otis Company could make an ill-advised decision on so important a matter as electrical supply. They had before them, moreover, the splendid experience of many hundreds of large business houses to whom Edison Service has proved itself the cheapest and most effective means of supply

Select the Right Floor Construction

Is your building for people, machinery or storage—loads, light or heavy, constant or variable, quiescent or vibrant—spans, long or short?

It will pay you to know the right floor for your particular purpose.

CORR-PLATE-FLOORS

Flat-Slab Type Two-Way System

are the right floors for heavy loads on long spans—industrial buildings and warehouses. They combine great strength with economy and ease of construction.

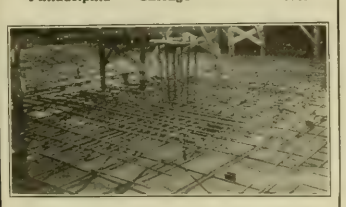
No Beams—No Girders

This flat-slab reinforced concrete floor is of even thickness throughout. The beamless ceiling permits economical installation of sprinkler systems and over-head shafting. Windows can be run clear to the ceiling—more light, more air.

A Story Height Saved in Every Eight

The elimination of beams and girders saves 1 to 1½ feet on every floor. This means more floors to a building, or a lower and less expensive building.

Corr-Plate Floors infringe no patents



Let us work with you and your architect. Our experience covers 24 years.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

CEMENT SITUATION MUCH IMPROVED—GREAT INCREASE IN ACTIVE LEHIGH CAPACITY—BIG GAIN IN BUILDING

Lawmakers Retard Supply Orders
—Encouragement in Stock Market

APRIL opens the building material market with much better prospects of normal building conditions. Portland cement is much firmer. There is a general advance expected in single and double window glass. Plate glass is firm at 90-30 and 90-35 discount from May 1914 lists. Steel at Waverly is now $1.90 with prospects of an early advance for structural material. Trap rock held its own despite a five cent decline in crushed bluestone, making the current price 85 and 95 cents. Linseed oil is one cent higher and is now quoted on card at 62 and 63 cents. Sand is 5 cents a cubic yard lower.

In the money market the tendency is to drop from 6 to 5½ per cent. in mortgage loans, and outside of lower Manhattan premiums for accommodation are low. In Manhattan below 125th street, accommodations for financing commercial buildings bring about 6 per cent. and carry with it broker's premiums of varying amounts depending upon location and character of building.

More common brick is being quoted at wholesale New York at $5.75 a thousand than in any time so far this year.

Prospective builders who have found it difficult to raise money on building projects during the last year are taking considerable hope in the changed condition of the local market, which in the last two days of March developed a million shares traded per day, and confirms the prediction made two months ago, that almost normal conditions would prevail in the money marts by the time builders were ready to make engagements for fall and winter construction work.

The Portland cement situation continues to show signs of clearing. The Vulcanite and Dexter companies each threw in one additional kiln this week, making 154 kilns in operation in the Lehigh district, as against 89 in the same time last year. This is within two of as many kilns as were being operated in the district in the middle of May a year ago. In other words there is 42.2 per cent. more capacity employed in the Lehigh district this year than last year. It is learned that shipments in March were 30 per cent. in excess of those for March, 1914. This is about a normal month's movement. One company not included among the larger operators, has been making shipments at the rate of 150,000 barrels for the month just closed.

The normal supply of Portland cement for the Metropolitan district is between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 barrels. Dealers are carrying excess of 300,000 barrels which is sufficient for only two weeks' work. If this estimate is correct it is apparent that manufacturers will not be long contented to sell cement at prices below 70 cents mill. Many have moved up already. Prices are $1.23 and $2.32 for current business.

Considerable work is now coming out from road contractors and for municipal improvements, requiring a large amount of cement. Railroad requirements have not been made known owing to the general feeling in their directorates that it is not wise to lay out large sums for improvements while hostile legislatures are in session. Contractors need not expect a large development from this source until after the legislatures adjourn. One man said that if legislators would heed the best interests of their constituents by using their repealer power and postponing new business-disturbing legislation for the time being, and thus permit the railroads to earn enough to make profitable securities largely held by savings banks, local shops would begin to hum with railroad orders and reconstruction would proceed. He said that until the railroads have some assurance that current business baiting legislation has ceased current orders will continue to be retarded.

Plan filings in the five boroughs for the week ending April 2 follow: In the same week last year there were 354 buildings projected at an estimated value of $2,701.059. The total construction for New York City in the current quarter was 2,831 buildings at an estimate value of $36,882,769, as compared with 2,479 building plans filed with the first quarter of last year at an estimated value of $29,162,570, a gain for the first quarter of 1915 of 352 in volume and $7,720,199.

HOW PORT DEVELOPMENT IS HINDERED

Shoals Block the Way to Piers for Deep Draught Vessels So Factories and Warehouses Cannot be Built There

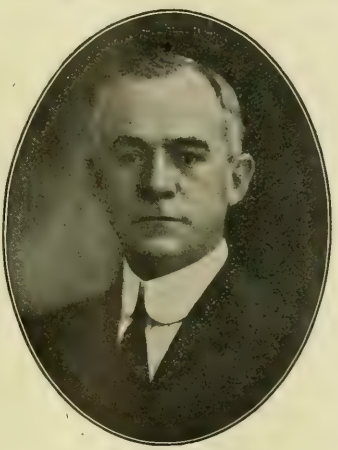
By CYRUS C. MILLER

IF the charge were made against the city that it did not pursue business methods in the development of its own resources, probably a prompt contradiction would come from the average citizen, who would say that the city is spending too much money on the development of its resources.

It is a fact that the city has neglected for many years the perfectly obvious development which could be made at a comparatively small cost, and which would result in enormous increases in taxable values.

This is the development of certain of its waterways, which will be followed by renewed life and activity in those sections of the city which are losing their value because the water ways adjacent to them are not suitable for modern traffic needs. The city has not brought to bear on Congress the force that it could, nor has it spent its own money to effect this increasingly necessary work. To meet commercial needs the depth of the channel in the East River must be made at least 35 feet.

The traffic of the East River is enormous. Every obstruction in the channel or to access to the piers makes the handling of the freight on the river more hazardous and more expensive, thus affecting the interests of the whole city, and indeed, of the whole country. In the decade from 1871 to 1880 the value of the imports and exports of the port of New York as compared to those of the United States was 55.7 per cent; from 1881 to 1890, 55.1 per cent.; from 1891 to 1900, 49.6 per cent.; from 1901 to 1910, 45.9 per cent., and from 1911 to 1913, 46.2 per cent., showing a gradual decrease. This article, however, is designed more particularly to direct attention to the evil effect which these obstructions have on the development of the water front, especially on the East River, and the decrease in assessable values of neighboring property.



A glance at the map of the city will show that off the Battery are two shoals which interfere with ingress and egress of deep vessels to and from the shore. The larger and more important of these shoals will cost approximately $777,223, to remove, and the other $149,490.

Obstructions in the Hudson.

On the West Side from the neighborhood of Pier 48 at Perry Street to Pier 62 at 22nd street, is a bar which should be dredged so as to give access to the piers in that vicinity. This will cost $502,800. This is about the only work of the kind necessary to do on the West Side, but following the course of the East River from the Battery we find that on the Brooklyn side from Washington street to Hudson avenue, is a shoal along the shore which should be removed to give access to that locality. This will cost approximately $31,066.

East River Shoals.

On the Manhattan side between Gouverneur Slip and Corlears Hook is a shoal which interferes with traffic in the main channel. This would cost approximately $451,058 to remove. Further north in the middle of the East River running from a point about opposite Rivington street to a point opposite East 11th street is a bar which is very troublesome to river traffic for large boats. This would cost approximately $163,396 to remove.

HON. CYRUS C. MILLER.

Along the shore front from Grand street north to East 32d street is a shoal which prevents access for larger vessels to all the piers within that district, a distance of approximately a mile. This will cost $1,332,000 to remove. In the middle of the river likewise, between East 34th street and East 43d street, is a shoal which interferes greatly with the channel traffic. It will cost approximately $1,030,622 to remove. On the opposite side of the river from Newtown Creek to Hallet's Cove, along the Long Island City waterfront is a shoal which must be removed before the waterfront values can be increased. This would cost $1,966,928.

On the Manhattan side again, from East 63d street to East 85th street, along the shore front is a shoal which will cost $450,000 to remove.

Outside the pier-head line between East 91st street and East 93d street is a shoal which will cost $141,579 to remove. In the Hell Gate Channel between Astoria and Ward's Island are the rocks which the Government has been removing for years. The remaining obstructions are a great menace to the through traffic. They will cost $2,936,231 to remove. Further north between the Sunken Meadow and the Long Island shore in mid-channel is a shoal which will cost $2,768,311 to remove. East of Port Morris the dredging will cost approximately $1,124,719.

These items and some others might be classified as follows:

1. To provide a channel 35 feet deep at mean low water...	$8,616,780
2. To give access to wharves.	2,129,458
3. East Channel Blackwell's Island	2,652,281
Total	$13,398,519

They are for the work which the Federal Government undertakes in its development of the navigable waterways about the city. It might be contended that the city is not responsible for such work and should not trouble itself about it, but for every day that passes with such obstructions in the rivers about the city, a loss to the traffic of the Port of New York occurs which is too great when we consider the relatively small amount of the money required for the work. The State of New York contributes much to the national treasury and the city should be unflagging in its attempts to have Congress make the necessary appropriations. Colonel William M. Black, U. S. A. Engineer Corps and Engineer in charge of the First New York District has been insistent in urging the development of the port.

On the Harlem.

On the Harlem River it will be necessary to continue the Harlem Ship Canal from its present terminus east of the Johnson Foundry in a straight line west to the Hudson River. Arrangements are being made by the United States Government, the State of New York, and the City of New York for this work.

The pier of Highbridge is a great menace to traffic and must be removed, and the channel of the Bronx Kills which lies between Randall's Island and the Bronx shore, must be deepened.

An examination of the parts of the city on the East River where shoals prevent access to the piers will show that as modern deep draught vessels are unable to use the piers, the steamship lines have been moving to the North River. Factories and warehouses which naturally would accompany the steamships on the East River, are being abandoned and there is a very marked decrease in the values of property all along the river front on the East River from the Battery to 34th street.

Financial Considerations.

The amount of money necessary for the Federal Government to deepen the channels and for the city to secure access to the piers is insignificant compared to the tremendous increase in values which would follow immediately upon the development of the East River water front. This increase in tax revenue would relieve property in other parts of the city.

For the past twenty-five years the attention of the financeers of the county has been concentrated on the development of railroads. The opening of the Panama Canal and the opportunity for participation by the United States in the trade of the world will force upon the public mind the necessity of developing our shipping. The Port of New York must be made ready to accommodate the increased trade which will come through it as the gateway of the continent.

It is fair to the city to say that probably it would do its part of the work if the Federal Government would carry on the work herein shown to be so necessary, but it could do no more valuable work than to urge upon the Federal Government the immediate necessity of developing the port facilities of the city by the improvements herein enumerated.

FIRE TOWERS FOR TENEMENT HOUSES

Farewell to the Outside Fire-Escape—The New Style Exit is Built in a Recess of a Side Wall—A Fireproof Passage from Every Apartment

By ROBERT D. KOHN*

IT seems to me that the building and technical papers have not adequately noticed a real discovery. Some one has actually found a cheap and practical substitute for the ugly fire-escape that hangs on the front of almost every non-fireproof tenement house in the city. We have had improvements of other kinds, better material used in tenement house construction, better plans, less cheap imitation, less ornamentation; but the iron fire-escape was always with us.

In fact, the law seemed to relish its hideous and inefficient bulk, to demand it on the face of every building. It would be a slight exaggeration to say that the Tenement House law specifies the color of paint to be used on the iron, but it is certain that the miserable exterior iron fire-escape seemed to have a strangle-hold on the non-fireproof building of this character.

Now along comes Andrew J. Thomas and works out a plan whereby he applies the principle of the fire-tower to a 50-foot tenement house. Of course, the fire-tower has been used in big buildings for years. Philadelphia has received credit for its more recent discovery, though it was used in practically the same form twenty years earlier.

We had gone so far in this city as to discourage the use of the common fire-escape on buildings other than tenements, even to prohibit its construction. That was perfectly right from the fire-protection point of view.

The old type exterior fire-escape on high buildings is a source of danger rather than a means of safety. The Labor Law and the Fire Protection Law both favor the fire-tower stair as a means of escape. But this progressive step had not penetrated our cast-iron tenement house legislation.

Now the exterior stairs fire-escape has been practically worked out for a fifty-foot tenement. We heard at first that the Tenement House Department might graciously approve it! We hear now that it cannot do so. Even our intelligent Commissioner has not that discretion under this un-American law.

I am sending you some sketches of this scheme. It seems very simple and surely is very practical. The whole thing consists of an open fire-tower stairs built in a recess in the side wall of a tenement house in such a way that it gives direct and safe access to each apartment in the entire house and a fireproof exit passage out to the street at the foot of it.

This scheme would hardly increase the cost of any 50-foot house more than $500. It would greatly improve the appearance of the house and immensely improve its safety. I trust this letter will help to spread knowledge of this arrangement to your readers and to the public generally.

Need of a Board of Appraisers for Tenement Plans.

I understood Mr. Thomas was hopeful at first that he could get the approval of this device from the Tenement House Department. At last accounts an amendment to the law from Albany may be necessary! Its immediate acceptance would be assured if the Tenement House law were subject to a proper board of appeal composed of qualified technical men. Such a board would not hesitate in so evident an effort to provide an adequate and superior substitute to what is required by law.

The design and construction of public buildings and of great commercial structures are constantly being improved by the thoughtful study of our best architects. The cheaper tenement receives little skilled study. We must therefore be encouraged to find that the man who is responsible for suggesting this improvement is one who has deserved public praise on other ocasions. To a tenement built from his design was awarded one of the Tenement House Medals of the New York Chapter, A. I. A., in 1912; and to another one of his houses was awarded an honorable mention in 1914. As the appearance of our city is most influenced by improvements in the design of our tenement houses, such progress is of public interest.

LOW BUILDINGS MORE PROFITABLE

Space Above Second Story Rarely Pays More Than Interest on Investment Plus Depreciation, Says a Big Operator

The new business building on the Astor House site will be but seven stories high. Each passing year increases the number of large property owners who share the conviction that tall buildings are less profitable proportionately than low ones. William E. Harmon, head of Wood, Harmon & Co., in a letter which he wrote not long ago to the Board of Estimate, said:

"To my mind, it has been thoroughly demonstrated that the space above the second story rarely, if ever, pays more than interest on the cost, plus depreciation of the building, and bears no part of the burden of the land. A good many years ago we decided, after the carefullest study, to construct no buildings over two stories in height unless we had a responsible tenant who would pay a rent sufficiently high to amortize the upper stories within the period of the lease. We build such structures on land ranging as high as $30 or $40 a foot, and have never seen any reason to regret our decision; in fact, the precedent we set has either been followed by, or simultaneously adopted by such men as, in my opinion, represent the shrewdest real estate investors in the country.

"Our policy, it must be admitted, is extreme, but so far far it has proven sound, for while I have been an opponent of high building investment for many years, each year increases the number of large property owners who share our conviction. From the point of view of the city the most serious effect from high buildings, is the menace on surrounding property. If a limitation were established that would keep all the buildings to a moderate level, practically all available space would be improved.

"I think there are less than a dozen high buildings in the United States ten years old that are paying 6 per cent. on the investment, with a fair amortizing sinking fund, and as all possible increment is destroyed when such a building is constructed, 6 per cent. is a very low return to expect from the investment point of view. I think it will also be found, that such buildings as are paying in this country, are either in the extreme West, possess an exceptional control over tenants desiring space, or were built during a period of low costs."

INDUSTRIAL BOARD'S GREED FOR POWER

The Recodified Law Gives It Authority Over Business Methods and Personal Conduct, as Well as Over Construction of Factories and Stores

THE powers of the Industrial Board of the State Department of Labor will be greatly enlarged if the recodification of the Factory Laws, which the State Factory Investigating Commission has prepared, is approved by the Legislature and the Governor. The new code is embodied in a report to the Legislature, signed by the majority members, with Senator Wagner as chairman and Abram I. Elkus as counsel. What purports to be a recodification amounts in parts to new law, and more drastic than the old; whereas the public had been led by official assurances to expect that the code would be moderated.

The general effect is to intrench the Industrial Board so securely in the statute law, and to arm it so completely as to constitute it practically the sole arbiter over the construction, alteration equipment and maintenance of factory buildings and mercantile establishments in the entire State of New York.

To the Commissioner of Labor is given the unique prerogative of passing upon appeals from his own orders, inasmuch as he is constituted the chairman of the Industrial Board, which is the only court an aggrieved property owner may appeal to under the law. The board, being generally directed by the new law "to provide reasonable and adequate protection to the lives, health and safety of all persons employed in and frequenting factories and mercantile establishments," it is empowered to make rules in accordance with this policy.

Extraordinary Authority.

That is, it may make, amend and repeal rules for sanitation in factories and stores; also rules for the arrangement and guarding of machinery, the storing and keeping of property and articles, the methods and operations by which trades and occupations may be conducted and rules for the conduct of employers and employees, as well as rules for the construction, alteration and maintenance of all such places.

The rules may be made to apply either to existing establishments and buildings or to those to be erected in the future, as the board wills. No such authority over fellow men and business interests was ever before conferred in the American Republic, it is declared.

A Minority Report.

Laurence M. D. McGuire, as a member of the State Factory Investigating Commission, has presented to the Legislature a minority report on the proposed recodification of the Labor Law. Mr. McGuire differs radically from his colleagues. He recommends, among other things, that the principle of Home Rule be approved so as to leave to cities of the first class jurisdiction over their own buildings.

The report is in part as follows:

"A majority of the New York State Factory Investigating Commission presented to your honorable body on February 15, 1915, a report of their work for your consideration together with a bill 'recodifying the labor law.'

"As a member of the commission I carefully studied the reports submitted and while in the main I agree that the report fairly states the work done by the commission I cannot concur in all the conclusions, and I more particularly dissent to the recommendations as to recodify the labor law and as to the consolidation of various inspection departments in the city of New York.

"It may be that my close connection with business enables me to see matters affecting labor and capital in a different light than that in which my associates view them. I feel, personally, that sufficient consideration has not been given to the serious disturbance of all branches of legitimate business which has resulted through excessive governmental interference and regulation.

"It has also seemed to me that, apparently my colleagues believed that the end justified the means. The safety, convenience and comfort of labor, desirable it is true, appears to them to be absolutely essential regardless of whether the methods employed to obtain such safety, convenience and comfort would seriously affect business and possibly make it unproductive, discourage investment, and lead to the ultimate unemployment of labor.

Business Opportunities.

"There are many who believe that opportunity can no longer be grasped by the laboring man and that his condition is a serious one. These people believe that the great combinations of capital have made it impossible for the laboring man to rise from the ranks and become an employer, and to them there is, apparently, an impassable gulf between the employer and the laborer. My viewpoint and belief are different. I believe that labor has as many opportunities to rise to-day as it ever had and that the future of this country holds just as much promise for the individual as it ever did.

"It has seemed to me that the very objects for which the commission is striving will be defeated by the laws they seek to enact. If unnecessary and burdensome regulations are placed upon the employer they will ultimately affect injuriously the laborer.

"It is, therefore, my opinion that while the rights of labor should be safeguarded to the utmost, it is important that nothing should be done to discourage the employer or to impair seriously his investment, for this would cause ultimate unemployment and consequent hardship and distress.

Building Operations Discouraged.

"As an instance, the enactment of rigid and drastic regulation as the result of what is known as the Asch fire in New York City has had the effect of seriously impeding building operations in that community. While it cannot be positively shown that the measures enacted as a result of the agitation which followed this fire, excellent though these measures may be, have resulted in saving a single life, their rigid enforcement has seriously discouraged building operations in the city.

"Last year's record and that of the year previous were lower than the record of the year of the Asch fire. It is true that part of this loss can be ascribed to the general business depression, yet, the percentage of loss in Greater New York was, I believe, larger than in other cities throughout the country where the same business depression existed, but where the investor and builder were not harrassed and interfered with by unnecessary regulations. In consequence of this slack in building operations thousands of workmen are without employment and it would be difficult to accurately estimate the privation and hardship which has resulted therefrom."

Specific Objections.

Objecting specifically to the report of his colleagues, Mr. McGuire says:

"1. That it is not a recodification but is a revision of the labor law.

"2. That the proposed additions to the law are drastic and in many instances unnecessary and if enacted business and real property interests will be seriously affected.

"3. That the proposed bill does not give sufficient consideration to the request and suggestions of witnesses who testified before the commission in relation to the requirements for factories and mercantile establishments.

"4. That the enlarging of the definition of the term 'factory' so that it will include almost every building in the State except those used exclusively for dwelling purposes, is contrary to the purpose for which the law was intended.

"5. The attempt to relieve conditions in reference to structural changes in buildings, by stating that provisions of the law will not apply where only four persons are employed in manufacturing, is frustrated by the clause which gives to the Industrial Board power to order any changes which it may require, regardless of the number of people employed.

Perplexity of Owners.

"This change would make it impossible for an owner to know from one day to another what the Industrial Board may demand.

"6. That the bill allows the construction and alteration provisions of the law to be varied by a board, whose members are admittedly not experts in building construction.

"7. That the new provision of the bill to make "the law flexible in its application" gives the same board the right to specify building material and forms of construction of buildings. It is unwise to vest this enormous responsibility in persons who are not experts.

"In New York City this work is done by building experts in the employ of the city and their work is reviewable by a Board of Examiners, composed of experts on building construction.

"The transfer of this jurisdiction I believe would be a serious mistake.

"8. That the provision which makes 'an agent in charge of property' criminally liable for failing to do something which he may be unauthorized to do is unfair, and I believe unconstitutional.

"9. That the provision requiring the employment of not less than 125 inspectors regardless of the work to be done is not in accord with business principles of economy.

New York City Should Be Exempted.

"10. That the bill should exempt cities of the first class, which maintain building departments or bureaus from its provisions in all matters which relate to the construction or alteration of buildings. This exemption might be extended to other cities maintaining efficient building bureaus or departments. In New York City there are building bureaus in each borough, the heads of which are required to be builders or architects of at least ten years' experience and the employees in these bureaus are experts in building construction. The efficiency of the bureaus and the capability of the employees are conceded facts.

"The requirements in New York City are of high standard. Health and life are adequately safeguarded. It would seem to be unfair to take away from New York City and other cities of the first class the jurisdiction over the construction of its own buildings and place it in the State Department which is not as well equipped to pass upon work involving vast sums of money yearly."

VITAL LEGISLATION PENDING AT ALBANY

An Annual Mortgage Tax Proposed by Bankers in Retaliation for Repeal of Secured Debt Tax—Lockwood Bill Passes Senate Fight Over Instalment Payments

THE bill to relieve New York City property owners from over-regulation by an over-manned municipal government passed the State Senate with only three votes in opposition. So decided a victory was unexpected, in view of the opposition from City Hall. The understanding is that the Assembly will also pass the bill, and the question will then be squarely up to the Mayor, who has been standing out for a more centralized form of administration.

Secured Debt Tax.

The bill introduced in the Assembly by Mr. Talmage (Int. No. 1605, printed No. 1957), which repeals the present secured debt tax on certain securities and places a tax of twenty cents per hundred dollars on various kinds of intangible property, was opposed by the New York Tax Reform Association and the national banking interests at the hearing at Albany. The new tax will apply to the same class of securities that now come under the Secured Debt Law. These are chiefly bonds and mortgages located in other States, and the State and municipal bonds of other States and counties. The bill also subjects to taxation all shares in corporations incorporated under the laws of other States. The estimated amount of revenue is $10,000,000.

The bill is substantially the measure which has been advocated by the Real Estate Association of the State of New York and other real property interests. The bill exempts from its provisions corporations which pay taxes to the State under Article 9 of the Tax Law. Every owner or custodian of property taxable under its provisions is required to make an annual return to the State Comptroller. The Record and Guide, of March 6, contained the report of an interview with President Morgenthau of the State R. E. Association, outlining reasons for this measure.

Annual Mortgage Tax Opposed.

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests has registered a strong objection to the passage of any bill which will impose an annual tax on mortgages, thereby repealing the Recording Tax Law which provides for a tax of fifty cents for each one hundred dollars upon any obligation based on real property. This law was passed in 1906. The tax is imposed upon every mortgage at its creation, after which the mortgage is exempted from further taxation. A recent statement issued by the Investment Bankers' Association in opposition to the passage of the Talmage Bill now before the State Legislature which proposes an annual tax upon all debts, except those upon New York State real property, was to the effect that an amendment should be made to this bill providing that mortgages should be taxed equally with other debts if continued in force after maturity. It was claimed that the bill is unequal in its operation in that it favors the real estate interests at the expense of the owners of other bonds. Therefore it was urged by the Investment Bankers' Association that mortgages be taxed at the same rate as proposed for other forms of bonded indebtedness.

The Advisory Council feels that all real estate associations and property owners should communicate immediately with their representatives at Albany and with the Governor in opposition to any such proposed tax on mortgages.

"The incident of such a tax," says a statement from the council, "would fall immediately on the borrower on bond and mortgage. With the increasing city budget and the possibility of a direct State tax, the burdens upon property owners will become intolerable, if the Recording Tax Law is repealed. While the delegates to the Constitutional Convention are discussing an investigation into New York City finances simultaneously picturing the deplorable condition of New York real estate owners, as a result of over-taxation and over-regulation, it is difficult to understand that the members of the Legislature should seriously contemplate the passage of any law which would impose increased taxation upon these property owners."

About Instalment Payments.

Real estate operators and developers are divided over the bill introduced at Albany by Assemblyman Oliver in the lower house and by Senator Simpson in the upper house, making it a misdemeanor for suburban land sellers to use any of the instalment payments made by a buyer of real property until the seller has given a deed to the buyer. The proposed amendment to the penal law reads as follows: "Instalments paid on purchase of real property. Whenever any real property shall be sold under an instalment contract, all moneys paid by the purchaser on account of the purchase price of such property shall be held in trust by the seller, for the benefit of the purchaser until all the liens of encumbrances upon the property purchased shall be satisfied, or a deed to such property has been accepted by the purchaser. Upon default of the seller in giving a deed as agreed by him, to the purchaser, he must on demand forthwith return the instalments to the purchaser and upon his failure to do so he shall be guilty of a misdemeamor."

Opponents of the bill say it is unconstitutional, in that it would restrict the power of contract, and that it would harass mortgagors. When suburban property is bought on time mortgages remain until the purchaser pays the total price, whereupon the seller obtains a release of the mortgage. Few, if any, of the suburban developers, it is alleged, could afford to pay for releases until final payments are made, and they would be exposing themselves to the wiles of tricky buyers if they did.

A correspondent writes: "It is asserted that as the bill is worded, an unscrupulous buyer might immediately upon making his last payment demand a deed free from the mortgage. Every real estate owner knows that it takes time for the developer and builder to get a release. It is asserted that if this bill becomes law a purchaser could upon his demand and failure to receive his instalments back immediately obtain a warrant in criminal proceedings against the seller. Many developers assert that the effect of such a law would be to seriously retard the development and improvement of Nassau, Westchester, Rockland and Richmond counties and that it would inure to the advantage of suburban New Jersey and Connecticut entirely."

Another correspondent writes: "Although framed to eliminate dishonesty, in instalment contracts, it is so drafted that its purpose would not be accomplished. At a time when over regulation is harrassing property owners any attempt to augment such conditions should be opposed by them. Undoubtedly the intention behind this bill is good, but it is questionable whether such regulatory measures should be enacted into law at the present time."

The Governor has signed the Simpson-Lockwood bill which permits the use of cement blocks in the construction of hallway partitions in tenement houses, where only terra cotta is now used. The Smith aqueduct tax bill (printed No. 2030) has been advanced to third reading in the Assembly.

New Assembly Bills.

A. 1663 (Macdonald). Authorizing the commission on new prisons to construct a new prison plant on the Wingdale prison site, in Dutchess county. The commission may modify in such respects as it deems advisable the plans and specifications selected by the board of award as its first choice for such new prison plant, subject to the approval of the state architect. The new prison is to be known as the "Harlem" prison. Prison labor may be employed in the construction of the prison. $300,000 is appropriated.

New Senate Bills.

S. 1402 (Walker). Amending the Tax Law (Subdiv. 7 of Section 4), by striking out the provision exempting from taxation the real property of a charitable, benevolent or eleemosynary corporation, not in use by the corporation, if the erection of a building or improvement on such property is contemplated in good faith. To Tax. & Ret. Committee.

S. 1404 (Walker). Amending the Greater New York Charter (Section 926), by providing that if a tax on personal property shall remain unpaid on August 15th succeeding the receipt by the tax receiver of the tax roll, he may collect such unpaid personal tax by distress and sale. The present law provides for distress and sale in case of nonpayment of tax on the 15th day of January succeeding the receipt of the tax rolls. To Cities Committee.

S 1405 (Walker). Amending the Tax Law (Section 12), by providing for the assessment of all the capital stock of a corporation at its actual value. The present law provides that all over 10 per cent of its capital stock shall be so assessed. The value of such a corporation's real estate is first to be deducted. The present law provides for the deduction of the assessed value of such real estate. To Tax & Ret. Com.

S. 1418 (Spring). Amending the Labor Law (New subdiv. 5 of Section 51), by authorizing the industrial board to suspend enforcement of any mandatory requirement of the Labor Law, or any rule or regulation adopted by the board, if there shall be practical difficulties or unnecessary hardship in carrying out such requirement or rule, and if the spirit of the Labor Law be observed and public safety secured, until the next regular session of the Legislature when the board shall make written recommendations for the repeal, modification or other alteration of such requirement or rule.

S. 1443 (Sage). Amending the Executive Law (New sections 77, 78 and 79), by establishing a State Bureau of Standards in the office of the state engineer and surveyor.

S. 1454 (Boylan). Empowering the Public Service Commission of the First District to adopt plans and profiles showing changes in the railroad and railroad structures, yards, stations and terminal facilities owned or operated by the New York Central and Hudson River R. R. Co., in the section between the northern boundary of the city and Battery Park, as may be necessary to discontinue the use at grade of the streets within such district. Such plans and profiles shall require the railroad company to make such changes, and shall require the city of New York to permit such changes, as in the judgment of the Public Service Commission may be deemed necessary.

SUBSTRUCTURES IN QUEENS

President Connolly Outlines Plan to Care for Locations of Pipes and Ducts in Borough

BOROUGH President Connolly is about to submit to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment a plan for standard locations of all substructures in the Borough of Queens within city streets. The plan has been worked out by the Substructure Division of the Topographical Bureau, after considerable study and consultation with all public service corporations operating within the borough, and numerous city officials.

Heretofore it has been the practice of the company installing substructures in the street to select any convenient position in which to locate their pipes or ducts, thereby monopolizing and wasting, unnecessarily, so much space that when later comers began to construct their lines it could be done only at considerable expense.

Matter Considered.

This matter was considered in Manhattan some years ago, when the first subway was built, and it was proposed to construct pipe galleries on the sides of the subway. When the preliminary plans were drawn, it was found that they interfered with existing vault spaces under sidewalks and added considerable to the cost of the subway, and were therefore abandoned. This bureau considered the proposition of pipe galleries for the streets in Queens, and came to the conclusion that the great expense involved would be greatly out of proportion to the immediate advantage.

The first substructures built in a street are placed there when only a few houses exist and property would be of little value. A pipe gallery built at this period would cost more than the total value of all the real estate along the street. If the pipe gallery were built after the territory had grown up, it could be done only at considerable expense and would necessitate an entire change of existing substructures; so it was therefore decided that the practical solution was to assign definite spaces or lanes within the street limits for each individual city or public service substructures.

The plan proposes that a certain space or "lane" be reserved for each public utility, so that even the last comer will find an unobstructed route for the construction of his line. The plan shows a standard layout for a street upon which there is or which may have a double car track line and on streets that have no double car track line. According to the ruling of the Board of Estimate, any street occupied by a double car track line must have a roadway at least forty feet in width, and it is fair to assume that no street under sixty feet in width will be occupied by a double car track line.

Unknown Problems.

As it is impossible to determine in advance which streets wider than sixty feet will contain a double car track line, it is necessary to work on the assumption that all streets more than sixty feet in width may possibly have a double car track line; therefore these streets will be given a substructure treatment that will permit the building of a double car track line. It being impossible to anticipate where the rapid transit subways will be built, this matter will be entirely ignored, especially as subways are now built with their roofs or top surface at least five feet below the surface of the street; and, as they are always placed on wide avenues, this will not cause as great a change as might be supposed.

The matter of money saved by the adoption of this arrangement has been considered, and a comparison made with the Borough of Brooklyn, which is more thoroughly developed than Queens and is about two-thirds as large in area; and it is fair to assume that the Borough of Queens will grow somewhat on the lines that the Borough of Brooklyn has grown. In other words, it will be largely residential, with its factory areas near the river fronts. It has been found that at the present time the Borough of Brooklyn installs, exclusive of sewers, about $1,300,000,000 worth of substructures each year. Representatives of the different corporations laying mains and duct lines in Brooklyn have estimated that such a standard substructure arrangement would save their companies in this work between ten and twenty per cent. of the cost of construction each year. This would mean a saving of between $100,000 and $200,000 a year. This saving would mainly affect corporations, but it would also interest the taxpayer by lessening the cost of construction, whereby the price charged for water, gas or electricity could be reduced. The mutilation of pavement, moreover, would be greatly reduced by a systematic location of substructures.

President Connolly's Opinion.

Referring to the subject, President Connolly said recently: "In a suburban street in the Borough of Queens, after a few houses had been built, the first substructure to be installed would be water mains. These mains would be placed in their assigned lane in a permanent location. An adequately sized pipe would be put in that would supply the street for all time. Later, the gas main would be placed in the street in its assigned location. Then the sewer would be built. Perhaps these structures would be all that would be built for several years; but the telephone company and electric light and power company would know that there was a lane assigned to them in which to place their substructures, which would be kept free of all obstructions.

"As the city finally grew up solid, high pressure water mains for fire purposes would be put in; the location for these has also been reserved. Other spaces would be preserved for pneumatic mail tubes, steam pipes or other public utilities. In other words, the underground portion of the street would grow on definitely planned lines in the same manner that a city should grow above ground, on systematically planned lines.

To Submit Map.

"The maps showing this standard arrangement would be submitted for approval to the Board of Consulting Engineers, City of New York, and, after meeting their approval, will be brought before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for their recommendation. After this step it would be part of the duty of the Substructure Division, under President Connolly, to see that this system was carried out.

"This method of standardizing the location for substructures has never been used before in the city of New York, and every engineer in Manhattan sees the necessity for such a thing but realizes that Manhattan has grown too far in the haphazard way to start such a system at this late date. It is my idea that as Queens is a young and partly undeveloped borough to profit by the errors made in the older city, and see Queens Borough, in substructure matters, grow along regulated lines.

"Serious damage from explosions has occurred, due to workmen accidentally breaking through a duct line, the location of which was not definitely known. The dangers from explosions, due to gas mains coming in contact with high tension power lines, will be greatly minimized, under the proposed standard layout, as they will be placed a safe distance apart.

"In case of an accident, due to a break, blowout of a water or gas line, or a short circuit in an electric line, a shut-off or repair could probably be made more quickly, as workmen, firemen, policemen, etc., would be more familiar with the location of the pipes, gates, switches, etc., due to the standard arrangement."

ARCHITECTURAL PROJECTIONS.

A New Ordinance Tentatively Drafted Follows Manhattan Practice.

Ex-Supt. Rudolph P. Miller and the Committee of the Board of Aldermen engaged in revising the Building Code, have prepared a preliminary draft of an ordinance relative to projections of buildings beyond the building line, for the City of New York.

The new article embodies the present practice in the Borough of Manhattan with respect to encroachments. The other boroughs have substantially adopted the Manhattan practice, though in the Borough of the Bronx it seems to be felt that the permissible encroachments are too liberal.

The ordinance specifies in detail what projections outside the building line will be permitted and under what conditions. It permits the continuance of existing encroachments until the space occupied by them is required for public use, when the Board of Aldermen or the Board of Estimate may order the removal of such encroachments. It also provides that any permission to construct outside the building line is revocable.

The ordinance also contemplates changes in other parts of the Code of Ordinances to make the different provisions with respect to projections consistent. The projections that are definitely referred to in the ordinance are as follows:

Areas and Steps.

Areas are prohibited outside the building line unless covered by a grating or incombustible material of sufficient strength to carry the pedestrian traffic. When so covered they are permitted to project as heretofore 1-15 of the width of the street, but not more than 5 feet.

Courtyards inclosed with railings or balustrades are not permitted to come outside the building line except on certain park streets.

Steps are limited to a projection of 2½ per cent. of the width of the street, and not more than 18 inches, provided they are placed between ornamental columns, pilasters or cheek pieces at least 3 feet high. The maximum width of such steps is limited to 20 per cent. of the actual street frontage when such frontage is 25 feet or more, and to 5 feet when such frontage is less than 25 feet. An exception is made for certain streets under the jurisdiction of the Park Department.

Ornamental projections, such as columns and pilasters are limited to 2½ per cent. of the width of the street and not more than 2 feet in any case.

Balconies.

Balconies of an ornamental character may project not more than 5 per cent. of the width of the street with a maximum projection of 3 feet, but no balcony shall be less than 10 feet above the sidewalk.

Mouldings, belt courses, cornices, lintels, and similar projections of a decorative character, are limited to 1¼ per cent. of the width of the street and 10 inches as a maximum; except that the main cornice at or near the top of any building more than 20 feet high may project 5 per cent. of the width of the street with a maximum limit of 5 feet.

Base courses not exceeding 5 feet in height above the sidewalk shall not project beyond the building line more than 1¼ per cent. of the width of the street and not more than 10 inches.

Rustications and quoins are limited to 4 inches.

"Save the Tenement House Law."—N. Y. Tribune.

Nobody is attacking the law. Read the letter of Mr. Kirkus on the next page.

Property owners don't mind being called "land speculators" by Socialists and such.

With every taxpayer and business organization in the whole city praying for relief from over-regulation of buildings, through the means provided by the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bills, the issue ought to be very clear to the State Legislature and the path of duty unmistakable.

Co-operation between the officers of the municipal government and the taxpayers should not have to proceed all from one side. It strikes us that most of the compromises that have been made between what the citizen feels is owing to him and what the administration is willing to concede him have so far come from the citizen.

If there are certain departments which want to continue sending around inspectors to see that "good housekeeping" is maintained in facories, stores and tenements, that no rubbish is allowed to collect, that the fire-escapes are kept clear and the common rules of sanitation observed, there is nothing in the pending Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill to hinder them.

There wouldn't be the slightest excuse for licensing any mechanical trade in New York City if there were not so many incompetent and untrustworthy fellows trying to impose upon the public. The alien labor troubles are not confined to the subway alone. New York City is confronted by economic questions that other cities have no conception of. One of these days the whole question of open shop or closed shop (with a license for every trade or license for none) is going to be taken up and settled once for all.

The State Constitutional Convention.

The duty of the State Constitutional Convention, which this week assembled at the State capital, is to revise the fundamental law of the State. The constitution of a State is its supreme law so far as the authority of the State goes. All laws passed by the State Legislature must be in line with the constitution and not transgress it, or the courts will pronounce them null and void. The last previous constitutional convention met on May 8, 1894, and continued until September 29. Over four hundred amendments were considered but only thirty-three were submitted to the people for their approval at the general election in November of that year. All the amendments adopted by the present convention will likewise be submitted to the people.

One of the important questions that will come before the convention will be whether the privilege of voting shall be extended. This will bring up the opposite question, if it would not be better for the State to restrict rather than extend the privilege. There is nothing in the Constitution of the United States to hinder any State from excluding people from voting on the ground that they hold no property, or cannot read or write, or are otherwise unfit. There is a growing sentiment that, with immigration pouring in upon us as it is, the voting privilege should be limited to those who have a stake in the country. If a city is to be largely a charity institution, is it sound policy to let it be run by the beneficiaries?

Another subject that will be considered by the convention will be whether we should have a short ballot instead of the long one we are now using—and consequently fewer officers to vote for on election day? A phase of the question is, Why should the electors be asked to vote for a Chief Engineer and Surveyor, a State Treasurer, a Secretary of State, a Commissioner of Public Works, and other executives, when these could be appointed by the Governor and made to form his cabinet, according to the plan of the national government at Washington? If the ballot cannot be taken from the ignorant and shiftless, it can at least be made less dangerous in their hands.

The simplification of the State government will be the object of many suggested amendments. There is a great waste of taxes by city governments throughout the country. Our governmental machinery is so complex with its checks and balances that it is difficult to prevent the multiplication of needless offices for the sake of the salaries to be derived. Scores of cities have turned to the commission form of government, some have appointed city business managers, and many other cities are searching for a plan of government that will save their responsible citizens from the grafter, the socialistic uplifter and the spender. The convention will be asked to restore local authority, to lessen the opportunities for overmuch law-making, to reduce the number of representatives in legislative bodies, and in short to arrange for less extravagant and more efficient forms of local administration. The Legislature's power to amend the charters of cities should in some degree be curbed by a constitutional provision, and the seat of local government therein kept where it belongs—at home. Moreover, legislative bodies have grown to such a size as to be unwieldy, and aldermen, assemblymen, congressmen, counting only as so many voting units in party plans, are little more under present conditions than business agents for their respective districts.

Another big question before the convention will be that of taxation. The chief tax burdens fall upon real estate. While the cost of government remained small and prosperity continued, the owners didn't much mind. But now when so much institutional real estate and personal property is exempt and the cost of everything is being heaped upon the houseowner, his strength is giving out, and ownership in real estate is consequently being discouraged. The convention will no doubt undertake to reconstruct the system of taxation. Other things that it will be asked to do is to adopt measures that will put in operation the principles of the Initiative, Referendum and Recall; that will reform judicial procedure, that will introduce system in city budget making, that will control the granting of franchises and regulate public service corporations.

Never in the history of the State of New York was there a time when a constitutional convention could do more for the people. Seven years of business depression have raised formidable doubts in the public mind as to the sufficiency of the organic law. Unquestionably a large part of the economic discomfort follows from over-regulation, a term which could serve as a general designation for most of the subjects the convention will consider under other names. Judging from recent public addresses of Senator Root and other members, the convention is or will be fully alive to this fact, and there is very good reason to believe that there will be a decided change for the better in governmental affairs as the result of the work of this convention.

Improving Virgin Soil.

So little virgin soil still remains unimproved in Manhattan that a building movement of size affecting this class of realty cannot help but attract particular attention. During the last two years many multi-family structures have been erected in the Fort Washington avenue section. Of recent months the south section has come into special prominence. The large holdings of the estate of Loyal L. Smith were disposed of to operators, who in turn resold to speculative builders for apartment house improvement. At the present time, what will be one of the largest six-story structures in the city is about to be commenced, and provision has been made for the housing of more than fifty families. The entire operation involves about $1,000,000. The location is admirably adapted to this class of construction, and its success is fairly well assured, if other buildings of like character in the immediate neighborhood can be taken as criterions. Topographically the section has every advantage. The land is high; expansive views over the Hudson River and Palisades can be obtained; transit facilities are good, and shops adequate for the immediate needs of the householder are in the vicinity. When the building movement farther north on Fort Washington avenue, around 181st street, started, some years ago, the Record and Guide dwelt at length upon the advantages of the locality and drew attention to the fact that Fort Washington avenue was destined to be a residential thoroughfare. At that time a large quantity of property came into the market, through the auction sale of the holdings of the Fort Washington and Buena Vista syndicates. Practically all these parcels were immediately improved, and have been uniformly successful, though obstacles had to be overcome, principal among which was the disinclination of people to go "so far north." Several factors served to hinder the continued development of the thoroughfare. The baseball ground at 167th street was a barrier to the south, and to the north the fact that estates and individuals held large tracts precluded the possibility of expansion in that direction. The first of these objections has been removed, but the other still holds good. Messrs. C. K. G. Billings, James Gordon Bennett and several others are the owners of large tracts which are not on the market, and it would seem as though north of 181st street the district would remain in its present state for many years to come. To the south, however, it should be only a comparatively short time before Fort Washington avenue is solidly built up. Never before has there been such a demand for small apartments as exists today. Every year business encroachments crowd out residents, who are forced to seek quarters elsewhere, and the opening of the new section should ease the situation in no little measure.

Conditions for Local Improvements.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The question of determining the urgency of local improvements requested by the local boards, has been the subject of considerable discussion in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. At their meeting on February 26 this board adopted conditions, the existence of any one or more of which would justify the treatment of a local improvement as sufficiently urgent to warrant its immediate authorization. These conditions are as follows:

1. Where it is necessary for improving sanitary conditions.
2. Where it is needed to eliminate danger or insure the safety of public travel.
3. Where substantial improvement of the abutting property by the owners is clearly shown to be contingent upon the proposed improvement and will follow it.
4. Where the street to be improved will serve as a needed connecting link for traffic.
5. Where the improvement is favored by the owners of 50 per cent. or more of the abutting property.
6. Where 50 per cent. or more of the abutting property has been improved, the percentage so improved to be determined not by the existence of single buildings on large plots but by allowing for each building a plot of frontage suitable to its character.

To insure prompt consideration, property owners are requested to make every effort to meet one or more of the above conditions, and in submitting new petitions I would especially advise that the signatures of a majorty of the owners directly affected be obtained before presenting same to the local board.

DOUGLAS MATHEWSON,
President of the Borough of the Bronx.

Land Title Registration.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I desire to call the attention of the public, through the columns of your paper, to the fact that there are now pending in Albany certain amendments to the Torrens land title registration law which are, or should be, of great interest to property owners throughout the State.

We have had for several years a Torrens title registration law in this State, but the law as it reads at present is, and has been proved to be absolutely impracticable, and the public have failed to take advantage of it. Consequently, great advantages under the land title registration which have been enjoyed by the property owners in the States of Illinois, Massachusetts and others, have been denied us here.

There are, at this time, pending before the Judiciary Committee of the State Senate, certain amendments which propose to render the present law more practicable, and after having thoroughly examined the proposed amendments contained in the various measures, I am convinced that the bill known as the Hamilton-Fertig bill is the most practicable.

The opposition to the bill at the hearing at Albany on March 30 was not at all convincing. Even such a well known authority as Professor Reeves dwelt only on glittering generalities when he stated that the Boylan-Ahearn bill furnished the amendments necessary to properly correct the present act so as to make it practicable; and all of the arguments of the opponents of the bill, especially relating to the question of jurisdiction of the courts, and relating to the waiver of objections by parties who default, emphasized my impression that the Hamilton-Fertig bill is really necessary, because these gentlemen, in their argument, quoted the decisions of the courts showing that the courts have been always jealous of the rights of property owners and have always protected them; and this bill, in providing for the "Title Part" of the Supreme Court for the purpose of placing the actual control of the workings of this law under the "Title Part" of the Supreme Court, recognized the efficacy of the court in the protection of property interests.

The objections, therefore, which are directed by the opponents of the bill to the amendment relating to the jurisdiction of the court, and to the default of parties served, overlooked the jealous interest of the court in property rights of individuals, as these amendments make no changes except those which provide for the exercise of the absolute and sound discretion of the court.

Aside from the technically legal amendments to the present bill, which are intended to meet the objections raised by the court in the various proceedings conducted under the law, three features of the proposed bill, which especially appeal to me as necessary for the practical workings of the bill, are:

(1) The compulsory assurance fund provided for by the amendment to section 426;

(2) The inability of the property owner to withdraw a parcel of property which has been duly registered under the Torrens law, as provided for in the amendment to section 434; and

(3) The amendment to section 374 of the bill, which provides for the appointment of official examiners who will be in reality official examiners of title.

As to the amendment to section 404 of the bill relative to the use of the residue of the capital and surplus monies of domestic insurance companies above its capital and deposits, and regarding the investment of savings banks, it is my opinion that this amendment, instead of being compulsory, should be changed so as not to prevent the investment of the aforesaid monies in bonds and mortgages on real property whose title may not have been registered under the Torrens act; but I do believe that the law should so read that investments in bonds and mortgages on real property, whose title had been registered under the Torrens law, could be made without leaving the question as to whether or not the investment could or might be made to the discretion of any individual or individuals.

Believing that the Hamilton-Fertig bill with the slight change as above suggested is the best measure pending in the Legislature for a practical working of the Torrens law, I hope it will receive the hearty support of the real property owners of the State of New York.

EDWARD POLAK,
Register, County of the Bronx.

The Real Joker in the Mayor's Opposition to the Lockwood-Ellenbogen Bill.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The editorials and articles in the papers regarding the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill are so incorrect that they must have been inspired by parties who wish to befog and misrepresent the facts to the public.

No one reading the bill can fail to notice that as regards tenement houses it relates only to the physical construction of new buildings and the physical alteration of old ones, and the transfer of jurisdiction to the Bureau of Buildings. Any change in the mandatory Tenement House Law in relation to said construction is impossible. The bill provides (section 410, page 14) that plans and specifications filed with a Bureau of Buildings for the construction of a tenement house shall be subject to the inspection of the Tenement House Commissioner, his deputy or other subordinate designated by him for such purpose; and within five days after the approval by the Superintendent of Buildings, the Tenement House Commissioner may appeal from said order of approval to the Board of Standards and Appeals (which is to be appointed by the Mayor) and pending such appeal such plans shall be deemed disapproved (see section 406 B, pages 10-11).

The Mayor and everyone interested knows that the opposition to the bill arises only from the fact that the advocates of it will not stand for the Mayor's pet scheme of organizing an entirely new department.

The Mayor has agreed to approve the bill if we will take from it the Tenement House Department entirely, and also take away the present jurisdiction of the Building Bureaus over tenements and create in the Tenement House Department a new Building Department with the enormous increase in expense that this would occasion.

He has said at other times that he desires economy and retrenchment, and yet at this time he desires to create under his own supervision and appointment a new bureau with experts, inspectors, etc., for tenements, when our Building Bureaus are competent to supervise the erection of a Woolworth or an Equitable building, or buildings like the Bush terminal stores.

Because we will not stand for this the Mayor claims the bill is "vicious," and that it is trying "to restore the shocking conditions of life in the tenement houses a generation ago," etc., etc. Let the facts be known—they are capable of proof. We are hiding nothing. Can the Mayor, Mr. Vieller and Mr. Binkerd say as much?

It is claimed that the Mayor said in a lecture at Columbia University yesterday, that the bill is a "vicious piece of legislation," that the "land speculators" are sponsors of this measure to "raid the Tenement House Department." Are The Merchants' Association, the Brooklyn League and such organizations "land speculators" or "raiders?"

His further statement that it divests the Tenement House Commissioner of the power to see that adequate light, air and exit facilities are provided, is absolutely disproved by the foregoing quotations from the bill.

He also stated that inspectorial and regulatory functions now exercised by the Tenement House, Fire, Water, License, Health and State Labor Departments are transferred to the Building Superintendents of the Boroughs. The bill says (Section 406 A), "The jurisdiction now vested in a department, board, bureau or officer conferred by section 406 on a superintendent of buildings shall not interfere with the jurisdiction of such department, board, bureau or officer over the occupancy and use of a building after construction or the inspection thereof in respect of matters other than as specified in such section."

Why does not the Mayor read the law before he talks?

ALFRED R. KIRKUS.
(Of the Executive Committee of Conference of Real Estate and Allied Organizations.)

That $12,000,000 Tax.

Reports came from Albany during the week that in all probability the amount of the direct State tax this year will total at least $12,000,000. This statement was made by Senator Elon R. Brown, Republican leader of the Legislature, to Mayor Mitchel, Controller Prendergast, George McAneny and Borough Presidents Pounds and Mathewson.

Senator Brown scored the municipal extravagance in New York City, and contended that the local legislators were largely responsible for the so-called extravagance of the State Legislature.

Mayor Mitchel in speaking of the conference said: "I do not care to say anything until we have assembled and reviewed the information received from the State officials. I cannot say now what can be done."

—Samuel Gompers, president of the Central Federated Union, was a member of the State Factory Investigating Commission and signed the report favoring the consolidation of building inspection departments, including the State Labor Department, in so far as the enforcement of the Labor Law in this city is concerned. As soon as Mr. Gompers learned through the investigations which his commission carried on the extent to which property owners were being ragged his sympathies were at once aroused.

—Jersey City, following the example of Newark, is about to enact an ordinance which will prohibit the spoilation of strictly residential blocks by business buildings. City Clerk Fagen says it is due to the absence of such a development policy that Jersey City has in the past lost many wealthy and prominent citizens to the Oranges.

STANDARDIZATION OF FORMS.

Committee Makes Suggestions Which Should Simplify Work at Hall of Records.

LAST November a conference was held in the office of John J. Hopper, Register of New York County, in order to determine whether some system could not be adopted which would lead to the standardization of forms, used in instruments, filed at the Hall of Records, pertaining to real estate. On November 21, the Record and Guide printed a full report of the meeting, which dealt with the present cumbersome system, and how a change could be made which would simplify the work of the department and be a direct aid to those who have occasion to refer to the records.

Before the close of the session, a committee, comprising Walter Lindner, of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company; Henry R. Chittick, of the Lawyers Title Insurance & Trust Company, and Cyril H. Burdett, of the New York Title Insurance Company, was appointed to see if some equitable solutions of the problem could not be devised.

Committee Makes Report.

The committee has just made its report to Mr. Hopper, furnishing forms, short in character, which cover all the usual points to be found in the various documents, and arranged in such a way as to make future copying as little cumbersome as possible.

The report of the committee standardized sixteen forms of instruments, which include the following, generally, for both individuals and corporations: Full covenant and warrantee deed; bargain and sale deed, with and without covenants against grantor; quit claim deed; executor's deed; referee's deed, both in foreclosure and in partition; assignment of lease; assignment of mortgage, with and without covenants; release of mortgage, and satisfaction of mortgage.

In speaking of the results of the work of the committee, Mr. Hopper said this week: "The committee reports as to mortgages that it will be all right to use the statutory form and as to the forms of mortgages leaves the subject in the same position as it is now. Considering the time, with respect to the date of the probable adjournment of the Legislature, it is not practical to now give it further attention.

"The report of the committee states as to leases that the Gilsey long and short forms are all right; further, as there will be a large number of leases, particularly those drawn for long terms, which will be drawn up without regard to forms, that it determined to take no action regarding forms for leases; and as to subordination agreements and participation agreements, that it did not consider it practicable to agree upon such forms, especally as to the latter, as very few of them are now being used.

Amend Present Law.

"My consideration of the means of putting in force the use of the forms standardized by the committee leads me to believe that the course to pursue is to amend Section 258, of the Real Property Law, by the inclusion of the additional forms standardized by the report of the committee other than those now constituting part of Section 258; that as Section 258 applies to the entire State, that it would probably not be well to endeavor to change the character of the section in having the forms to be added to the law to apply to New York County only, but that they should apply to the entire State as do those forms now set forth in that section; and, further, that any attempt to compulsorily require the use of these forms, either through prohibiting the use of others—if such were constitutional—or by the imposition of a penalty, would involve the subject, when presented to the Legislature, in a controversy which would undoubtedly preclude the possibility of favorable consideration. I have therefore concluded that the policy, at this time, should be that these forms simply be made additions to Section 258, and to be subject to the first provision of that section, where it states that 'the use of the following forms of instruments for the conveyance of mortgage and real property is lawful, but this section does not prevent or invalidate the use of other forms.'

"Should a majority of the members of the conference approve, a bill covering the amendments will be introduced in the Legislature. This must be done immediately, as the session will only last about one more month."

The Taxation Controversy.

Much discussion, relative to the imposing of an annual tax of two mills on secured debts, has been going on for several weeks, and, at the present time, there is a division, in the forces of realty interests, as to whether a change from the single recording tax to the new system is advisable.

A. E. Holcomb, representing the National Tax Association, holds that, under the present system, the State is deprived of considerable income. A. C. Pleydell, of the Tax Reform Association, considers that the annual tax is a hardship and that his association is opposed to the change. E. R. Finch, appearing for some realty interests, thinks that having an annual tax would increase the State revenue about $10,000,000 annually.

Allan Robinson, president of the Allied Real Estate Interests, said this week: "Reports that the Investment Bankers' Association would insist upon a tax upon mortgages does not come as a surprise. Bonds are simply mortgages split up, and any activity on our part to bring bonds within the operation of an annual tax would result in retaliatory measures and would subject real estate to the added burden of an annual tax upon mortgages."

ARCHITECTURAL PROJECTIONS.

not permitted to extend beyond the building line at any point within 10 feet of the sidewalk. All such limitations that are fixed by the Bay Window Ordinance have been continued for Bay Windows and show windows above the first story.

The limitations now fixed for awnings and Marquises by the orders of the Borough President are made to apply generally. Fire escapes that do not continue to the street level may project 4 feet beyond the building line.

The present requirements as to storm doors and vaults are continued.

It is proposed that fresh air inlets and outside hose connections for standpipes and other fire equipment shall be kept within the building line in recesses in the building, except that where there is an ornamental column or cheek piece for the stair they may be placed in the angle formed with the front wall, provided they do not come out more than 18 inches from either side of such angle.

Big Bankers Favor a Personal Tax.

Chas. E. Mannien, one of the Citizens' Committee which has been interested in securing a revision of the tax laws so as to procure revenue from the owners of personal property throughout the State and to represent these interests at the Albany hearing on the Talmage bill for an annual tax of two mills on securities, said, in reply to the statement issued by the Investment Bankers' Association:

"We are glad to note that the Investment Bankers are in favor of this form of legislation, and do not consider their objection to the exemption of mortgages and domestic corporations very serious. We are willing to leave this whole matter, which is, after all, a detail, to the judgment of the Legislature. The gentlemen whom I represent, the majority of whom, by the way, are not largely interested in real estate, are primarily concerned with securing a larger body of taxpayers in this State. After a very careful study of the whole situation, covering many weeks, they concluded that it was only fair and equitable that the holders of personal property, both tangible and intangible, who have a taxpaying ability, should bear a fair share of the cost of running our government.

"Such bankers as Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and Mr. F. J. Lisman, of F. J. Lisman & Co., have been in touch with our work and have been constantly consulted, and their judgment has been followed when it has conflicted with ideas of the real estate men on our committee. Mr. Jacob H. Schiff wrote to me before he left for California and authorized me to use his name in support of personal property taxation. He is particularly anxious that individuals should be taxed, is in favor of a listing system and has advocated a rate of from two to two and one-half mills. He telegraphed from California yesterday and authorized us to publish his letters, and I shall gladly show them to anyone who is interested."

Large Recording Tax.

Register Polak of Bronx County has been notified by the State Board of Tax Commissioners, that the first installment of fees for the recording of the mortgage executed by the New York Central and Hudson River R. R. Co., to the Guaranty Trust Co., amounting to $19,133.90, has been opportioned to Bronx County. The total amount of the mortgage is $500,000,000, on which there has been an advancement of $40,000,000, as each further advancement is made, up to the amount of the original sum obtained of $500,000,000, there will be an additional mortgage tax fee paid thereon. The proportionate share of the recording fees for Bronx County will amount to $240,000. The assessed valuation of the company's property in Bronx County is $17,350,079.

In a statement issued by Register Polak the number of mortgages and conveyances recorded and papers filed for the first quarter of the current year totals 10,755, as compared with 9,138 in 1914, while the folios show an increase of 910, and amounted to 61,197. The mortgage tax indebtedness recorded amounts to $6,309,425; consideration of conveyances $1,259,419, and mortgage extensions $3,549,905. The sum of $23,470.81 was expended in salaries, supplies, equipment, etc., while the fees received (not including the mortgage tax fee of the N. Y. C. & H. R. R. R.) amounted to $39,935.28.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

The effect of pedestrian traffic on leasing values was demonstrated this week by the grant of the vending privileges under the stairway at the north end of the Brooklyn Bridge, at an approximate rental of $18 a square foot, which compares favorably with prevailing prices in the most exclusive and fashionable business districts in the city. The rental may be regarded as an unusual one, also, when it is considered that the tenant has available for occupancy only 165 square feet, from which he must derive an income of $260.41 a month to pay for his rent alone. The traffic at this point, however, into the subway and the Brooklyn elevated and trolley system, is enormous and well-maintained at practically all hours. Just how venturesome some business men are in these times is indicated by the bid of $30 a month by one aspirant for the location.

Other transactions of interest concerned the acquisition of building sites for apartment houses on the upper west Side; an East Side project where a "walk-up" apartment building will replace a row of dwellings, and a contemplated Brooklyn moving picture theatre which is to have an unusually large seating capacity.

The business, generally, proceeded along the same course as outlined last week, tending toward general activity, rather than local. There continued to be buying of various kinds of properties and residential holdings figured as prominently as commercial structures.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 20 as against 28 last week and 26 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 6 as compared with 11 last week and 10 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 14 as compared with 17 last week and 16 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 143, as against 157 last week, 29 having stated considerations totaling $960,700. Mortgages recorded this week number 96, involving $1,064,416, as against 83 last week, totaling $1,590,229.

From the Bronx 14 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 20 last week and 17 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,047,840, compared with $747,932 last week, making a total for the year of $13,754,922. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $518,077, and the total from Jan. 1, 1914, to April 11, 1914 was $11,620,524.

New Apartments for Drive.

The Melvin Construction Company, Henry Friedman, president, has purchased from Harris & Maurice Mandelbaum, through the J. Romaine Brown Company, the plot 125x100, at the north corner of Riverside drive and 161st street. The sellers recently acquired the property from the Loyal L. Smith estate. The buyer in the present deal gave in part payment the three five-story apartment houses, 942-960 Avenue St. John, covering the block front between Kelly and Beck streets, with a frontage of 250 feet. On the Riverside drive corner the Melvin Construction Company will erect a six-story apartment house, from plans by Harold L. Young and Steward Wagner.

New Brooklyn Theatre.

Edward Bull and Gerard R. Kern have sold for Spencer C. Cary the plot 95x147, at the southeast corner of Flatbush avenue and Canarsie avenue, Brooklyn, for a reported price of $49,000. The buyer is A. W. Schwartz, of the Carlton Amusement Company, now operating the Linden Theatre, on Flatbush avenue, near Linden avenue. He expects to begin on May 1 the erection of a high class moving picture theatre, with a seating capacity of about 1,600. Plans for the structure, which will involve an estimated cost of $150,000, are being prepared by R. Thomas Short.

Fifth Avenue Deal Pending.

Negotiations are said to be well advanced for the sale of the one-time Dinsmore property at the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and 31st street, on plot 29.4x100, and the adjoining house in the street, 25x98.9, by Jacob H. Schiff and others, as trustees, to Harry

GEORGE KEAN & CO. were the brokers in the recently recorded sale of the 5-sty tenement, 629 9th av, for H. M. Greenberg to Charles Jeck. The reported price was $25,500.

M. MORGENTHAU, JR., CO. has placed a 1st mortgage of $40,000 for 5 years on the 6-sty apartment house, 536 East 168th st, for William J. Diamond.

FRANK STEVENS sold at auction on Thursday under partition proceedings for the Robert Davis estate, 18 dwellings and 58 vacant lots in Jersey City for a total of $121,695.

LOUIS SCHRAG negotiated the recently recorded sale of 216-218 East 38th st, on plot 42x84, for the Jane L. Ahearn estate to the J. Chris G. Hupfel Brewing Co., which will build a garage for its trucks.

SAMUEL GOLDSTICKER, who has been identified with the real estate brokerage business for the last forty years, will move his office to-day from 149 Broadway to 37 Pine st.

SAMUEL MARX, auctioneer, will sell on Tuesday, April 13, on the premises at 106 East 19th st the entire assets of the Bankers Building Bureau. Additional details will be found elsewhere in the Record and Guide.

ROBERT S. CLARK, of Cooperstown, N. Y., acquired title this week from Ella A. Rogers and John Gellatly to the plot 100x100 at the south corner of 5th av and 99th st, assessed at $140,000.

PEASE & ELLIMAN have been appointed by John W. Simpson, agents for the Biltmore at 58-58 West 58th st, Soncy at 49 West 57th st, and the Blenheim at 60-62 West 58th st.

LEWIS H. MAY CO. and M. M. Ringler of Ames & Co. were the brokers in the sale recorded Thursday, for J. H. Benjamin, of the two 5-sty flats, 229-231 West 60th st, to Joseph H. Halperin, who gave in exchange a stucco cottage on Rochester av, Edgemere, L. I.

PORTER & CO. were the brokers who negotiated the recently reported sale of 16 lots for the John B. Haskin Estates, Inc., on the Grand Boulevard and Concourse, 203 ft. south of 192d st, and through to Creston av. The purchaser, the Gaines-Roberts Co., will break ground immediately and improve the property with high-class apartment houses.

ERNEST HAVIER, for many years identified with real estate in Manhattan, said this week that the outlook in real estate was most promising. The fact that real estate interests are now more united than for many years should have the tendency to get favorable legislation passed, which ought to relieve realty from some of its excessive burdens.

THE 601 WEST END AV CO., Albert Saxe, William H. Freese and Samuel L. Jackson, incorporated with a capital of $50,000, is the buyer of the plot 44x90, at the northwest corner of West End av and 89th st, sold recently by Henry I. Cooper and Louis Kempner & Son. A 13-sty apartment house is to be erected, as previously announced in these columns.

L. A. KERNGOOD, M. F. Steinberger and C. S. Cosgrove have opened offices at 7 Pine st, under the firm name of the L. A. Kerngood Co., for the transaction of a general real estate and mortgage business. Mr. Kerngood was formerly connected with the McVickar-Gaillard Realty Co. and Francis B. Robert. Messrs. Steinberger and Cosgrove have also been associated with the McVickar-Gaillard Realty Co., and latterly with the Gross & Gross Co.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

The offerings at the voluntary auction sales on Thursday resulted in a good attendance and keen competition. Outside buyers figured in the bidding and acquired several properties. The five-story building at 305 Washington street, in the market district, was bought by James J. McCarran for $47,500. Clara J. Nathan paid $14,000 for the four-story tenement at 2184 Amsterdam avenue, assessed last year for $23,000. In the Bronx, John Fink acquired the plot 25x90.2, at the southwest corner of Heath avenue and Summit place, for $1,200.

Manhattan.

The following is the complete list of property sold, withdrawn or adjourned during the week ending April 9, 1915, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, 14 and 16 Vesey st.

Moving Day

Moving day discloses the fact that most of the moving vans are depositing their loads in front of buildings equipped for electric service.

Modern families demand electric light in their homes. They know its many advantages and conveniences and go where they may enjoy them.

The residence or apartment electrically equipped rents more readily and sells at a higher price.

WIRING FOR OFFICE BUILDINGS

By J. E. BULLARD, Society for Electrical Development

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

THE principal uses of electricity for office buildings are for illumination and for power to operate elevators, ventilating systems, pumps and motors. All the electric wiring and meter locations must be made to conform with the regulations of the local electric light company and the requirements of the National Electrical Code.

In any event it is better to consult the electric light company supplying the district where the building is to be erected and learn in advance just what kind of current it would supply. At the same time information can be obtained in regard to the space which would be required for meters and as to any special local wiring requirements.

Current.

Current for light and power in office buildings is generally furnished at 110 and 220 volts, either direct or alternating, more generally, the latter. The alternating current, usually has 60 cycles in single or 3-phase. In planning the equipment ample provision should be made in the basement for meters and switch board appliances. The meter space should be easily accessible and located at the point where the service connection with the electric company's lines enter the basement. As different electric light companies have different requirements, the best way is to consult the electric company's engineer in advance.

Lighting.

The most difficult problem encountered in the wiring of an office building is the proper location of the lighting outlets. The large motors are generally located in the basement. The meters to individual floors or suites are placed either in the basement or in meter panels on the different floors. Locating all meters in the basement where they may be readily inspected is considered the best practice.

With the lighting outlets, however, it is different. No two classes of business are likely to require the same intensity of light or the same layout. After the building is completed the arrangement of the offices may have to be changed to suit the requirements of new tenants. Many large, modern office buildings in New York City have been obliged to change the location of partitions very soon after the buildings were completed. These changes, which may be constantly called for, greatly increase the difficulty of planning a lighting installation which will meet the needs of all the tenants and continue to give satisfactory service.

Interesting Table.

Not only is there the probability that the dimensions of the offices will be changed, but the color of the walls, ceilings and furnishings may also be changed, with the resultant change in the effective illumination. Messrs. Lansingh and Rolph have found that when illumination has been calculated for dark walls and ceilings it can be increased by changing the color of the walls and ceilings to the extent shown in the following table:

Ceiling.	Walls.	Increase Over Calculated.
Very dark.....	Very dark.....	0%
Medium	Very dark.....	15%
Medium	Medium	40%
Very light.....	Very dark.....	30%
Very light.....	Medium	55%
Very light.....	Very light.....	80%

On account of these difficulties it is hard to lay down any hard and fast rules in regard to the proper number and location of lighting outlets. It is safe, however, to provide an ample number, and so far as possible to place them in line with the center of the windows, so that none of them are likely to be covered with a new partition.

J. E. BULLARD.

Illuminating requirements are generally calculated on the "foot candle" unit with generally recognized rules as to intensity required for each class of service. The lighting requirements of office buildings vary all the way from one foot-candle to five foot-candles; however, this intensity must be governed to a certain extent by the intensity of the lighting of the offices. There should not be too great a contrast between the lighting in the offices and that in the corridors. The corridor lighting might be placed approximately at one-half the intensity of the office lighting.

Intensities.

The following table gives an idea of the intensities required in different classes of offices:

Class of Office.	Foot-candles.
Offices used for waiting rooms	1.25- 2.50
General offices	2.00- 3.00
Desk illumination	2.00- 5.00
Drafting	5.00-10.00

The illumination should be bright enough to give ample light for all general purposes. In buildings which may be occupied by architects or engineers where considerable drafting is done, it may be wise to provide more intense illumination. A good plan is to make provision for a general illumination of at least two foot-candles and preferably three foot-candles intensity, all calculations being based on dark tinted walls and ceilings and to provide a liberal number of baseboard and floor receptacle outlets for localized illumination over desks, drawing boards, etc., where extra illumination may be required.

These floor and baseboard outlets are perfectly practical and will eliminate the necessity of running moulding on the ceiling after the building is completed and suspending a number of unsightly drop cords. A careful planning for floor and baseboard outlets for use in local lighting and also for such appliances as fans, small motors for certain power-driven office appliances now in common use will do away with the necessity for marring the ceiling at some later date.

BUILDING MANAGER VERSUS OWNER

NINE out of ten tenants, if asked the question, will answer that they much prefer to deal with a manager than the owner. There are a number of reasons why this should be so. The average manager is a man of infinite tact, must be careful to live up to his agreements to hold his job, and usually possesses a vast fund of good judgment and patience. The two latter qualities are essential if the manager expects to succeed. Many property owners have an antipathy to employing managers for financial reasons. In this respect they are penny wise and pound foolish. They will let good marketable space stand idle for months at a time. It is true they have saved the manager's salary, but they have also lost some hundreds of dollars of rent. Placed in the hands of a manager the chances are that the space would only have stood idle a few days.

But the reason why the tenant prefers to deal with the manager rather than the owner is really a simple one—the manager is always on the job. Plumbing we will say, gets out of order, or the plaster falls from the ceiling, or the janitor neglects his duties, or the thousand and one things that happen in the average building. Such things require prompt attention, and it is not always easy to get such attention from an owner. He may be out of the city, or he may have so many other interests that he defers action. When he is finally reached he sometimes grumbles at the cost of repairs or hesitates about the janitor and undesirable tenants.

Not so with the manager, however. As soon as notified that repairs are necessary he has a man to attend to them. He accepts such things as one of the incidents of his business. Having a large number of tenants under his care, he is able to give immediate service, because he makes a business of operating a building and it is not a side issue mixed up with other interests. If he finds the janitor is negligent of his duties there is no hesitation about action. From his waiting list he is always able to install a new man at an hour's notice. Managing a building is an art requiring special fitness, and as few owners possess this special gift, the wise tenant naturally prefers dealing with a manager.

Looking Down.

A city may have the reputation of being a "clean town," and its citizens may be prone to boast of this fact, but nearly any "clean town" would lose self-respect if seen as the workers in the upper ozone view it. If your office happens to be located on one of the upper floors of a tall building, take a look at your town and see what you think of it. Look down and see the dirty alleys, roofs littered with everything from old lumber to paper, tin cans and cheap signs. Awful, isn't it? Now go up and examine your roof. There may be a man higher up, and, too, aviators are a discriminating class.

—The proposed connection between the Long Island Railroad tracks and the Corona branch of the Dual System would be four thousand feet long and cost $500,000 to build, and a further reasonable sum for the use of the Long Island Railroad tracks.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

A Pressure Control Switch.

AMONG the latest electrical appliances being introduced is an all enclosed automatic switch, which is intended for the control of metal driven air or water pumps for pressure or vacuum purposes. The operating mechanism is very simple. Changes in pressure are transmitted to levers, actuating the make-and-break mechanism by means of a plunger resting on a flexible diaphragm. The electrical contacts act in a positive, instantaneous manner, thus reducing danger from burning or arcing. The switch therefore is always in working condition.

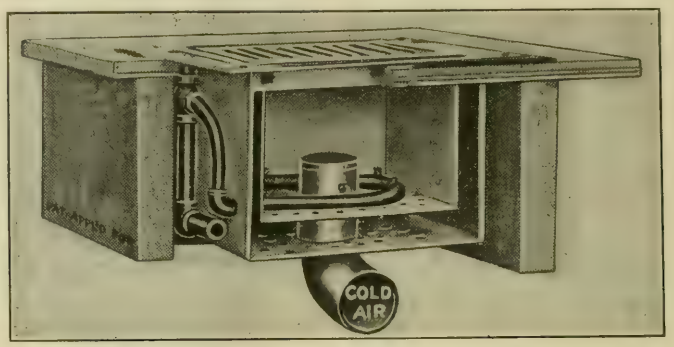
This switch is made up in twelve sizes and types, thus providing regulation for all ordinary ranges of pressure and vacuum. By inclosing the moving parts with a sheet-metal hood, the danger of irresponsible tampering or accidental injury is eliminated. Pressure adjustment is made by means of the small thumb-nut at the bottom. The larger sizes of switches are provided with a flange, making them suitable for mounting on a panel.

Plating Iron with Iron.

PLATING iron with iron or steel with iron is a new scheme for delaying rusting. Chemically pure iron is nearly rust proof; so the idea is to cover iron or steel with iron that is as chemically pure as possible. Plating in much the same way that brass is plated with gold or nickle gives a coat that is very close to pure iron. A coat of zinc over the coat of iron also helps.

Rust is the bitterest and most persistent enemy of steel. The ancient Hindus had a secret method of making rust-proof iron, but the formula was destroyed. Much iron is now manufactured for special uses at comparatively high cost which is reasonably free from impurities and so less likely to give way to rust, but the inventor of completely rust-proof, cheap rustproof, iron has a vast fortune awaiting him.

1,000 Cubic Feet of Gas.



MOST people have no idea of the size of the possibilities contained in a thousand cubic feet of gas. Imagine a box 10 feet long, 10 feet wide and 10 feet high, a box that would be nearly as large as an ordinary bedroom. Such a box would hold just 1,000 cubic feet of gas.

The quantity of work that a thousand feet of gas will do is surprising. Check up a few of the following items with your own experience. It has been estimated that in the average home of from 6 to 8 rooms, 1,000 feet of gas will do the cooking for one month; will light the home for one month; or will maintain an ever ready supply of hot water for 10 days. In zero weather it will maintain the temperature in the same home at 70 degrees Fahr. for 10 hours. If the home is equipped with a still, 1,000 feet of gas will supply 140 gallons of pure drinking water. Used in the proper kind of an ice machine, it will keep the ice box dry and cold for 6 days. Of course these figures are based upon the use of gas in efficient appliances.

The work of gas in the factory is still more surprising. It will supply a 10-horsepower gas engine for 10 hours or a 100-horsepower engine for 1 hour. It will supply a 25-horsepower high pressure boiler for 1 hour. It will melt 350 to 400 pounds of brass in 1 hour. In the printing shop, a thousand feet of gas, if used in linotype machine, will heat sufficient type metal to set 130,000 lines of type such as you are now reading.

Air Warmed in Floor Box.

BUILDERS contemplating construction during the current year may be glad to know of an entirely new principle in heating that is being introduced and which seems destined to have a wide application. The idea is contained in a fireproof hollow box set in the floor of a building. In outside appearance it looks to be nothing more than an ordinary floor register of a hot air heating system. Instead it is connected with a short pipe with the exterior of the building. Through this pipe cold air is admitted to the chamber. There gas is admitted to a ring with perforations through which a gas flame is directed, warming the air admitted to the box, thus permitting it to pass into the room. The floor gas is controlled by a small socket in the room of the register. The advantages of this system are that it is positively the cheapest on the market to install, absolutely pure air is warmer and delivered at point of utility. No heat is lost in transit, hence the cost of heating is considerably reduced. It involves no increase in insurance rate and each unit has a capacity for heating 4,000 cubic feet of space, 15 feet by gas and each operates to full normal capacity. It is suitable for bungalows, residences, apartments, flats, hotels, schools, churches, factories and public buildings.

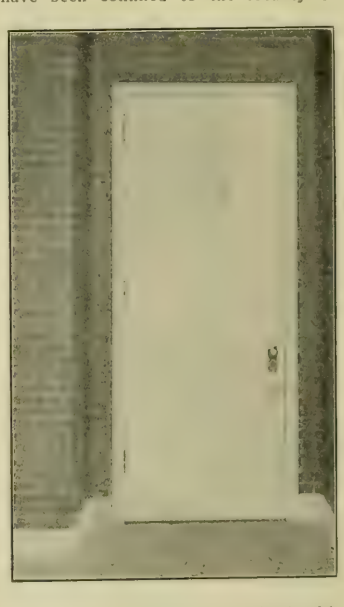
Rough Texture Tile.

ROUGH texture in brick has taken such a tremendous hold upon the artistic temperament of the American people that it is not surprising that the rough texture tile should materialize. This novelty is being turned out by the B. Mifflin Hood Brick Company, of Atlanta, Ga., and is described by Mr. Hood, as follows:

By mixing a high grade shale with the pulverized broken fragments of whisky jugs, being the waste product of a pottery plant, it has been made possible to produce a rough texture tile of rich colors and beautiful fabric.

The pulverized pottery permits of burning the tile to a higher temperature, thus producing chemicals and physical changes that bring about results always desired by the discerning architect, tile worker and interior decorator. The rough texture tile is designed to compete with the wire cut brick as a fireplace material. Its smaller size opens a way for semi-mosaic treatment in room adornment.



The manufacturers announce that it has perfected systems of burning in eighty different shapes and in three different textures and is especially adaptable for use in fireplaces and walls. The "Pott'ry" tile is guaranteed by the manufacturers to withstand the rigors of extreme cold weather and summer sun exposure and it will stand the strain of use in industrial environments.

The difficulty in the past has been to get a combination of clay and tempering material that would withstand heat enough to make a hard burned product without warping the finished article. In the south and especially around Atlanta, Ga., where whiskey jugs are made by the million a year, there are great piles of this broken ware, the accumulation of centuries. This material, ground up, has provided the necessary tempering material for making rough cut tile, which has the distinct advantage of having non-slipping qualities. It is suitable for interior and exterior work.

An All Metal Door.

CONSTANT demand for practical metal doors has resulted in the development of the one shown in the accompanying illustration the use of this type of door might be made very extensive in buildings where it is necessary to have communicating doors soundproof and especially where odors are desired to be shut out as in hospital operating rooms.

But aside from this it is an important factor as a fire retardant in all sorts of buildings. The rapidity with which fires spread, unretardedly, once they gain any headway in such buildings, gives sufficient evidence of the prevailing errors of plans and equipment. Statistics show innumerable instances of fires that could have been confined to the locality of origin had floors been subdivided with incombustible partitions and doors and elevator and stair openings likewise protected.

By reason of insufficient appropriations many up-to-the-minute architects are rendered helpless. The door shown above is light in operation and is intended for use in all buildings.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Comparative Table of Plans Filed in Five Boroughs Since January 1—Bronx Shows Increase of Fifty-Three Buildings

THE record of building operations, according to the revised figures of the Building Superintendents of the five boroughs, from January 1, 1915, up to and including March 31, closed with $35,447,948 to be expended, as compared with $29,162,670 for the corresponding three months of 1914.

The number of building projects filed during the same period of 1915 was 2,636, as compared with 2,480 for the same three months of 1914, showing that there was an increase of 156 buildings. In Manhattan the increase specified cost over last year was $5,500,535, but the total number of buildings filed was equal to the exact number filed during the same period of 1914.

There was an increase in tenement houses, hotels, stores and lofts buildings, costing over $30,000, stores and loft buildings costing less than $15,000, office buildings and stables and garages, but this increase was offset by a falling off in public buildings (places of amusement) and other miscellaneous structures. In the Bronx, there was an increase of 53 buildings, costing $3,022,020 more than during 1914, showing that there are a greater number of brick tenements to be erected this year, as well as store buildings and stables and garages, but not as many frame dwellings.

In Brooklyn there is a decrease of $2,036,785 in the amount to be expended, and 176 more buildings projected. The gain is due to a larger number of tenement houses costing less than $20,000, stores and two family structures, churches, stables and garages and brick sundries.

The Borough of Queens shows a decrease of 4 buildings and $429,446 less in the amount to be expended, but there is an increase of 123 more buildings to be altered, while Richmond shows a substantial increase over last year by 63 more projects in the amount to cost $228,954, as well as a larger number of alteration projects.

He belonged to the American Society of Engineers, the American Watercolor Society, the Philadelphia and Cincinnati Art clubs and the Academy of Arts and Letters. He belonged to the Century, Authors, University and Players clubs of New York, the Metropolitan, of Boston, and the Tavern, of Boston. He is survived by his widow.

ARCHIMEDES RUSSELL, one of the best known architects in Central New York and senior member of the firm of Russell & King, Syracuse, N. Y., died of heart disease in that city, Saturday, April 3. Mr. Russell was born in Andover, Mass., June 13, 1840. After completing his studies he entered the office of John Stevens, a prominent Boston architect. In December, 1862, Mr. Russell moved to Syracuse and entered the office of Horatio A. White. Seven years later he started an independent practice, which was successful from the first. About nine years ago Mr. Russell took as a partner Melvin L. King. They established offices in the Snow Building, where they have since been located. About three years ago Mr. Russell retired from the active work of the firm, but still retained his interest and was greatly sought after as a consultant, and advisory architect. Many of the most prominent buildings of Syracuse were designed by Mr. Russell. He was architect on the committee of five which had charge of the completion of the Capitol at Albany during Governor Levi P. Morton's administration. He prepared the plans for the Onondaga county court house, Yates Hotel, Crouse College, The Herald, Journal and Post Standard buildings, Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception and many other important structures. He was for years active in Republican politics and held various prominent city positions. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Susan M. Bartlett, of Boston.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

NET GAIN FOR FIRST QUARTER $6,285,278—CEMENT SITUATION CONTINUES TO IMPROVE.

Art Metal Prices Advance—
National Construction Statistics

ADVICES from building contractors indicate a sharp improvement in building construction, but, except for the few lines affected by the great export demand now current, there are few advances. Common Hudson brick is steady at $5.75, where it probably will remain. Raritan common brick is firm at approximately the same figure. Lehigh Valley Portland cement is still holding between $1.23 and $1.32 for immediate delivery, with current orders light. Lumber prices have held fairly steady, but Canadian spruce and yellow pine are a half a dollar to a dollar and a half higher at wholesale yards. Stone is firmer on demand, according to local cutters, architectural terra cotta requirements reflect the condition of the current structural steel market in gradual improvement, as does concrete and masons' supplies like lime, plaster, sand, cinders and crushed stone.

Consumers and specificers may get some idea of the trend of prices by an authentic report of the state of the cement situation at the Lehigh Valley. The stock in the valley and Hudson River district is estimated conservatively at 20 per cent. below the amount in reserve outside of tested cement held for special order, last year. There have been estimates as high as 35 per cent. below last year's cement in storage.

Production during March was 25 per cent. more than a year ago, in Pennsylvania and New York, but the amount in storage was not increased. Almost 160 kilns are now in operation. Shipments in March were 50 per cent greater than in March a year ago, which is a gain of 10 per cent. over February's 40 per cent. gain over the shipments of a year previous. Outside of tested cement there was said to be not more than thirty days' supply of cement in store, at the Lehigh Valley mills. It is believed that there is about 70 per cent. of kiln capacity now in operation in the two districts supplying this market. The hole made in the supply of cement in this market by the temporary retirement of the Edison Company is beginning to be apparent and the price situation at mill is expected soon to reflect this strain on the capacity of the two disrticts to supply this market.

It was stated this week that, within forty days, the demand would be sufficient, in this market, to require the throwing in of an additional 5 per cent. capacity at the mills and to warrant, under normal conditions, a New York wholesale price of at least $1.53 by July 1. Another authority predicted a price of $1.62 by September 1.

In the department of supplies affected by the heavy military requirements of Europe, a sharp change upward was reported this week. Many leading art metal concerns announced an increase in price of 10 per cent. by reduction of current discounts effective as of April 5. Sheet brass which on December 29 was quoted at 13¼c. a pound is now 17⅛c. Copper sheets are held at 20¾ cents base as against 17 a few months ago. A price of 16 cents was quoted on carload lots spot cash, immediate acceptance. Spelter used in galvanized and zinc work is up to 11c. and stiffening whereas 6 cents is normal. Prompt N. Y. is 9¾c.

Prospective builders are being advised by architects to proceed with their spring operations at the earliest possible moments. The whole building material market, somewhat stiffer and, in spots, higher than thirty days ago. is on the eve of an important upturn, not so much because of demand, but because of limited factory and mill supplies. Scarcity of labor upon the close of the war, when man-divested Europe calls upon her naturalized American sons to return to save homesteads and industries, there will be a dearth of cheap labor in this country and prices may ascend to boundaries not now considered possible.

Plan filings in the five boroughs for the current week follow. Elsewhere on this page is a brief survey on the comparative building plan filings this year and last. In the same week last year New York plan filings included 284 new buildings with an estimated value of $2,902,130.

MANY BUILDING NOW.

First Quarter Reports Show Big Gains Over Recent Statistics.

OFFICIAL figures indicating prospective building in New York and the entire country were available this week. New York's five boroughs show a gain of $6,285,278 in estimated value over the first quarter of 1914. Manhattan shows even totals of new buildings and an increase in probable expenditures of $5,500,535. The Bronx shows an increase of 53 new buildings and a gain in probable expenditure of $3,022,020. Queens showed a loss of 4 buildings and a decrease in estimated cost of $429,446. Brooklyn lost 44 at a decreased estimated expenditure of $2,036,780. Richmond plan filings for new buildings developed an increase of 63 and a gain of $228,954.

Bradstreets reports returns from 116 cities, showing a decrease for March of only 2.6 from March a year ago. Estimated value for these cities show a decline of 11.5 from March, 1914. In February, it might be noted, the permits fell off 5.8 per cent. from the like months a year ago while expenditures decreased 12.4 per cent. The really encouraging feature here shown is that the decrease in the number of permits almost reached the vanishing point in March. The improvement is no longer centered in New England. It is general.

Another favorable feature was found in the fact that the falling off in expenditure in the first quarter was only 10.8 per cent. from a year ago, whereas the decrease in the last quarter of 1914 was 25.7 per cent.

Another evidence of the turning of the tide in building is found in the number of cities showing gains or losses each month. For a long time the large majority of cities reporting have shown decreases in expenditures from corresponding periods a year ago. In March, however, the gains and losses were quiet evenly balanced, fifty-seven increases and fifty-nine decreases showing in March. Baltimore shows a gain of 97.9 per cent.; Cincinnati, 55.9 per cent.; Rochester, 29.4 per cent.; Indianapolis, 13.6 per cent.; Pittsburgh, 5 per cent., and Philadelphia, 4 per cent. New York, five boroughs included, shows a gain of 352 new buildings and an actual gain in estimated cost of $7,720,199. Chicago, however, showed an 8.9 per cent. decrease; St. Louis, 14 per cent.; Cleveland, 1 per cent.; St. Paul, 64.9 per cent.; Los Angeles, 48.4 per cent.; Portland, Ore., 46.4 per cent., and San Francisco 66.6 per cent.

The percentages of gain or loss as compared with March a year ago follow:

	Permits.	Value.
New England.....	I 33.1	I 37.1
Middle	I 24.3	D 4.4
Western	I 9.6	I 13.9
Northwestern	D 5.9	D 22.8
Southwestern	D 1.1	D 47.7
Southern	I 14.1	I .1
Far Western.....	D 36.6	D 49.3
Total	D 2.6	D 10.8

The country's building trend is shown in the following estimated cost table for the first quarter:

	1915.	1914.	Per cent. Change.
Jan. (155 cities)..	$45,764,399	$49,944,341	D 8.3

Prices Unchanged With Large Quantities in Reserve.

WHILE the movement of common brick in this market has improved within the last week, there is still a large quantity available for this market in both the Raritan and Hudson districts with the result that prices at the current level of $5.75 to $6 probably will continue to remain there. One manufacturer said that he could not imagine a building situation that could develop in this market prior to July or August 1 that would warrant even as high as a fifty cent raise. That probably accounts for the rumors that a number of up-river plants will not operate this year and others will work at reduced capacity. An estimate of 300,000,000 brick available in sheds up the river was not considered out of proportion to probable conditions.

Attention is called to a gain of almost a million in riding during the week just closed. The total for the calendar week probably will exceed 5,500,000. As most of this brick is being ridden direct to job, it appears as though a turn for the better in local construction was at hand.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, April 8, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follows:

ART METALS.

Frank H. Graf Co. Reports Ten Per Cent. Advance.

ARCHITECTS and others specifying interior equipment in the decorative department will find that prices have sharply advanced for fireplace fixtures, grille work, wrought iron material, etc. The Frank H. Graf Manufacturing Co., one of the leaders in this line, sent word to the trade this week that owing to the advances in copper, spelter and all raw materials used in the manufacture of andirons, fireplace fixtures and ornamental metal work, the former discounts were withdrawn and a new discount fixed which went into effect as of April 5, calling for practically a 10 per cent. increase in the price of these products. A similar increase was announced by the Peerless Manufacturing Co., of Louisville, Ky., a large factor in the local trade and it is understood that other brass goods manufacturers will follow suit. Some idea of the advance in the cost of raw material may be obtained by knowing that on December the price of sheet brass was quoted at 13 1-4 cent. whereas on the first of the month it was 17 1-8 cents. Copper advanced one cent owing to the extremely heavy export business. A quotation is made at 16 cents for carload lots. Lead is up. At the first of the month it was quoted but firm. In the open market spot was held at 4.20 and 4.25 cents at New York and at 4.15 at East St. Louis.

Exports of copper reported between April 1 and 7, total 1,311 tons and thus far no imports have been reported at the United States ports. The output of copper during the current month is expected to be in the neighborhood of 100 pounds by the refineries, an output entirely be low the current demand. Copper sheets are held at 20 3-4 cents base for large lots. Spelter is quoted at 11 cents as against a normal of 6 cents. Prompt New York is quoted at 9 3-4 cents.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

NEW BUILDING CODE BRINGING OUT PLANS

Plan-Filing Heavy, Partly in Anticipation of Law Changes—Tight Money Market Held Responsible for Slowness in Starting Construction

THE quarterly reports of plans filed, in last week's Record and Guide, were very encouraging to business interests generally, as they showed substantial gains in all the boroughs except Queens, and only a slight falling off there. But reports from the trades are to the general effect that notwithstanding the large number of plans filed construction contracts are not being signed at the same rate, and work is not going ahead proportionately.

Such work as offers is just starting up for the season and is noticeable in the demonition of old buildings that is going on and in excavating operations. Reports to Secretary Tompkins of the Building Trades Council disclose that only about twelve hundred more men are under employment at this date than were engaged on the first of February, when 35,000 were idle.

The tight money market was blamed for awhile as the cause of holding back the work, but lately an improvement has been noticed in regard to the availability of building loans, and at the present time the prevailing opinion is that the unusually large number of plans filed in the three principal boroughs is in no small part in anticipation of the new building laws which are being passed by the Board of Aldermen from time to time, and also in part in anticipation of new regulations from the Industrial Board for the construction of factory and store buildings.

Business Agents Report.

At this week's meeting of the business agents in the building trades who visit all parts of the metropolitan district, this was the interpretation put upon the present situation in the building trades. In numerous cases works have been halted after being started. An example of this is the project of Vincent Astor for an apartment house on the block front between 89th and 90th street. The site has been excavated but is now fenced up and deserted.

Several years ago, in the year 1909, it will be recalled, in anticipation of the enactment of a new building code, the plan filings were very heavy for a time, which made the building record of that year very large. Something of the kind is going on now, in the opinion of the men who make it their business to know, owing to a desire to avoid the consequences of possibly stricter laws than are now in the building code. The plans filed indicate an intention to build eventually, and the holding back may be due to tight money or to some unreadiness.

New Ordinance Introduced.

An ordinance governing excavations and foundations was introduced in the Board of Aldermen this week. It will be found printed in full in the City Record of April 15, and an explanation in the Record and Guide of April 3. The ordinance when approved will form part of the building code.

The Committee on Buildings to which was referred on March 23, an ordinance in relation to working stresses and loads reported in favor of adopting the ordinance. The measure was laid over for one week.

RUDOLPH P. MILLER, C. E.,
Who is drafting the new Building Code.

Building Ordinances Endorsed.

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, through its Building Code Committee, which consists of Messrs. Henry W. Hodge, chairman, Otto M. Eidlitz, and Julius Franke, and which has been sitting weekly to consider the ordinances of the Board of Aldermen that are being incorporated into the new Building Code, has endorsed Ordinances Nos. 1572, 1573 and 1590.

Ordinance 1572 relates to iron and steel construction in city buildings. This ordinance covers such subjects as girders, trusses, lintels, floor and roof beams, party wall posts, and steel wrought iron and cast iron columns, etc.

Ordinance 1573 pertains to wood construction and prescribes rules for the installation of beams, wooden trusses, bolting, stud partitions, fire stops, wooden columns, posts and girders, etc.

Ordinance 1590 relates to strength of materials, and is particularly applicable to working stresses and loads. This ordinance provides for proper safe loads for masonry work, for live and floor loads in stores, factories and warehouses, and for all temporary supports, as well as supports for wind pressure. The council, through its Building Committee, has suggested minor corrections as well as many verbal changes purely technical.

Report on New Elevator Regulations.

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, through its Industrial Code Committee, which consists of Messrs. Julius Franke, chairman, Louis J. Horowitz, Frank A. Pattison and Evarts Tracy, and which has been considering all the rules and regulations promulgated by the Industrial Board, has made certain recommendations with regard to the proposed amendments to rules relating to construction, guarding, equipment, maintenance and operation of elevators and hoistways in factories. Public hearings were held upon these proposed amendments, before the Industrial Board, on April 7, when the Advisory Council was granted the privilege of submitting a brief upon these proposed amendments, which brief contains the following recommendations:

"With regard to hoistway enclosures, as there is nothing in the proposed rules which provides for vertical sliding doors or rolling shutters, and as these doors are very much in use in factories, we would suggest that they be included and, therefore, we suggest the amendment to Rule No. 406, to read as follows, the new words being underscored:

406. Horizontal or vertical hoistway sliding gates or doors and rolling shutters for existing and future installations used for passenger and employees' elevators may be full automatic, manually operated or self-closing, and, unless full automatic, shall be fitted with a substantial lock or latch and all doors shall be arranged so they cannot be opened from the outside, except with a key.

"In Rule 407, which prescribes that vertical or horizontal sliding gates or doors that were installed previous to the adoption of these rules may remain in place, as installed, provided the gates are sufficiently high and strong, for the particular requirements where they are used, the word 'tell-tale' has been suggested as a change for the word 'telltable' chains, when gates are less than 5 ft, 6 in. high and are set closer than 12 inches from the hoistway line. These 'tell-tale' chains may not be less than 4 ft. long and 6 in. centers must be suspended from the landing edges of the car platform.

Trap Doors.

"Where there are automatically operated trap doors, so constructed as to form a substantial floor surface when closed, and so arranged as to open and close by the action of the car in its passage both ascending and descending, it has been suggested that in addition to such trap doors, the hatchway shall be adequately protected on all sides and all floors, including the basement by railing or enclosure at least 5 ft. 6 in. in height rather than 3 ft. 6 in. in height, as prescribed in Rule 412.

"Under Rule 424, where elevators must be equipped with a speed governor when the downward or upward speed of the elevator exceeds 200 ft. per minute, or 150 ft. per minute, respectively, and it shall, under these conditions, release the safety equipment of the elevator, it is stated that car safety will not be required for direct plunger elevators. The Council feels that this might be a source of danger, as some plunge elevators are liable to accident in case the car should separate from the plunger. The counterweight would throw the car up through the roof. This should be considered.

"Under Rule 434, where there is the danger of physical injury to persons, by contact with counterweights at the bottom of the counterweight runaway, it is prescribed that the weights shall be guarded on both sides with substantial, metal shields. The Council feels that since most counterweights are up against the wall and need to be guarded only on one side, the words 'on both sides' should be omitted.

"Under Rule 442 it is stated that in all factory buildings there shall be a passage way or unobstructed means of exit leading from the elevator to the outside of the building, when the elevator is at the lowest point of its travel. This rule might be interpreted to mean that the passageway must be built from the lower story up through the building. As the object of this law is to secure exit from the car, should it by accident drop to the bottom, and it is not the intention to provide a separate passageway, the Council would suggest that the reference to passageway be omitted and this read as follows:

442. In all factory buildings there shall be maintained an unobstructed means of exit leading from the elevator to the outside of the building, when the elevator is at the lowest point of its travel.

"Finally, there has been no provision made for what is known as sidewalk elevators or short-run platform lifts, which should be provided for."

Plan-Filing in The Bronx.

Superintendent Robert J. Moorehead is pleased with the record that the Bronx is making this year. "The estimated cost of new buildings, planned in the borough during the first quarter of 1915, amounts to over $7,000,000, which is an increase of $3,000,000 over the corresponding period in 1914. This indicates, to Superintendent Moorehead, a healthy revival of business in the building industry, and a restoration of confidence amongst the loaning interests.

The plans filed include 131 new tenement houses to cost $5,745,000, an average of nearly $44,000 each. The tenement houses now being erected in this borough show much improvement in construction over the houses erected in previous years. The day for small rooms is now past, and the builder, who formerly squeezed 22 and 23 rooms on a floor of 50 foot wide tenement, now contents himself with from 15 to 18 rooms.

The following table of plans filed during the first quarter of 1914 and 1915 was quoted by the Superintendent:

The Proposed Consolidation.

"There has been considerable discussion over the proposed consolidation of building functions now exercised by various City and State departments," said Superintendent Moorehead.

"The Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill, which has just passed the Senate and Assembly by votes of 39 to 3 and 106 to 28, respectively, provides substantial relief from multiple inspection.

"The provisions of this bill have been grossly misrepresented, particularly in connection with the Tenement House Department. As a matter of fact, under this law the interests of tenement house dwellers are better safeguarded than ever, in that practical building inspectors, who are required by law to be competent masons, carpenters, ironworkers, etc., will now supervise the construction of new tenement houses in connection with the provisions of the tenement house law; and as any modification or variation of its requirements are expressly prohibited by the provisions of the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill, the clamorings of misguided alarmists that the legislation is vicious or that the home of the tenement dweller is threatened with demoralization and destruction, must be classed as mere idle vaporings.

"The endorsement of the bill by over one hundred civic organizations should be a sufficient guarantee of its merit, and as its enactment now rests with the Mayor. His Honor is now confronted with the alternative of either recognizing the demands of the public spirited citizens, who are supporting the measure with bona fide and convincing arguments to back them, or the claims of insincere theorists whose assertions of impending disaster are not borne out nor substantiated by facts."

AN EMERGENCY TAX FOR SECURITIES

Reported Agreement By Which a Larger Recording Tax Will Be Levied as a Substitute for Proposed Annual Tax

PREPARATORY to a complete revision of the tax system of the State, and in view of the alleged necessity of raising by direct tax and otherwise the extra sum estimated at $18,000,000, the Legislative leaders intend, as an emergency measure, to substitute for the bills proposing an annual tax on securities one which will impose a registration tax. In advance of the introduction of the bill, it is reported that the agreement is to the effect that bonds registered between May 1 and October 1 shall pay a registration fee of ¾ of 1 per cent. instead of ½ of 1 per cent., and shall be exempted from all further taxation for five years instead of forever as the present law now provides.

It was made evident at the hearing on Tuesday in the Senate Chamber that the Mills bill, if enacted at all, will first have to be radically amended. Naturally great opposition was raised against it by representatives of financial interests and by those tax experts who have their own notions as to how taxes should be levied. By practically all who appeared at the hearing it was agreed that the expenses of the State had been permitted to outgrow its income, and that until expenses can be reduced, new sources of revenue must be drawn on.

Leaders in the Legislature, after the hearing on the Mills bill, asked the advocates of the Emerson-Talmage bill to supplement former statements with further information, to aid them in coming to a decision as between the two measures or a modification of either. It was believed all along that the Emerson-Talmage bill had the best chance of passing, and it is still believed that eventually it will be incorporated into the laws of the State.

The Direct Tax.

The need for a new source of revenue was emphasized when the Assembly Committee on Ways and Means reported the general appropriations bill on Tuesday night and was discharged. The final print of the Appropriations bill shows a total of $32,419,491, but in addition to this measure there are pending other bills appropriating $36,000,000 more, for construction, supplies, highway maintenance, sinking fund payments, canal construction and special objects, or a grand total of $68,000,000 as the demands to be made on the general funds of the State. These will be met in part by indirect taxes estimated at $40,000,000, leaving about $28,000,000 to be raised by direct taxation, if the Appropriation bills are passed as they stand, and unless there be new sources of revenue. These new revenues will be furnished in part by the proposed increase in the excise tax on wines, by an increase in the automobile tax and the new secured debt tax. Mayor Mitchel still holds to his opinion that a direct tax is not required at this time.

What the Mills Bill Would Do.

Under the terms of the Mills bill bonds secured by property outside would be taxed a registration fee of $5 on every bond of $1,000 running for five years, and after that an annual tax of $1.50, so long as the bond pays interest. The tax would be levied on individual investors, domestic corporations, joint stock companies, trustees, agents, guardians or administrators holding taxable securities for persons within the State or outside.

Particulars of the Talmage Bill.

The Talmage bill in the Assembly (printed No. 1957) to amend the Tax Law, in relation to the tax on securities and repealing the tax on secured debts, inserts in the law a new article to be known as Article 15 of Chapter 62, of the laws of 1909, which new article provides (in section 330) for an annual tax of two mills on each dollar of the clear market value on the first day of July, 1915, and on the first day of July of each calendar year thereafter to be collected and paid upon the following named property:

1. A bond, note, debenture, certificate or other evidence of indebtedness, or other obligation for the payment of money or its equivalent, whether forming part of a series or otherwise, and whether or not secured by mortgage, deed of trust, deposit of collateral or otherwise, which obligation by its terms is payable one year or more from its date, except obligations the payment of which is secured by a mortgage of real property wholly within the State of New York, which mortgage is recorded in the State of New York.

2. Such proportion of the clear market value of a bond, note, debenture or other obligation for the payment of money or its equivalent, secured by a mortgage of real property partly within and partly without the State, as the value of the mortgaged property without the State shall bear to the value of the entire mortgaged property, taking into consideration the amount of any prior incumbrance upon such property or any portion thereof.

3. A bond, note, certificate or other evidence of indebtedness or other obligation for the payment of money or its equivalent, issued by a county, State, municipal corporation or political subdivision, which obligation by its terms is payable one year or more from its date, except a bond, note, certificate or other evidence of indebtedness or other obligation issued by the United States or a territory thereof, the State of New York, or a municipal corporation or political subdivision of the State of New York.

4. Shares of stock or other evidence of interest in a corporation, joint stock company or association, not incorporated or organized by or under the laws of this State, entitling the holder to participation in the net profits of the business for which the same is incorporated or organized, except shares of stock in a bank organized under the authority of the United States.

Exemption of Securities Deposited as Collateral.

Section 331. Bonds, notes or other obligations for the payment of money held as collateral to secure the payment of bonds, notes or other obligations taxable under this article or under article 11 of this chapter, shall, while so held, be exempt from taxation to an amount not exceeding the clear market value of the obligations so secured.

Section 332. Exemption of securities from other taxation. Property described in section 330 of this article, owned or held by the persons, corporations, joint stock companies or associations subject to taxation under this article, shall be exempt from other taxation.

Section 333. By whom tax to be paid. The tax imposed by this article shall, except as otherwise provided herein, be payable by every person residing within the State, and by every domestic corporation, joint stock company or association which shall on July first of the year for which the assessment is made, own the property subject to tax, or which shall on such date hold such property as agent, trustee, guardian, executor or administrator. The tax shall also be payable by every non-resident company doing business in the State.

CONSOLIDATION BILL UP TO THE MAYOR

Lockwood-Ellenbogen Bill Passes the Legislature With Large Majorities—Appeals for a Hearing—Other Bills in the Legislature

THE Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill, which gives property owners in New York City a measure of relief from over-regulation of their premises, after passing the State Senate last week with only three votes in the negative, was this week passed by the Assembly by the vote of 104 to 28. The bill is now to come to Mayor Mitchel. He will have fifteen days in which to sign it after he receives it.

The Conference Committee of Real Estate and Allied Organizations has addressed a letter to the Mayor praying that he now grant a hearing on the measure, in order that it may come again before the Legislature—provided he is not satisfied with the present provisions of the bill—in order that the bill, if his honor desires it changed, may be reconsidered immediately by the Legislature.

Petitioning the Mayor.

A general meeting of the Conference Committee was held at the rooms of the Real Estate Board yesterday afternoon. Phases of the pending bill were discussed and explained in the light that the conference sees them. As a result of the meeting, resolutions adopted by civic organizations and petitions signed by citizens are being presented to the Mayor in support of the appeal for a hearing at the earliest possible date.

The resolutions recite in part:

"Whereas over-regulation and over-inspection have been the most potent factors in causing the existing depressed condition of the real estate market and the consequent depreciation of real property values, and the enactment of this proposed legislation will prove equally potent in restoring confidence in real estate and in bringing values to their normal condition and in making real estate again a productive asset; and

"Whereas the near approach of the final adjournment of the Legislature makes it imperative that any desired changes in the measure, important to his Honor the Mayor, be immediately brought to the attention of the Legislature, in order that this relief measure, so necessary to property owners, may be passed; therefore

"We, the undersigned, respectfully urge that his Honor the Mayor advertise an immediate hearing on this bill in order that his attitude may be definitely known and his action taken, and the bill returned to the Legislature before final adjournment."

President McGuire, of the Real Estate Board, in expressing the hope to the Record and Guide that the Mayor would see his way clear to grant the hearing, said the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill was the best compromise between all the interests concerned that it had been possible to get. He greatly regretted that the Mayor had been misled and the daily papers also misled as to the effect of the bill, especially with respect to the Tenement House Department. Nothing in the bill changed the provisions of the tenement law—except as to its administration,

When the bill was on its final passage in the Assembly, Mr. McQuiston, of Kings, proposed an amendment that would leave the Tenement House Department undisturbed and win the signature of the Mayor, but the majority, seeing no good reason why an exception should be made for any department, rejected the amendment. Only twenty-eight Assemblymen could be persuaded to vote against the bill on the final roll call.

LAURENCE M. D. McGUIRE.

A leader in the campaign for the co-ordination of building inspection.

In an open letter published during the week Senator Lockwood, who introduced the bill in the Senate, said:

"It does not change one letter of the tenement law; as a matter of fact, it strengthens the law.

"It will not permit the change of a single building regulation or restriction in favor of any builder, whether he be scoundrel or humanitarian.

"The Mayor and his uplift associates in the City Government oppose this bill because it deprives Mayor Mitchel of the power to appoint a central bureau of buildings as attempted by him in the Wagner-Smith bill, which has failed in committee in both Houses of the Legislature.

"It decentralizes operating functions and brings them nearer to the people in each borough, but centralizes standardization and review and final authority.

"It substitutes practical efficiency and economy for the present theoretical operations of social uplifters whose work is done at great expense to the taxpayers.

"It will deprive the misinformed and misguided charity people and that unofficial arm of the City Government known as the City Club, both directed by out-of-towners, of their control over city departments and of their efforts to create new burdens.

Bills Signed.

Governor Whitman has signed the Cromwell-Stoddard bill, abolishing the office of Coroner in New York City, and transferring the duties of the office to a chief medical examiner, to be appointed by the Mayor, with deputies in each of the boroughs. The Governor also signed the Lockwood-Brennan bill reorganizing the New York City Municipal Court.

The administration bill, combining the workmen's compensation and labor departments was decided on at a conference of Governor Whitman, Senators Brown, Argetsinger, Walters, Mills, Thompson and Wicks, Speaker Sweet and Assemblymen Hinman and MacDonald. It increases from three to five the proposed industrial board to take charge of the "reorganized" department.

New Tax Commissioners.

Governor Whitman has signed the bill reorganizing the State Tax Department, and immediately sent to the Senate the nominations of these men to make up the new Tax Commission; Ex-Senator Martin Saxe, of New York; Walter H. Knapp, of Canandaigua, and ex-Senator Ralph W. Thomas, of Hamilton, all Republicans. They succeed the three Democratic Tax Commissioners—Thomas F. Byrnes, of Brooklyn; William H. Sullivan, of Norwich, and Joseph S. Schwab, of New York.

Lighting of Public Halls.

Senator Patten has introduced a bill amending the tenement house law by providing that public halls, if not more than twenty feet in length, and used or intended to be used as a means of egress from not more than three apartments separated from the stair hall and other parts of the public hall by a self-closing fireproof door shall, in lieu of a window opening directly to the outer air, be lighted in the following manner: All doors leading from such hall shall be provided with glass panels and also with fixed transoms of glass over each door, and such door or doors shall open directly from a room having one or more windows provided with not less than 12 square feet of glass opening directly to a street, yard or court.

New Senate Bills.

S. 1323. (Horton.) Amending the Labor Law (Subdiv. 2 of Section 79-b) by making applicable to six-story buildings the present provisions relating to stairway enclosures now applicable to five-story buildings only. The bill also extends to seven-story buildings, as well as to six-story buildings, the present provisions permitting the Industrial Board to modify the requirements for stairway enclosures. To Labor and Industries Committee.

S. 1300. (Bennett.) Authorizing the appointment of a commission of nine members, consisting of three Senators, three Assemblymen and three persons appointed by the Governor, to examine into the workings of the Workmen's Compensation Law, and of the Workmen's Compensation Commission. The commission must report to the Legislature by January 20, 1916, as to what amendments, if any, are necessary to be made in such law.

S. 1303. (Sanders.) By request. Amending the Labor Law (new section 3), by providing that the provisions of the Labor Law relating to the construction, alteration and structural changes in buildings, and authorizing the Industrial Board to make rules and regulations, shall not apply to cities of the first class. To Cities Committee.

S. 1555 (Sage). Appropriating $100,000 for the payment of interest on the Palisades Interstate Park debt.

S. 1556 (Sage). Appropriating $106,250 for the payment of interest on the debt for the construction of barge canal terminals.

S. 1558 (Walker). Authorizing the board of assessors of New York City to make awards for damages caused by the change of grade of 67th street, Brooklyn, between 14th avenue and Ft. Hamilton avenue. To Cities Committee.

S. 1559 (Boylan). Amending the General Business Law (Section 340), by providing that the provisions of this section in relation to monopolies and restraints of trade, shall not be construed to forbid the existence and operation of fraternal, labor, consumers, agricultural or horticultural organizations, orders or associations not having capital stock and not being conducted for profit. To Judiciary Committee.

HOW AN EMPLOYER CAN INSURE HIMSELF

He Must Furnish Proof of His Financial Ability and Deposit Securities and Cash—Answers to Inquiries for Information

TWO HUNDRED and eighty-eight employers in hazardous trades in this State have so far received permission to carry their own insurance under the Workmen's Compensation law. They are engaged in sixty-three industries and employ 284,000 men. Altogether they have deposited with the State Commission $3,387,000 in securities and $229,000 in cash.

Any employer has the privilege to secure compensation to his employees, for injuries that may be sustained, in one of the following ways: By insuring in the State Fund, by insuring in a stock or mutual company, or by carrying Self-Insurance. The State Commission makes no distinction between an individual employer, a co-partnership employer and a corporation employer.

The number of self-insurers is expected to be largely increased as employers come to a better understanding of the law, though, of course, the number will necessarily be limited to employers of relatively large means. Answers to some of the many queries about Self-Insurance that are being put to the State Commission by employers have been compiled by Assistant Secretary Nathaniel J. Rosenberg (formerly in the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings), from which compilation the Record and Guide is permitted to quote.

Proof Required.

In order to carry Self-Insurance, an employer must furnish proof to the commission of his financial ability to pay compensation to an injured employee when an award is made to such injured employee by the commission. The commission requires an applicant for Self-Insurance to make a formal request for the privilege to carry his own risk by filling out an application blank which is furnished by the commission. This application calls for information as to applicant's name, address, business, location of plant or plants, kinds of employment, number of employees, wage expenditure, etc. Attached to this application must be a detailed statement of applicant's assets and liabilities as shown by last inventory. When the application blank, properly filled out and executed, together with financial statement, are returned to the commission, the kinds of employment are classified and the rate is established.

When this has been done, the premium for six months is computed, using the same rate of insurance as employed by the State Fund.

Must Deposit Securities.

This premium is made the basis for the deposit of securities and cash required by the commission; or, in other words, the amount of the deposit of securities required by the commission from self-insurers should be equal to the six months' premium that would be charged to an employer were he to insure in the State Fund, except in addition to the six months' premium 10 per cent. of this premium must be in cash. The application, financial statement and established premium are then to be presented to the commission for consideration. The commission does not follow any particular form when considering an application for Self-Insurance. It is the extent of the hazard in connection with applicant's business, and his financial ability to cover such hazardous employment, which are given considerable weight.

Query.—In what class of cases, if any, are deposits waived?

Answer.—All carriers of Self-Insurance must deposit securities and cash. No deposits are waived for any class of cases. The amount of securities and cash to be deposited is ascertained by the sum of the six months' premium and the premium is established from the payroll of the different kinds of employment in exactly the same manner as an insurance company or the State Fund establishes the premium for an employer who desires to place his insurance.

Q.—What form must securities take, and what percentage must be in cash?

A.—The securities accepted by the commission are in the stocks or bonds of the United States, or of this State, or in the bonds of a county or incorporated city in this State authorized to be issued by the Legislature, not estimated above their par or their current market value. The minimum amount of securities accepted is $5,000. The amount of cash required is 10 per cent. of applicant's estimated six months' premium, the minimum amount accepted being $100. The interest on the securities is given to the self-insurer when collected by the commission. No interest is allowed on cash deposits.

Method of Payment.

Q.—In the event of accident what is the method of payment as regards employer in (a) death and permanent disability cases; (b) temporary disability cases; (c) medical fees, hospital fees, funeral expenses, etc.?

A.—The method of payment by an employer in a death case under the rules of the commission is as follows:

If an award is made, the amount to be paid at once is a sum which would compensate the widow or other dependents from the date of death up to about the time of the award. This may be three, four, five or six weeks, or thereabouts, and is paid in a lump sum, and under the rules of the commission the compensation is paid in bi-weekly payments thereafter, and as the installments are paid, whether it be the first installment or any bi-weekly installment, it is charged against the deposit of the self-insurer, and an employer or self-insurer is required to keep his account replenished by further deposits monthly.

Rule 31 of the commission states that "the commission will require under the provisions of Section 27 of the Act that every employer securing the payment of compensation under Subdivision 3 of Section 50 to transfer to the State Insurance Fund all further liability under such awards by paying amounts equal to the present values computed by the commission with due regard to life contingencies of all further payments."

All sums so paid in shall be received and held in the State Insurance Fund, the aggregate amount thereof to constitute a trust fund to provide for the payment of all awards of compensation, of which the same were computed to be the commuted values, the payment of which out of such aggregate trust fund or otherwise shall be assumed by the State Fund and such employers shall be discharged from any further liability under such awards.

A Time Allowance.

Unless good cause exists in the opinion of the commission for requiring otherwise in a particular case, no disability will for the purpose of this rule be deemed finally adjudged permanent, and no order will be made to pay the State Fund an amount equal to such commuted value until six months have elapsed after the injury; but during such period of six months the compensation will be paid to the commission and disbursed as provided by Section 25 of the Act.

Medical fees, hospital fees, cost of medical apparatus, etc., are paid by the employer carrying his own insurance directly to the person making the claim therefor, and is not to pass through the hands of the commission. Funeral expenses being a separate specific benefit under Section 16 are to be paid into the commission and by the commission to the person entitled to receive same, or may be charged against the deposit and the employer, as in the case of ordinary compensation awards, and in no case to exceed $100.

Right of Investigation.

Q.—Is opportunity given an employer to investigate after a claim is presented and may he appear at hearings before an award is made?

A.—The employer is given every opportunity to investigate any of the facts in possession of the commission with regard to a claim pending, and is given five days' notice that the claim will be considered by the commission on a certain date and an award made or claim disallowed, as the case may be, and the employer is permitted to appear at the time of such consideration of the claim by the commission and present any facts he may care to.

Many applications for Self-Insurance have been denied because of the applicants' failure to submit satisfactory proof of their financial ability to pay compensation for themselves. In several instances where the financial statement presented by the applicant for Self-Insurance was not satisfactory, the application was granted under the following conditions: The applicant deposited the required amount of securities and cash and in addition the parent company of the applicant had to file a sworn agreement to compensate any employee of its subsidiary company in the event of the subsidiary company's failure to pay the award of any claim made by this commission.

Assessing Real Estate of Corporations.

Two Deputy Tax Commissioners are assigned to the assessment of the real estate of corporations in this city, and are assisted by clerks. The class of property thus designated consists of all improvements in streets, waterways and public places other than special franchises, also of all rights-of-way of public service corporations which extend through more than one block. Where the right-of-way of a railroad runs into a station or freight house, such property is assigned to the deputy in charge of the real estate of corporations, as we learn from a department report.

The Deputy Tax Commissioners are required to report the value of the land of the rights-of-way of public service corporations computed in harmony with the value of adjacent land. The deputy in charge of the assessment of this property uses the values so reported to him and adds the value of the improvements whatever they may be. The deputy in charge of this bureau, moreover, is required to confer from time to time with the employees of the State Board of Tax Commissioners and furnish them with any information in his possession concerning special franchises and to obtain from the State Board any information useful to him in the determination of the value of the property he is assigned to assess.

HOUSE MOVERS HAVE THEIR TROUBLES

Difficulties Encountered by Those Whose Business It Is to Change Locations of Structures—Problems Greater than in Former Days

HOUSE movers engaged at this time in unusually difficult projects have injected into the business some of the old time interest which has been, in a great measure, lost by the gradually diminishing number of building removals. There was a time, when the city was younger and the houses smaller, that house movers conducted a flourishing business in practically all sections of the city; latterly, such operations have confined themselves to the outlying districts and they concern chiefly small frame and brick dwellings, which present few engineering problems.

The growth of the city, the creation of congested areas, busy streets, and heavy traffic, the demands for new and modern structures and the vigilance of the various city departments having jurisdiction over such matters, have made house moving, in the city proper, not only a hazardous, but also an expensive process. Activities of house movers in these sections of the city are limited principally to setting back buildings in street widening proceedings, or in the laying out of bridge approaches or other public improvements. Many of the old-time house movers have combined as part of their endeavors, shoring, wrecking and general contracting and construction work.

Unless the building itself is a valuable one or of recent construction, or retains a touch of the sentiment which its old age intensifies rather than destroys, it is rarely if ever moved, now-a-days, principally for those reasons which have already been pointed out. In many cases it has been found practical to demolish the old structure and rebuild rather than transport it to a new site, which may be too valuable for such an improvement.

There have been, unquestionably, a large decrease in the number of such removals. Perhaps that is why special interest is centered on the two operations now under way in the Bronx. They have been attracting general attention on account of unique features that have called into play all the arts and tricks of the trade of the old time house movers.

On the Grand Boulevard and Concourse, C. Vorndran's Sons are moving the Ryan mansion, built several years ago, at an estimated cost of $30,000, from its former site at the northwest corner of the Grand Boulevard and Concourse and 184th street, easterly, to the corner of Tiebout avenue and 183d street, a total distance of about 1,300 feet, a remarkable task when all the details are considered. It is a large dwelling, 2½ stories in height, about 60 feet square in size.

"The entire removal will take about six weeks," said Adam Vorndran, veteran house mover. "So much time is required because we cannot work steadily, without interruption. Weather conditions, such as we have recently been encountering, interfere with the apparatus and temporarily hold up the actual moving. A difficulty we had to overcome was the uneven distribution of the weight. The mansion has a stone tower and four massive chimneys, resulting in an uneven load."

The same difficulty, namely, the handling of the uneven weight and the possible danger of wall settlement, has been successfully overcome by William Higginson, who is just putting the finishing touches to another unique house moving job at Third avenue and 146th street. He lifted the massive old stone edifice of the Mott Haven Reformed Church around the corner into 146th street, a dangerous and complicated undertaking on account of the presence of the large towers. The church was built in 1853, entirely of stone.

MODERN HOUSE MOVING METHODS IN THE BRONX.

"This undertaking may be considered an unusual one," said Mr. Higginson, "on account of the unusual weight of the structure. The stone walls, in places, are four feet, eight inches in thickness. The church is being more than moved, it is being turned around, which presents considerably more complications than the average house moving job, which means simply going straight ahead. The greatest care had to be exercised in keeping the building level and intact at all times; if there was a single slip in miscalculation or misplacement of timber, it might have resulted in an irremediable loss or the hold up of the entire project."

Another recent removal with interesting features was the shift of the Sherman Monument at Fifth avenue and 60th street, about 280 feet in a southerly direction to its present location, in order to give the subway builders an opportunity to excavate in 59th street.

"This was a particularly delicate undertaking," said George F. Drew, of Drew Bros., Inc., who performed the work, "because we had to avoid injuring a work of art. This situation coupled with its weight, 160 tons, necessitated unusual safeguarding measures. The monument was carried on steel needles and moved on steel I-beams by means of steel rollers."

The average house moving job entails many precautionary measures because the building must be turned back to the owner in practically the same condition that it was before it was bundled up and shifted. The house mover actually maps out a campaign and usually does not, even at the request of the owner, attempt to move a 45 foot house through a 35 foot street.

The house mover meets a number of city departments in each project. He must obtain his permit from the Building Department and file a bond with the Highway Department that he will not damage the roadway. He must assure the Park Department that trees will not be injured. He must arrange that there be no clash with the Police Department, through interruption of traffic, and he dare not antagonize the Fire Department by blocking up a fire thoroughfare. He must always consider the public utilities corporations with their telephone and telegraph wires, cables, gas mains, and car tracks.

Having gained his necessary permits and mapped out his course of action, the house mover begins his preliminary work. He must see first whether the cellar is the logical point at which to take the support; he usually endeavors to take it from the underside of the first floor. The walls are carefully examined in order to determine whether they can be carried without collapsing or whether they can bear the strain of "jacking up" or tieing up. The details of the latter work depend upon the kind of construction of the wall. At this point he meets his most difficult problem, the question of uneven weights. He must provide against all possible danger to the interior or exterior of the structure and must offset any possibility of injury caused by cracks in the plaster or woodwork or any shrinkage or settlement of the walls.

"All these preliminary precautions must be taken," said Charles H. Mann, of Miller, Daybill & Company, "in order to determine how the building is to be tied up and all possibility of damage to the building eliminated. A careful examination of the building is imperative. It may not be fit for removal and an undue or excessive strain may result in the collapse of the entire structure."

Having determined that the building can be moved, the actual lifting and carrying is begun. Holes are cut at various joints and timbers and I-beam supports inserted which rest on the tracks on which the building slides. The foundations are cut away and the structure rests on the timbers. It is entirely cleared of the ground before it is moved, in the mean time being carefully balanced in order to make allowance for the various weights. There are various methods in vogue in the actual moving. In those cases where the weight is equally distributed, most of the work is performed by horses who work a windlass, to which chains are attached. In many cases the building is moved by hand. A squad of men with jack-screws of various sizes all exert their strength at a given signal and move the building by "inches."

"Why should New Yorkers pay for up-State roads they never see?" asks Senator Wagner. Isn't the Senator a federalist any longer?

New York State pays $150,000 annually for the rent of its offices in this city. That's five per cent. interest on a three million dollar State building, which the State ought to erect here.

The taxpaying public has a perfect right and, moreover, should consider it a duty to constitute itself a censor of the appropriating power.—President McAneny.

Taxpayers wish Mr. McAneny had always been as susceptible to their pleas for moderation in appropriations.

No department of government should be exempt from the common sense rules ordinarily applied to business conduct because of its avowed championship and connection with the interests of women and children. The conduct of business profitably must not be made impossible in New York City by over-regulation.

Sorry to see the Citizens Union, for the sake of being singular, wasting its efforts on the Flamman bill, which has no chance of being passed by the Legislature. One centralized department for the whole city with deputies in each of the boroughs, as provided in this bill, was the first thought of the advocates of a consolidation of building inspection, but the plan was found to be inexpedient.

Every man and woman who has saved or inherited a little money has it invested somewhere. A very large part is safely invested in real estate deeds and mortgages, but great numbers of investors have put billions into stocks, which for some years past have been salable only at a heavy sacrifice. Now that stock quotations are ascending investors are clearing themselves and taking profits, which permit them to end a long term of rigid economy, and to buy houses and lands and other things they have been wishing for. A bull market in Wall Street is good for real estate everywhere.

A Guarantee to Property Owners.

When the Board of Examiners was first established, in the year 1871, to hear appeals from the orders of the Superintendent of Buildings, it was considered the surest way of obtaining a competent and impartial court of justice under the conditions which then existed. Tradition says it was the manner in which the discretionary power conferred by the charter had been administered that caused the representatives of various building trade associations to come together with a determination to get a building law that would be comprehensive and fair. Up to the year 1860, when a separate building law was enacted, the public supervision over buildings had been exercised by Fire Wardens. The first officers of the new Building Department (a Superintendent, a Deputy Superintendent and eight inspectors) were selected in what may now be considered a curious way. Three members from the American Institute of Architects, three from the Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen and three officers of the Fire Department, met in convention and made the nominations. A return was made to the Mayor, who was required under the law to swear in the persons so nominated.

The building law of 1871 constituted the Board of Examiners and directed that it should comprise one member from the Board of Fire Underwriters, two from the Mechanics and Traders Exchange and the Superintendent of Buildings. Afterward the membership was increased by one from the Real Estate Exchange, one from the Society of Architectural Iron Manufacturers, one from the Real Estate Owners and Builders Association, and the Chief of the Fire Department. It was considered that a board so constituted and set apart from all political influences would be the guarantee of a square deal to the property owners of New York.

There was a further advantage to property interests from this mode of selection in that it insured that the board would be a technical body, that some of its members would be exceptionally well qualified to pass upon intricate questions of construction, and that others would understand the effect upon real estate investments of orders pending before the court. Each technical society named was the principal organized representative in its particular field at that period of the city's history. While there have since been changes in the component parts of the board, the essential character of the representation has remained the same. That is, the Board of Examiners has continued to be a technical body independent of and unconcerned about partisan politics. It has formed no part of the spoils system and has conscientiously attended to its own business. In its representative capacity it has covered the various branches of the business of constructing and altering buildings, which is the most considerable business in this city. With no larger compensation attached to the office than is paid to directors of banking and railroad corporations for attendance upon meetings, the honor of being selected by one's trade society for the "Court of Appeals of the Building Trades" has consequently been the sole reason why architects, builders and real estate managers of high standing have been willing in the past to give a part of their time to this public work.

As a long time has elapsed since the component elements were changed, and as new societies have grown up (as, for example, the American Institute of Architects, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Real Estate Board), the contention that the complexion of the board should be brought more into concord with existing conditions, is not unreasonable, if the intention is to continue the board as a technical body. The only criticism which in the opinion of the general building profession has been leveled at the Board of Examiners with any claim to reason, has been predicated upon the brevity of the opinions and decisions handed down. These have seemed not to have been written with the purpose of settling cardinal principles instead of minor details. That this fault, if it be a fault, is not personal but inherent in a court of this kind, is the argument which is likely to be most effective in favor of a board constituted after a different plan.

City Control of Terminal Facilities.

In cities that have both water and rail transportation it is important that all the railroads should have access to the waterfront. No one road should have a monopoly. A city owned belt line treats all shippers alike. From this belt line switches are run to terminal warehouses and factory districts. A few switch engines distribute the cars from one central yard or gather them up and bring them there. The present plan at this port whereby each railroad gathers up its own freight is an unnecessary expense to the roads and an inconvenience to the shipper. Instead of having to deliver goods at a half a dozen different terminals a shipper could, with a belt line railroad and general terminal system in operation, deliver all his freight at one terminal and have it distributed to the proper roads in the general collection yard, wherever it may be.

The city is trying to institute a system like this at South Brooklyn, and it has an enabling bill pending which has received the approval of the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers, the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trade. The Mayor says the plan is to give the City of New York the opportunity to secure for this marginal freight railroad which it proposes to build joint operation by all of the Eastern trunk line railroads by permitting these railroads to organize a joint terminal operating company. The law at presents prohibits the organization of such a terminal operating company by the railroads.

Well devised freight terminals have a direct connection with the local distribution of food and building materials. The extra cost of delivery in this city over what it ought and could be made to be is large. The cost of living can be reduced by reducing the number of steps between producer and consumer, and this the municipal government is trying to do through this Brooklyn marginal road, and through the terminal improvements which it is planning for the West Side of Manhattan and elsewhere in the city. It is regrettable that the plans for Brooklyn are confused with other things and that the issue is not very clear to the responsible citizenship. But one thing is very clear, and it is that our natural port advantages continue to be very much in the raw because of the lack of intercommunication between terminals and the lack of channel improvements. Think of a great waterfrontage such as New York City has along both sides of the East River in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Bronx and Queens, being left in large part unavailable for deep-sea vessels because of intervening reefs and other channel obstructions. There must be in Congress some deep hostility to this port, since obvious harbor improvements have so long been held back and the city deprived of the means of progress along the lines most natural to it.

The Mayor Must Decide.

A large measure relief from over-regulation which the real estate and allied interests of the City of New York have long contended for is vouchsafed in the bill which the Legislature has passed and is forwarding to Mayor Mitchel for his approval. The coalescence of the jurisdictions of a number of departments over the construction and alteration of buildings, as provided for by the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill, will permit of a needed retrenchment in the financial affairs of the city at a time when property is over-taxed as well as over-regulated mainly because of an overmanned civil service.

The Mayor will be assuming a very grave responsibility in withholding his approval from a measure whose cardinal principle, consolidation, has the approval of apparently every business man and property owner in the city. It is freely admitted that details of the bill do not coincide and cannot be made to coincide with everybody's views. Always will it be a matter of personal opinion as to what extent government should be centralized or decentralized. The seventy or more allied associations are advocating this bill because it represents the best compromise they could prevail upon the Legislature to pass.

The present municipal administration was elected to effect a relief from overtaxation. Municipal and State economy is the great need of the day. The Mayor can do much in that direction by consenting to the consolidation of building inspection, even if the method which the Legislature has found to be most expedient is not in accordance with his personal policies. We cannot have things just exactly as we wish in a popular form of government.

Street Encroachments Illegal.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Your issue of April 10 has an article entitled "Architectural Projections," which states than an ordinance legalizing encroachments beyond the street line has been drawn and is to be submitted to the Board of Aldermen for action. Apparently the ordinance attempts to legalize and to continue the flabby and defective enforcement of the law against encroachments which has prevailed in Manhattan for the past three or four years.

It would be interesting to know how often the courts of this State must pronounce these encoachments illegal before the city authorities will realize it. The fundamental condition on which the city may take the land from the private owner for a street is that it will maintain the street in trust for street purposes for the whole people. It may not authorize private individuals to use part of the street to the exclusion of the public.

Such encroachments exclude the general public from the street space they occupy. Not only the other owners in a block may enforce their removal, but any member of the general public has the same right. For the city to encourage the creation of such encroachments by appearing to legalize them is indefensible. Innocent parties buy the houses and are confronted with lawsuits when they try to sell. The courts are approaching nearer and nearer to the decision that all such encroachments are defects which may relieve a purchaser from his contract on the ground that he need not buy a lawsuit. Even if the city does not order the removal of the encroachments the next door neighbor may. (McMillan v. Klaw & Erlanger Construction Co., 107 App. Div. 407; Smithers v. Steiner, 13 Misc. 517).

In Fifth Avenue Co. v. the Lotos Club, 129 App. Div. 339, the court avoided the decision that a small projection of seven inches for a water table, easily removable, was a legal defect which entitled the purchaser to relief from the contract by finding that the projection was thirty-eight years old and had existed so long that it was to be presumed that neighborhood had acquiesced in its continuance. The fact that the building was to be destroyed may have had some influence, and, moreover, the next court may not take the same view.

The courts have declared time and time again that no board or official of the city had any power to authorize such encroachments, and now we have the city trying to legalize them by ordinance. (Sec. 50 of New York Charter; City of New York v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 104 App. Div. 223; McMillan v. Klaw & Erlanger, 107 App. Div. 407; People ex rel Browning King & Co. v. Stover, 145 App. Div. 259; City of New York, v. Rice, 198 N. Y. 124).

It is a curious coincidence that the proposed ordinance is in principle exactly like the ordinance enacted by the Board of Aldermen and pronounced invalid in the case of McMillan v. Klaw & Erlanger (supra.). That ordinance attempted to legalize "all decorative projections on the face of a building beyond the building line in the nature of porches, arches, porticos, pedestals, free-standing statuary, columns and pillars, which are erected purely for the enhancement of the beauty of the building from an artistic standpoint."

Perhaps the ordinance will not be enacted. CYRUS C. MILLER.

A Contract for Electricity.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The Board of Estimate has before it, for consideration, a proposed contract for the purchase of electric current by the city from a central station, for fifty years. This contract is in the form of a "franchise" which it is proposed shall be granted for a high tension electrical transmission line over the recently acquired Catskill Aqueduct lands from the northern boundary of the city to the dividing line between Westchester and Putnam counties.

The contract is set forth in full in the City Record of March 5, 1915, at pages 1840 to 1842 inclusive. It provides, to be sure, that the current shall be furnished to the city "free of charge," but as the city is giving in return a privilege which may be or become of great value to the grantees, the contract provisions in order to protect the city's interests adequately should ensure as compensation for this grant the furnishing of valuable service. If the privilege to be ceded were worth nothing to the grantees, it would, of course, be absurd to expect them to give in return therefor anything of value, particularly electric current transmitted a long distance from the place of generation. To speak of this current as "free" current is therefore, to use a misnomer, and it would be a great mistake to belittle those provisions of the contract under which (if at all) the city will be able to require such current to be delivered. * * *

In the proposed fifty-year contract the provisions for the furnishing of high tension current call for the delivery at each of three places (two of them within the Borough of Manhattan and one within the northern part of Westchester County), of 850 kilowatts of three-phase alternating current having a frequency of 60 cycles per second at a pressure at the two points in Manhattan of 2200 volts and at the point in Westchester County of 40,000 volts. These requirements are quite specific. The city is gambling that it will be able to use just this service for fifty years in sufficient quantity to afford adequate compensation for the privilege granted by the city. If the service will not be required after a few years, or if this class of service will in course of time become obsolete, uneconomic or otherwise undesirable, the city is the loser by reason of having committed itself so definitely to the class of service it will require.

On the other hand, the provisions of this contract for the furnishing of low tension current are quite different. The companies agree to furnish current to the city without charge as follows:

"(d) Furnish whenever required two-phase or three-phase or three-phase alternating current having a frequency of sixty (60) cycles per second, at a pressure of 110 or more volts, sufficient for operating all motors and other apparatus as may be required for the maintenance and operation of the aqueduct.

"(e) Furnish whenever required single-phase alternating current having a frequency of sixty (60) cycles per second, at a pressure of 110 or more volts, or direct current at a pressure of 120 or more volts, sufficient for lighting all said buildings, bridges and grounds as may be necessary, and for any and all other purposes as may be required in connection with the maintenance and operation of the aqueduct and appurtenant works and structures."

The city here takes much for granted. It fails to specify the official or board who shall require the service or who shall decide at any time during fifty years just the motors and other apparatus and lighting outlets which it shall be necessary to supply with current to keep the aqueduct in operation. It is very unbusinesslike to leave such important details "up in the air." The frequency of the current is carefully fixed at 60 cycles per second. The minimum voltages (110 for alternating current, 120 for direct) are specified exactly, but not the maximum. Motors are to be operated apparently by alternating current, but lights may be served by either alternating or direct current without mention of the person or persons who are to decide that important point. Though curiously indifferent to certain vital matters, the drawer of the contract has failed to give the city that latitude of choice as to quantity and kind of service which alone (if anything) would permit the city to adapt its needs of current along the new aqueduct for fifty years to important changes in the electrical industry.

This unusual problem of a fifty-year contract deserves the widest discussion in technical circles.

JOINT COMMITTEE OF GREATER NEW YORK ENGINEERS.
By James D. Taylor, Chairman.

Saving Money for the Property Owner.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Another condition has arisen to perplex the property owner. The Labor Department has been issuing orders requiring the tenants in certain factories to reduce the number of occupants per floor; also requiring owners of factory buildings to provide additional means of exit. The tenant upon the receipt of such a notice to reduce the number of his employees, notifies the owner and informs him that he must be permitted to maintain a larger number of employees than that stated in the notice, or else he will be compelled to secure other quarters.

Now it is quite possible that the conditions in the building may permit the housing of a greater number, provided certain requirements are complied with. There are requirements as to the construction and enclosure of stairways, the number and kind of fire-escapes, the floor area and other details which an architect, engineer or other expert familiar with the situation will be able to apply. I have a case in mind, where after the tenants were limited to a small number of employees per floor, it was possible after carrying out suggestions as to the exits to more than double the number of employees to a floor without involving the owner in any large expenditure of money. This number could have been further increased had it been necessary. The owner should call into consultation some one thoroughly equipped with a knowledge of the laws applicable, who after making an inspection of the building, will be able to extricate the owner from this difficulty, and save him his tenants.

There are problems constantly arising in existing buildings, where the owner is endeavoring to have his building conform to the various laws. To procure for the owner an acceptance of the exits now provided in his building, to demonstrate to the proper authorities that the conditions existing do secure the safety of the occupants, and thus save him from spending money in large alterations, are problems that an owner should refer to one who specializes in such work, and who after an investigation of his premises, will be able to tell him just what will and what will not be accepted.

Every building presents its own peculiarities. The inter-relationship of the various stairways, fire-escapes, exterior stairways, fire walls, etc., in a building, their remoteness or nearness to each other, or to other parts of the building, the nature of the work being conducted on the various floors, the nature of construction of the building, its height, the floor area, the nature of the surrounding buildings, and other conditions too numerous to mention, but sure to be recognized by the man trained to such work, enter into consideration when determining what changes, if any, that an owner must make, in order to bring his building up to the standard required.

REAL ESTATE NEWS OF THE WEEK

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits Together With Other Current Realty Items

A BROKER'S OPINION.

Effect on Real Estate of the Wasteful Issue of City Bonds.

Ernest Harvier, speaking of the general conditions in the real estate market, said this week: "Real estate values in New York City should reflect the improved condition shown in general business, in the second stage of the European war. New York City, as the chief shipping point for munitions of war, wheat, metals, oil and leather, should enjoy temporarily, at least, advantages which most other American shipping points lack, and with increased foreign trade, general business should be better and, when it is, real estate business is favorably affected, of course. The great barrier to the retention of real estate values here is the policy of the city administration or, more properly, all recent city administrations, in the wasteful issue of bonds, for unnecessary purposes, and the exploitation of the city government for "sociological" projects. The core of land values in New York is Manhattan Island, but the policy of all recent administrations has been to promote the growth of other boroughs, and of Westchester, Hudson County, N. J., and Nassau County, L. I., at the expense of Manhattan. Taxes here are paid, chiefly in the form of rent, and higher taxes and expensive 'supervision' have culminated in making many Manhattan properties untenated."

Old Brokerage Firm to Move.

After a tendancy covering a period of more than three decades, John C. R. Eckerson, successor to Thomas & Eckerson, real estate brokers, will move his office on April 22 from 35 West 30th street in the Wallack's Theater building, to 299 Madison avenue, corner of 41st street. Mr. William M. Thomas started in the real estate business at 508 6th avenue, in 1876, and Mr. Eckerson entered into a partnership with him, on February 1, 1880, under the firm name of Thomas & Eckerson. The business continued under this name until April 1, 1912, when Mr. Eckerson acquired Mr. Thomas's interest. Since that time the business has been conducted under the name of Thomas and Eckerson. John C. R. Eckerson, owner. In April, 1882, the firm moved to the Wallack Theater building, when that structure was completed, and has remained continuously in possession there for 33 years, being the only tenants ever to have occupied this space. The reason for the removal lies in the fact that this portion of the theater is to be demolished to make way for a modern loft structure. Prior to the erection of the playhouse, the site was used as a stone yard and miscellaneous trades.

Gasoline Engines to Fight Fires.

This week an order for six motor gasoline pumping engines for the Fire Department was awarded by Fire Commissioner Adamson, a purchase which signalizes the real commencement of a new era in the development of up-to-date scientific fire-fighting equipment. The new motors will supplant the present steam fire-engines which have added so much to the picturesqueness of fires. The gasoline engines in appearance are entirely different from the familiar steam fire-engine, and eliminate the smoke and noise which characterizes the old-fashioned engine. There is only one gasoline pumping engine in the department at the present time, and it was installed for the purpose of testing its practicability. In the high-pressure district, south of 34th street, Manhattan, and in the central business district of Brooklyn, engines are no longer needed, except as a reserve in case of a breakdown of the high pressure system, which furnishes the pressure.

The Fulton Trust Company.

The Fulton Trust Company of New York, located at 149 Broadway, has just completed its twenty-fourth year, having been established in 1890, and according to a statement of one of the officers of the company has paid to its depositors in interest on their accounts, the sum of $3,825,667.92; to its stockholders, in dividends, $1,022,500, and in addition, has accumulated in undivided profits $375,000, at the present market value of securities; making, with $500,000 capital and $250,000 surplus, a total of $1,125,000 capital, surplus and undivided profits.

The company recently issued an interesting pamphlet, reviewing the present situation, and dealing somewhat with the future. The officers of the company include Henry C. Swords, president; H. H. Cammann, Vice-President; Henry W. Reighley, Second Vice-President, and Charles M. Van Kleeck, Secretary.

"In spite of the fact," said Henry C. Swords, this week, "that conditions are considered unsatisfactory by many real estate owners, who have been affected in various ways by recent changes in the character of the neighborhoods, and by the multiplicity of building inspections, etc., I should say that the rate of interest on mortgages has rather eased off. We would report money offered at 5 per cent. for trust funds and, in those cases where the amount borrowed is small, as compared with the estimated value of the property, the rate is lowered to 4½ per cent.

"The future is problematic and dependent upon so many possibilities that we hesitate in prophesying. There is heard on every side a marked difference of opinion on account of the unusual economic and political situations which have been created, each observer retaining his individual impression and observation. No attempt, however, can be made to analyze conditions until the general situation has cleared, hostilities have ceased and the effects of the restoration of ante-bellum conditions become more apparent."

New Paving.

President Marcus M. Marks announces that the following new pavements will be laid in the immediate future:

Sheet Asphalt.—Dutch street, from John street to Fulton; 15th street, from Avenue A to Third avenue; 32d street, from Second to Third avenue; 40th street, from Second to Lexington avenue, and 176th street, from Audubon to St. Nicholas avenue.

Granite.—Houston street, from Lafayette to Crosby; 30th street, from Ninth to Tenth avenue; 32d street, from First to Second avenue; 38th street, from First to Second avenue, and 40th street, from First to Second avenue.

Guide for Notaries Public.

Eugene B. Schwartz, notarial and certificate clerk in the New York County Clerk's Office, has prepared at the suggestion of County Clerk Schneider, a manual entitled, "A Practical Guide for Notaries Public and Commissioners of Deeds." It is published by the Cooper Publishing Company. The book will be serviceable to notaries and commissioners who are not lawyers because of its instruction on the law prescribing their duties and regulating their liabilities. It may also be profitably consulted by members of the Bar because of the information it contains upon matters of practice and custom prevailing both in this county and elsewhere.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Buying, by builders, of sites for apartment houses in the Bronx and on the upper West Side, and of commercial structures in the midtown section of Manhattan, and the well maintained demand for investment properties of various kinds, resulted in one of the best weeks of the year, and furnished material for a most promising outlook. The improvement best manifested itself in the substantial increase in the number of transactions reported as compared with last week and previous weeks. If this tendency continues to become more marked and the general buying public becomes aware of the fact that there is a renewal of interest in real estate as an investment, the long looked for and expected revival will have become a reality.

The cry has been heard on every side in a great many lines of business, that people are retrenching and economizing; this feeling has been echoed in real estate circles and coincident with the slackening up of activity in a great many fields of endeavor has been a corresponding reaction in real estate. Latterly, however, there have been new developments and people are beginning to think and talk more optimistically. The time has arrived when brokers and others who are dependent upon realty for their livlihood, should become more imbued with this spirit which is creating generally, throughout the city and the country, a better feeling.

The announcement of the sale of the one-time home of the Calumet club, at Fifth avenue and 29th street, is interesting, inasmuch as the prominent corner is to be improved with an eleven-story structure, for occupancy by a well known cotton goods concern. The property has been vacant for some time, though various deals have been announced, affecting the corner. These, however, were never consummated. It will be remembered that the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and 31st street recently figured in a deal, which also calls for the improvement of the site.

The Ridgewood section of Brooklyn also was prominent in the transactions of the week, the Meyer estate property, containing 860 lots, being under negotiation for purchase, by a large building concern, which has been identified for several years in the district.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 35 as against 20 last week and 32 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 5 as compared with 6 last week and 16 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 30 as compared with 14 last week and 16 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 134, as against 143 last week, 18 having stated considerations totaling $596,700. Mortgages recorded this week number 73, involving $2,532,687, as against 96 last week, totaling $1,064,416.

From the Bronx 17 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 14 last week and 22 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $580,751, compared with $1,047,840 last week, making a total for the year of $14,335,673. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $795,400, and the total from Jan. 1, 1914, to April 18, 1914, was $12,415,924.

Lenox Hill Apartment Deal.

Pease & Elliman sold for the Lenox Hill Realty Company, Samuel A. Herzog, president, the new nine-story apartment house on plot 100x130, at 116 East 63d street, to a prominent New York investor. The brokers report it a cash transaction. The property has been held at $750,000. The land was acquired by the seller a year ago from the Murray-Lenox Land Company and Mrs. Amos Pinchot and the present structure completed last Fall. It houses four tenants to a floor and is entirely rented. Among the occupants of the building are George C. Hollister, Mrs. Helen M. Kelly, Langdon Geer and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick.

West Side Woodmere Deal.

Clarence Payne has purchased, from the Brixton Realty Corporation, Edwin S. Brickner, president, the "Brixford," a twelve story apartment house, at 138-144 West 79th street, on plot 80x100, through Robert E. L. Mordecai and Robert C. Knapp. In part payment, Mr. Payne gave about forty-five acres of waterfront running along the deep waters of Woodmere Bay, Long Island, for about 2,500 feet. The property is on the Woodmere boulevard and stretches east to the new Hewlett development. It is reported that the new owners intend to lay out this land in a co-operative park and erect summer residences on plots of two to three acres each.

Old Calumet Club Site Sold.

Burton Brothers, manufacturers of cotton goods, of 384 Broadway, have purchased from the Lawrence estate, through Tucker, Speyers & Company, the one-time Calumet Club property, at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and 29th street, on plot 49.5x100. The new owners will erect an eleven-story structure for their own occupancy. The property has been held at $600,000. It was recently reported leased to Dr. J. Wallace Beveridge but this lease has been abrogated. The deal serves to attract attention again to that section of Fifth avenue between 34th and 23d streets.

Buys Unimproved Corner.

The Buek Construction Company, Charles Buek, president, bought through A. H. Miller, from Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum and L. S. and A. M. Bing, the vacant plot 100x52, at the northeast corner of Lexington avenue and 50th street, part of the former Nursery and Childs' Hospital, acquired by the sellers at auction two years ago. It is reported that the property is to be shortly improved with a building to be leased to a single tenant. In part payment was given "Emsworth Hall," a six-story apartment house, at the southeast corner of Convent avenue and 149th street, on plot 100x100.

Builders in Field Place.

Richard H. Scobie has sold for the Estate of Edward Handy to A. Hamilton & Son, builders, a plot 62.06x100, in the south side of Field Place, between Creston & Morris avenues, opposite the new high school which takes in the entire block from Creston to Morris avenues, and from Field place to 184th street, and is now in course of construction. The same broker sold to A. Hamilton & Son a few weeks ago the adjoining plot on the southwest corner of Creston avenue and Field place, 58 ft. x 100 ft., making the entire plot 120x100, which will be improved with two high-class apartment houses.

Fifth Avenue Deal Closed.

Following the announcement in these columns last week that negotiations were well advanced, it was learned that contracts have been signed for the sale of the former Dinsmore property, at the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and 31st street. The property is assessed by the city for $570,000, and was sold by William F. Fuerst as broker for Jacob H. Schiff to the Strathcona Construction Company, which will erect a twelve-story store and loft building, at an approximate cost of $275,000, from plans prepared by George and Edward Blum.

Big Ridgewood Project.

The G. X. Mathews Company, which has been actively building and selling six-family flats in Ridgewood, is reported to be negotiating for the purchase of

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

At 10:30, this morning, on the steps of the County Court House, in City Hall Park, Joseph P. Day will offer at auction, in bankruptcy proceedings, the real estate holdings of the New York Real Estate Security Company, in what is considered one of the largest public sales of improved Manhattan holdings ever scheduled. Among the properties on the list is the twenty-story office building, 42 Broadway; also the eleven-story apartment house at 468 Riverside Drive, and a number of other high class apartment houses and Westchester acreage. Another foreclosure action affecting the leasehold block front on the west side of Broadway, from 147th to 148th street will result in the offering of the Bunny Theatre and fifteen stores erected on the plot, by Bryan L. Kennelly.

DEPARTMENTAL RULINGS.

BOARD OF EXAMINERS.

The following appeals and decisions have been handed down by the Board of Building Examiners:

APPEAL 117 of 1915, New Building 1570 of 1915, 128-148 Linden avenue, Brooklyn. Messrs Sass & Springsteen, appellants.

Section 31 of Code.—Omission of brick fore and aft partition walls.

An equally good form of construction can be employed.

To omit the brick fore and aft partition walls. A fire wall is provided to limit the undivided area. Laid over.

APPEAL 118 of 1915, New Building 1666 of 1915, 402-404 South 2d street, Brooklyn. Messrs. Sass & Springsteen, appellants.

1. Fore and aft walls omitted.
2. Excessive area of stair walls.
3. Excessive height of walls.

An equally good and more desirable form of construction can be employed.

1. To omit parts of the fore and aft wall at front and rear, and allow the floor beams to be carried on girders over the centre of the rooms;
2. To permit the stair enclosure walls to be 8" on 3d and upper stories.
3. To permit the walls of 2d story to be 12" thick.

1. The fore and aft partition wall is provided where possible and practically throughout the entire length of the building, and a fire wall is provided to divide the building.

2. The area of stair hall is only 6½ ft. in excess of 180 sq. ft. and it is better to give more room in the stair hall than to reduce same 4" in length and 2" in width in order to bring it down to the exact area of 180 sq. ft.

3. The total height of the building is only 1' 3" in excess of 60 ft. above the foundations, and the 12" walls are only 9" in excess of 50 ft. Laid over; appellant absent.

APPEAL 119 of 1915, New Building 1685 of 1915, 209 Avenue F, Brooklyn. W. T. McCarthy, appellant.

Thickness of fore and aft walls not according to section 31 of the Code.

The proposed construction is better than the construction permitted according to the part of Section 31 of the Code pertaining to party walls of twenty foot houses.

That the 8" fore and aft walls shown on the accompanying plans be permitted and that a girder fireproofed in an approved manner be used at front and rear instead of a 12" brick wall.

1. That the 8" fore and aft wall shown on plans does not exceed 24' and the span between it and the adjoining 12" outside walls does not exceed 16' 6" which is 3' 6" less than permitted in a 20' house.

2. That the girders properly fireproofed are good construction inasmuch as a fire wall is provided at stairway. Approved.

APPEAL 120 of 1915, New Building 1686 of 1915, 203 Avenue F, Brooklyn. W. T. McCarthy, appellant.

Thickness of fore and aft walls are not according to Section 31 of the Code.

The proposed construction is better than construction permitted according to the part of Section 31 of the Code pertaining to party walls of twenty foot houses.

That the 8" fore and aft walls shown on plans at the narrow portion of building are 26' and 15' respectively and the span where they take bearing from both sides does not exceed 17' 6" on either side, which is 2' 6" better than in a 20' building.

2d. That the 16' section of wall in the rear portion of the building from the rear wall to the angle takes bearing from only one side and carries a span of only 13' 3". Approved.

APPEAL 121 of 1915, Alteration 531 of 1915, 18-22 West 18th street, Manhattan. Henry C. Pelton, appellant.

1. Building increased in height to over 150 ft. All interior trim should be fireproofed.

It being claimed that the rules and regulations of the President of the Borough, or the provision of the law, or ordinances do not apply.

That an equally good and more desirable form of construction can be employed.

That all unfireproof interior trim in present building remain and not be removed.

In as much as the proposed Pent House covers 13% of the present roof area (floor area of Pent House is 1,000 sq. ft.), and that the proposed Pent House being separate from present building, there being no direct connection with present building, entrance is made direct from roof; a favorable decision on the above stated question is desired. The height of the present building is 146' above the curb (eleven stories). The height of the proposed Pent House is 14' above roof, making a total height of 160' above the curb. Approved.

APPEAL 122 of 1915, Alteration 522 of 1915, 26 Broadway, Manhattan. Messrs. H. Craig Severance & Wm. Van Alen, appellants.

1. As the building exceeds twelve stories in height and the doors and interior trim are of wood the building may not be increased in height.

It being claimed that the rules and regulations of the President of the said Borough, or the provisions of law, or ordinances do not apply. That an equally good and more desirable form of construction be employed.

To enlarge an existing pent house now covering 24%, this enlarged pent house will cover 45% and the part to be used for dining room and kitchen services is 42%.

This addition to the existing pent house in question is to be used for the dining room and kitchen services. The present dining room on the roof is not adequate and it is believed that the new services as planned in the pent house will give better accommodations and safety to the occupants, than that which already exists, this dining room is to be used only by the officials of the Standard Oil Company and is used only for mid-day service. Also that the pent house will be constructed so as to comply with all of the standards established by this Board. The present staircase and fire escapes are to be extended to this level and two additional staircases added. The stand pipes, etc., will also be extended to this level and the glazing of the windows to the kitchen will be of wire glass. Approved.

APPEAL 123 of 1915, New Building 1780 of 1915, 319-321 Stone avenue, Brooklyn. Benj. Cohn, appellant.

1. Comply with Section 31 of Code for brick partition walls fore and aft spans exceed 26' between bearing walls.

An equally good and more desirable form of construction can be employed. And it being claimed that the rules and regulations of the President of the said Borough, or the provisions of law, or ordinances do not apply.

That the distance between the main bearing walls is not over 26' and therefore no fore and aft brick partition walls are necessary.

Walls forming structure conform with Section 31 of the Building Code, in that the main bearing walls are not over 26' apart, and 8" brick fire wall separating front part of building from rear part of building is provided. Disapproved.

APPEAL 124 of 1915, New Building 1965 of 1915, 1630-1640 Park place, Brooklyn. Benj. Cohn, appellant.

Wording same as in Appeal 123 of 1915. Approved.

APPEAL 125 of 1915, New Building 1996 of 1915, 1646 Park place, Brooklyn. Benj. Cohn, appellant.

Wording same as in Appeal 123 of 1915. Approved.

APPEAL 126 of 1915, New Building 2008 of 1915, 3181 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn. Benj. Cohn, appellant.

Wording same as in Appeal 123 of 1915. Approved.

APPEAL 127 of 1915, New Building 1972 of 1915, 157 Ross street, Brooklyn. Messrs. Shampan & Shampan, appellants.

1. Provide fore and aft partition walls.
2. Height of building contrary to Section 31.

1. In view of the fact that clear spans are not over 26 feet and floor beams will be supported on steel girders and columns, ask that this condition be accepted.

2. Request that 12" brick walls may be used in 2d story as the 12" section of the walls is not over 50 feet in height.

1. Omit fore and aft brick partition walls and provide girders and columns in lieu of same.

2. Walls need not be increased in 2d story.

1. As the clear span between bearing is not over 26 ft. and steel columns and girders will be provided to support floor beams, request that this condition be accepted.

2. As the 12" section of the wall will not exceed 50 ft. would request that this condition be accepted.

APPEAL 128 of 1915, New Building 1934 of 1915, 846 Prospect place, Brooklyn. Messrs. Slee & Bryson, appellants.

Denied as to Section 31 of the Code.

Application No. 1934 for New Building of the year 1915 has been denied as to Section 31 of Code.

To use steel girders and Acme columns for the support of floor beams as shown on drawings, same to be fireproofed in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Bureau of Buildings, in lieu of unpierced brick as defined in Section 31 of Building Code.

It is impossible to construct partition of brick on account of irregularity of the layout of plan, also impossible to use unpierced brick wall within apartments.

APPEAL 129 of 1915, New Building 341 of 1913, 31 West 110th street, Manhattan. Louis Allen Abramson, appellant.

24. Wood enclosure on roof garden of unlawful construction. Should be of incombustible material.

To approve the mode, manner of construction or materials proposed to be followed or used in the erection or alteration of such building or structure.

To permit the use of wood in the construction of the open trellis work, pergola, and supporting members.

The building is occupied and owned by the Young Women's Hebrew Association, by reason of which the fire hazard is reduced to the minimum, no smoking being allowed, and the building being the highest in the locality, it is the appellant's belief that the material desired to be employed, will be equally good to that demanded by the Superintendent of Buildings. Laid over.

APPEAL 130 of 1915, New Building 1810 of 1915, northeast corner Livonia avenue and Hinsdale street, Brooklyn. Louis Allen Abramson, appellant.

Denied under Section 31 of Code.

To approve the mode, manner of construction or materials proposed to be followed or used in the erection or alteration of such building or structure. Or that an equally good and more desirable form of construction can be employed.

The use of steel girders; steel girders to be properly fireproofed, in place of fore and aft brick walls.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

ELECTRIC SERVICE FOR APARTMENTS

By ALLAN COGGESHALL, Society for Electrical Development, Inc.

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

THE problem of equipping an apartment house to meet the growing demands of the modern public is beginning to assume some of the exacting requirements that have been part of the office building problem for several years. Business men are beginning to demand that the rule of efficiency in equipment be applied to the home, as well as to the office. This is especially true of those who live in buildings constructed on the multiple home basis. When an owner offers one of the multiple home buildings to the public, he must be able to boast of complete equipment and conveniences and luxuries not to be had elsewhere.

In taking this subject up, it should be borne in mind that the electrical equipment is more intimately and constantly related to the actual daily functions of the home than any other single part of the entire mechanical plant. It is therefore important that all possible needs be anticipated and that no room be left for complaint of inadequate facilities.

Electrical Installation.

The electrical installation may, in a broad way, be divided into two parts—that part common to or serving all parts of the building, such as elevators, feeders, main switchboard, and that part individual to the separate apartments. If tenants are to be billed separately for electric power, electric meters must either be placed in each apartment or separate feeders run to each apartment and the meters all installed in one location in the basement.

Within the separate apartments, the equipment should be complete. The lighting requirements, of course, must receive first attention. In laying out the lighting, it must be remembered that the scheme is not being made for any particular tenant and must therefore be a scheme that admits of diversity of lighting effects.

The several living-rooms of the home must receive their individual treatment and both ceiling and bracket outlets should be provided. There should be sufficient plug receptacles located near the baseboards or in the floors for table, piano lights and fan connections. It is important that some flexibility, as to the switching arrangements, be provided, so that all the lights, or a portion of them, may be switched on at one time. This may be easily accomplished by the installation of suitable gang switch boxes designed for easy access to allow change of wiring connections.

Dining Room Opportunities.

The dining-room offers great opportunity for installation of electrical conveniences and there is probably no other place in the home where they are more appreciated. Usually a ceiling light over the table is preferred, and as there are many minds and ideas as to the type of fixture that should adorn the feast, this outlet should be arranged for easy disconnection and change of fixture. This fixture should also be arranged for progressive lighting so that several degrees of light may be obtained by successive pushes on a wall push button. In placing wall brackets, care should be taken not to monopolize wall space to the exclusion of furniture and pictures.

The provision for power outlets for main dining room table and for side tables is a problem deserving careful attention. Too often heating devices for the table are connected to the overhead fixture to the disadvantage of the main lighting and result in the unsightly appearance of wires dangling over the table, the overloading of circuits and the frequent blowing of fuses with the usual acompanying inconveniences.

Separate circuits should be run to floor boxes and to baseboard outlets and removable connections may then be made from these to plug receptacles, set in plates, fastened to the back of the apron of the table. In this way the table is not disfigured and may also be readily disconnected for moving about. These receptacles may be arranged in one, two or three gang combinations. Side-wall receptacles for plate warmers, chafing dishes, percolators, hot water plates, etc., should be placed in logical locations for such attachments.

Power Receptacles.

All power receptacles should be designed to take the same plug and these should be made to fit only the power outlets so as to prevent their attachment to lighting circuits which are not designed to carry the relatively heavy currents required by the heaters. In other words, the use of heating devices should be encouraged, but means should be taken to make their attachment so convenient at the power outlets and difficult at other points that they will not be indiscriminately connected to lighting circuits. At least one power receptacle should be located in every room to permit the attachment of vacuum cleaner machines.

In the same way power outlets should be provided in kitchens, pantries and laundries. In these rooms electricity may be efficiently employed for a number of purposes, such as ranges, heaters, fans, motors, irons, washing machines, etc.

Heating Attachments.

In bathrooms also, power outlets should be placed to provide means of attachment for heaters which will be found useful in mild weather when furnaces are not in operation to take the chill off the room. In these rooms the light should be carefully placed to give adequate lighting on the important operation of shaving. Important closets throughout the apartments should be equipped with lights, operated by door switches arranged so that opening the door automatically turns on the light.

Hall and corridor lighting should be arranged for switching, so that the lights may be turned on or off from either end of the hall. This may be accomplished by the use of three and four-way switches installed at the two or more entrances to the space to be so controlled. This same principle may be applied to any other portion where this method of control is wanted. It may be applied also at the main panelboard, so that all lights may be illuminated or extinguished at this point.

The illustration cited above will serve to indicate a few of the many ways in which these scientific homes may be made electrically efficient from the light and power standpoint. The electric equipment, however, can be made to serve other purposes; for example, telephone and bell systems come within its province and the proper installations of these can contribute much to the convenience of the household.

Telephone System Desirable.

Here, again, the system may be broadly divided into two parts—first, that part serving all tenants collectively; and, second, that individual to the separate apartments. The equipment constituting the first part is similar to that of the lighting system and consists of trunk feeders for telephone, main telephone switchboard, main stations for interior communicating telephones and battery supply feeders and power plant for the bell system. A source of low voltage supply should be furnished to each apartment to eliminate the inconvenience of replacing batteries.

Small panels may be installed adjacent to the lighting panels to provide for such connections. An interconnecting box for telephones with direct conduit connection to each apartment should be provided for telephones. This box should also be connected to the main distributing point in the basement and arranged so that tenants may be given service through the private branch exchange board of the building or directly to the central office, if desired. Within the apartments conduits should be run so that telephones may be located wherever desired and so that they may be changed to different locations readily.

Bell System.

The bell system should admit of various arrangements, ample conduit connections being provided from all rooms to some central interconnecting box which may also be located near the lighting panel. With such an arrangement any system of calls may be readily accomplished by suitable cross-connections at this box, which thus forms the headquarters for the entire layout. In installing the bell system it is important that rigid conduit runs be provided for all wires.

Bells, buzzers and annunciators should be provided in the servants' quarters and push buttons in other rooms, or empty outlet boxes for future connections. Flexible cords may also be provided from the bell system in the same way as indicated so that a maid or servant may be called from the bedrooms with the least possible effort.

Wm. A. White & Sons' New Offices.

Unique features embodied in the layout of the new home of Wm. A. White & Sons, occupying the twelfth floor at 46 Cedar street, serve to make it one of the most attractive and best equipped real estate offices in the city. The space was originally designed for the Continental Insurance Company, and its most distinctive characteristic is the wide mezzanine gallery, which gives the offices an unusual height of twenty feet and considerable additional space.

On the main floor are housed the management and renting departments; the sales force, the bookkeepers, and also the offices of the directors. On the mezzanine gallery will be located the stenographers, the filing clerks and the telephone operator, whose location gives her the range of the whole area. Here, also, is the library, whose book-lined shelves lend particular distinction to the entire floor.

To these advantages of arrangement are added the exceptional light, which the location on the twelfth floor affords. The suite both in layout and equipment, represents the last word in the modern real estate office.

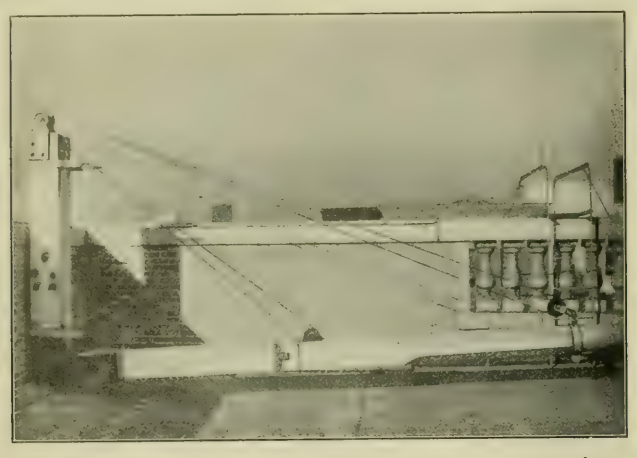
USEFUL APPLIANCES



Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

Roof Safety.

So much damage can be done by a falling flag pole on a roof that a device has been perfected for quickly lowering flag poles in a high wind or for purposes of painting.

It is in the form of a tackle whereby the pole can readily be lowered by building employees. The pole can be thoroughly inspected by building superintendent, necessary repairs can be made, it can be scraped and suitably painted—and raised to original position—without calling in outside workmen, without danger, and at minimum cost.

The device can be applied to most buildings having a flat roof and provided with a stub pole and consists of a system of steel cables, sheaves and drums applied to the pole and operated by hand worm and gear, which allows of complete control of the lowering or raising operation.

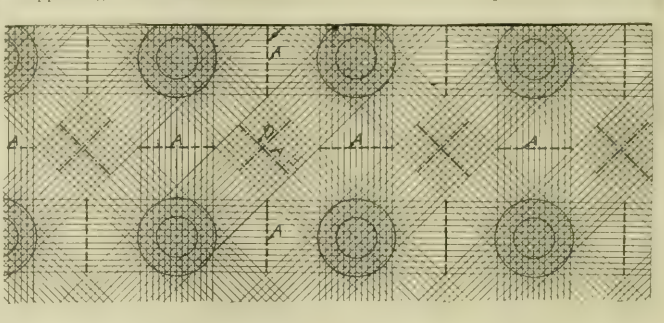
It is generally assumed that the pole will be fastened by bolts or stirrups to the stub pole built into the fire-wall or other location, and a steel plate base with hinge pin is bolted to the stub and pole.

A shackle is fastened around pole at suitable distance from base and provided with suitable rope sheave. A second plate with sheaves is bolted to pole at top of stub. The rope is then reaved through these sheaves and fastened to controlling shaft and one man can easily raise or lower the pole by use of removable handle provided. When the pole is raised to position against the stub, stirrups are bolted on to take the strain from the cables; and to lower again it is only necessary to uncouple the stirrups and see that the cable is in proper position.



Spacer for Reinforcement Bars.

ILLUSTRATED herewith is the sketch of a very complicated form of bar reinforcement applied in the Rosenbaum Co.'s warehouse, Pittsburgh, Pa., under direction of Hunting & Davis, architects. It is merely an application of the use of the space bar shown in the smaller cut. The features of this space bar include a spacer support tie and cross bar in one piece. This bar is provided with fingers to hold any size or shape reinforcement bar at the required spacing.

At intervals of about 18 inches a chair is welded to the under side of the spacer bar supporting the reinforcement a proper distance from the forms. By one blow of a hammer a finger is bent over the reinforcing bar, holding the bar firmly in place. The advantage of this system is that there is no measuring, counting, wiring or tieing required, no pulling up of bars, none is omitted. There is no concrete supporting blocks and only one handling is required. There are no exposed steel bars when the forms are removed. The most complicated reinforcement plan can be executed with perfect unity, according to the manufacturer by the use of this bar.

To Test Heat In Coal.

BUILDING managers who think that they are not getting the proper amount of heat out of the coal that they purchase may, by a simple arrangement, make suitable tests to determine the quality of the fuel they are buying. We illustrate herewith, through the courtesy of the American Gas Light Journal, a calorimeter of simple construction. This device tells the number of calories (the unit of heat to express the amount of heat required to raise one kilogram of water from 0 degree to 1 degree center grade) there is in coal under test.

The calorimeter consists essentially of an outer jar of glass provided with a reference line indicating the height to which it is to be filled with water in making an experiment. From the edges of the jar a crucible support is slung by the spring clips shown in Fig. 1. A piece of lampwick, impregnated with sodium or potassium nitrate, is embedded in a briquette of the coal under test, and ignited by a match as indicated.

The glass bell, shown to the right in Fig. 1, is then lowered over the crucible and clamped against a rubber ring by springing back the supporting slips into their vertical position, as in Fig. 2. Oxyben is supplied from an oxygen bottle through an automatic reducing valve and the flexible pipe to the inlet pipe T, then is fitted with an additional regulating valve D. This oxygen causes the coal to ignite, and the products of combustion flow through the coil F, and escape through small holes near the end of it, and finally up through the water. The gases part with their heat, and at the same time thoroughly stir the water. A series of readings of the thermometer S are taken at regular intervals, and plotted against a time base, for determining the radiation correction. Simultaneous observations are made of the room temperature. The maximum temperature recorded on the plot is noted, and the temperature rise deducted from this is corrected for the loss of heat externally, by means of a table of coefficients. The water equivalent of the coil and bell and other components of the calorimeter is also supplied by the makers, and as a consequence the user has merely to fill the apparatus to the level engraved, and may then treat the whole as having a constant specific heat, and obtain his results by multiplying a constant by the corrected temperature rise, and dividing this by the weight, in grams, of coal.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

New Structure To Be Erected, at Riverside Drive and 161st Street, Will Form Another Unit in Large Growing Colony

AT the northeast corner of Riverside Drive and 161st street a modern six-story apartment house is soon to be started which will embody some unusual features in both plan and construction. It will be a high class structure in every respect. The building will be owned and erected by the Melvin Construction Co., Inc., Henry Friedman, president, 189 Broadway, and will involve an expenditure of about $1,000,000, including the land.

For its height, the proposed structure will be one of the largest single buildings of its class in the city. It will practically cover a plot 213x110x100x163 feet. The Riverside Drive frontage is 113 feet and that in West 161st street is 213 feet. Three courts will be provided, one interior and two exterior, which will supply light and air in abundance. They are generous in size, considerably larger than is required by the Tenement House Law. The interior court will be 25x25 feet and the exterior or outer courts 15x55 feet.

Harold L. Young and Steward Wagner, architects, 1204 Broadway, are now preparing the plans from which this building will be erected, and the lay-out evidences much thought and care on the part of the architects.

H. L. Young & S. Wagner, Architects.
RIVERSIDE DRIVE AND 161ST STREET.

The facades of the proposed structure have been designed in the style of the Venetian Gothic which will harmonize well with the neighboring buildings. These facades will be constructed of brick, granite and polychrome terra cotta. The basement, which, on account of the steep grade at this point, is almost wholly above the level of the sidewalk, will be of granite up to the underside of the sills of the first story. Above this the fronts will be of brick and terra cotta. The effect of the steep grade will give the appearance of a seven-story structure when viewed directly from in front of the building.

All exterior walls, including the faces of the courts, will be constructed of face brick. This will increase the cost of construction but will also greatly add to the appearance of the structure.

In view of the fact that so large a part of the basement is above grade, the owner has decided to use part of it as an office. Another section will be finished and furnished for use as a ballroom or assembly for the tenants of the building. The rear portion will contain the heating plant and storage rooms for coal and other storage purposes. Part of the roof facing Riverside Drive will be made into a roof garden, and the balance used as drying space for clothes.

This building is being planned to accommodate fifty-four families, or nine families to a floor. The suites consist of four, five, six, seven and eight rooms with baths. The seven and eight-room groups include a maids' room and two baths. This structure is so being planned that eight of the apartments on each floor have an outlook on either the Drive or on 161st street, leaving only one four-room suite whose only outlook is on the yard. Each suite has a foyer hall, and in some suites these are nearly of room size with windows on a court. The arrangement of these foyers are very attractive additions to the building.

Two entrances to this building are to be provided. The main entrance will be on Riverside Drive and will provide access to a lobby, 15.6x100 feet, which will be handsomely decorated and furnished. Walls and floors will be of rich marbles and mosaic work, and the ceilings will be of plaster in relief, painted and gilded. The main entrance with its elaborate detail and ornamental iron doors and grilles will be three stories in height and it will be the predominating feature of the facade, supplying the motif for the design of the building.

One of the good features in the plan of this apartment is the number of commodious built-in closets which are to be provided. Closets are very essential in apartments, as only in rare instances can one of the rooms be used for storage purposes. The closets in this building are large and well placed in relation to the rooms they serve.

The construction of this building is semi-fireproof, and all dividing walls between apartments are to be of brick or hollow tile, which are effective fire stops. Each suite will contain all the most modern appliances for efficient housekeeping and conveniences for the comfort of the tenants.

For a building of its size the public halls on each floor will be remarkably short. This advantage is made possible by grouping the stairs and two electric elevators practically in the center of the building, and radiating the halls from them. The stairs are well placed behind the elevators and are obscured by them.

The section is admirably adapted for apartment house construction, although the land is rocky and rugged. A block south of the contemplated structure is a strip of hilly woodland, in marked contrast to the tall apartment houses adjoining. Riverside Drive at this point is a winding country road, unusually picturesque, the beauty of which is enhanced by the irregularity of the landscape and the proximity of the Hudson, over which expansive views can be had in many directions.

RIVERSIDE DRIVE, NORTHEAST CORNER OF 161ST STREET.

STEINWAY TUNNEL AND APPROACHES

Plans for a Connection With the Grand Central Station—Traffic Arrangements for the Tunnel Route

THE Interborough Rapid Transit Company has given careful consideration to the plan, prepared by the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens, for an immediate connection between the Steinway Tunnel at Grand Central Station, which will do away with the necessity for passengers coming to the surface of the street between Lexington avenue and Third avenue, and walking 900 feet through 42d street to the entrance of the subway. A definite proposition has been made by General Manager Frank T. Hedley of the Interborough, as to the method of construction and the time for completion of this work. The Transit Committee of the Chamber will now ask the Public Service Commission to order this work done and also request the Board of Estimate to appropriate the necessary money for the extra work.

Mr. Hedley states they appreciate that the people of Queens have been deprived for many years of the transportation that the Steinway Tunnel should have afforded, and would like to provide train service to at least Grand Central Station in the shortest possible period.

The Diagonal Station.

The construction of the diagonal station connecting the present subway in Park avenue with the new Lexington avenue subway, however, is a very difficult contract, and a penalty of $300 a day will be imposed for each day over the contract time. It is, therefore, important that nothing delay the completion of this contract. Notwithstanding this fact the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which has the contract for the diagonal station, is willing to construct two of the three elevator shafts and have same ready for the operating company to install the necessary elevators, and will undertake to complete this work within 14 months from the date of the execution of its contract, for a nominal sum, to be allotted to it by the Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate.

Inasmuch as this would save approximately two years of inconvience to the many thousands of passengers who will use this tunnel from the time of its opening this June (for the diagonal station will undoubtedly take at least three years to complete), the people of Queens believe they are entitled to this relief, especially as they have been paying taxes for the past eight years based upon the operation of the Steinway Tunnel. One taxpayer alone in Long Island City has stated that the real estate owned by his company has paid in taxes to the City of New York, over and above what it would have had to pay had the Steinway Tunnel not been constructed, more than the amount which is requested for the additional expense that is required to make this immediate connection.

The Steinway tunnel is to be extended from its present western terminus at 42d street to Times Square, and from its eastern terminus in L. I. City to a junction with the Astoria and Corona lines on the Queens plaza of the Queensboro Bridge. The Interborough will therefore be able to operate trains from the two elevated sections of the Dual System in Queens not only over the bridge to the Second avenue elevated lines, but also through the Steinway tunnel to the subway in Manhattan.

That is to say, a person starting at Elmhurst will be able (when the Queens lines are in operation) to take a train which will come to Queens plaza and continue on through the Steinway tunnel to any of the subway lines in Manhattan, or he can take a train coming over the bridge to the Second avenue elevated line. When the new subway tunnel is ready there will be a third route into Queens, and all will be linked together. As for the man in Manhattan, he will be able to enter the subway station nearest to him and go to almost any part of the city by train in quick order.

The Steinway Tunnel Arrangements.

The cars which will operate in the Steinway tunnel will also operate over the Astoria and Corona "L" lines in conjunction with the cars which will operate over the Second avenue elevated line and across the Queensboro Bridge.

The subway and Manhattan elevated third-rail locations are different, it has, therefore, been necessary to decide upon a compromise location for the third rail in the Steinway tunnel which would be adaptable to both types of equipment.

It is expected that the twelve cars required for the temporary operation will be ready for delivery the latter part of this month. These cars will then have to be equipped by the company, and within a reasonable time after their delivery they should be ready for use.

From the foregoing, it appears that, within a reasonable time after the first of May, operation of the Steinway tunnel may be expected, if no unforeseen difficulties arise. It is impossible, however, to fix any definite time.

At the Manhattan terminal, with entrance on the south side of 42nd street, between Lexington and Third avenue, the escalator has been completed. The entire tunnel is lighted by electricity and the signal system throughout has been installed. Much of the furniture for the station at Long Island City has been installed.

Reinforced Concrete Industrial Buildings

You are going to build of reinforced concrete because you want a permanent, fireproof structure at low cost.

Carry your desire one step further. Get the most efficient concrete construction by using

Corrugated Bars

They ensure permanency because they have a positive mechanical bond. The lugs grip into the concrete and hold —no slipping. They have double the bonding efficiency of plain or twisted bars, and twice the elastic limit. The combination of these two qualities gives either a higher factor of safety or permits higher working stresses with resultant economy.

In the past 24 years we have prepared plans and furnished reinforcement for over $100,000,000 worth of buildings and have not had a single failure.

We would like to work with you and your architect upon your building problems. May we begin by sending you the facts on Corrugated Bars?

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

SIGNS OF A GENERAL IMPROVEMENT IN BUILDING—MARCH CEMENT SHIPMENTS 11 PER CENT. MORE THAN IN 1914

Supply 10 Per Cent. Behind Last Year—Stock Market Effect

BUILDING reports received this week show a marked increase in the number of manufacturing plant extensions for the entire metropolitan district. Automobile, machinery steel and machine tool plants, refrigerating establishments, shipyards, crushing plants, paint and surgical supply establishments are included among the plants having plans on architects' boards for development and extensions. This indicates a more general revival of employment, the resumption of savings bank deposits and a general easing of money for building and permanent loans.

In the various lines of building material production the week's developments showed an increasing demand, emphasizing more than ever the necessity for turning in greater mill capacity to meet current and immediately prospective demand. Almost every mason's material yard from White Plains to New Brunswick is reporting extreme activity and prices close to list based upon quotations ruling in the wholesale New York market and operative on the floor of the Building Material Exchange in the Woolworth building.

General construction is gradually gaining, as shown by the report, elsewhere in this issue, of union labor employed. It is further evidenced by the quantity of brick being ridden. Reports of 115 cities in the country as received by report companies show that building is within only 2.2 per cent. of normal, whereas at the first of the year it was 15 per cent. behind, and in October of last year, two months after the war started, the falling off in prospective building construction in the country was 26.9 per cent.

The increased activity in security buying as shown by the behavior of the New York Stock Exchange reflects the general easement of investment money. Real estate and building interests argue that if there continues to be an influx of gold into this country and trade balance continues in favor of the United States as it has, there will be a quick return to commercial and industrial confidence, collections will be easier and investments will return to a normal basis. The revival of activity on the New York Stock Exchange was responsible for the re-employment in the last week of about 4,300 stenographers and clerks who have been besieging the employment agencies for work, and this has been reflected in a sharp curtailment in savings bank withdrawals. Labor union employment is 4.2 per cent. improved. Consequently, banks have more confidence in the financial outlook, and it ought to increase, according to well informed financial interests, as the rate of employment increases.

Western railroads are taking on more help to the number of 2,000 on May first and 4,000 additional on June first. The Central Railroad of New Jersey has had to employ more help to take care of the increasing freight shipments, especially out of the cement districts. The Lackawanna has been taking on men in its western divisions. The U. S. Steel Corporation has taken on more men.

Plants like the Sauer-Mack Automobile Company, the Crucible Steel Company of America, the Bethlehem Steel Company and others are getting ready to accommodate more hands to take care of foreign and domestic business. All this indicates that better times are slowly approaching, even before the building season has developed.

National reports of the Portland cement industry, a fair basis upon which to judge the volume of building and municipal and government construction work, show that the demand in all States from Maine to Utah and from the Gulf to the Great Lakes, show 11 per cent. increase in shipments over the month of March last year with reserve stock 10 per cent. less. Here is shown a difference of more than 20 per cent. between demand and supply with more than 7 per cent. of mill capacity actually in operation. At the present indicated rate of demand for Portland cement the country's output this year, if current demand is maintained, will for the first time reach a total production of 100,000,000 barrels. This means employment for cement manufacturing labor on a scale never before known. In 1914 the total production for the country was 87,000,000 barrels.

The price situation for building materials in New York and vicinity still holds at levels that ought to be attractive to prospective builders. There is no material that has shown a serious reaction as a market, although in one or two instances large quantities have been sold at shaded quotations, primarily on accommodation orders. This is particularly true of the common brick market where manufacturers up the Hudson are desirous of obtaining empty barges so as to have them loaded when the spring building requirements develop. Consequently, there have been some sacrifice quotations made this week, but the market is still firm and demand brisk, like all other departments of the building material market.

Following is a table showing the plan filings for the entire city for the week just closed. In the corresponding week last year there were 348 plans filed with an estimated value of $4,338,407.

"I'M BULLISH," SAYS FRICK.

What the Newspaper Men Heard Him Say to Judge E. H. Gary.

WHILE the newspaper men were awaiting the pleasure of Judge Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, on Tuesday morning, he stepped out of the inner sanctum where he and his colleagues retired to pursue the nimble mental exercise of thinking and acting in seven figure items, arm in arm, with Henry Clay Frick. They had been discussing, so the newspaper men were told, the peculiar gymnastics of Bethlehem Steel. Mr. Frick started to leave the room, accompanied by George W. Perkins, and George F. Baker, when Mr. Gary called to him:

"Then you are very bullish, Mr. Frick?"

"I was never more bullish in my life," said Mr. Frick in reply, and in a tone that left no doubt but that building material interests have good cause to expect the general improvement in business and building to continue with even greater acceleration.

VULCANITE MOVES.

One More Company Comes Into the Building Material Zone.

ALBERT MOYER, Manager of Sales of the Vulcanite Portland Cement Company, announced this week that, after today, the address of the Vulcanite Portland Cement Company will be 8 West 40th street, telephone 5370 Bryant. The main sales office has been located in the neighborhood of Fifth avenue and 23rd street for fourteen years, originally in the Mohawk Building, then in the Flatiron Building and later in the Fifth Avenue Building. Keeping pace with the trend of the times this company has moved into the building owned by Paul Starrett, erected by the George A. Fuller Company, Starrett & Van Vleck, architects. It is opposite the New York Public Library and is convenient to all arteries of transportation. The company extends a cordial welcome to the trade, architects and builders to visit the new offices which have been appropriately adorned.

EXCHANGE ELECTION.

William C. Morton Made Treasurer for Sixth Time.

THOMAS D. MILLER of the Builders Supply Company, Newark, was elected president of the Building Material Exchange on Monday, April 12, to succeed Joseph F. Miller of the Lawrence Portland Cement Company. It was the thirty-fourth annual election and marked the sixth consecutive term that William C. Morton, sales agent for the Consolidated Rosendale Cement Company, has been chosen as treasurer. The remainder of the ticket was elected as follows: C. J. Curtin, vice president; and these trustees: Thomas D. Miller, C. J. Curtin, William C. Morton, George A. Molitor, who is the secretary of the Exchange, Joseph C. Seguine, F. D. Creamer, T. I. Gleason, P. J. Heaney, Walter C. Schultz, Daniel Darrow, William T. Roberts, V. W. Tyler and J. C. Detwiler. The inspectors serving at the election were Orin F. Perry, Ernest Braun, Jr. and H. P. Brown.

Retiring President Miller's report showed that the Exchange had been open 255 days during the last year with an average attendance of sixteen and 12 visitors. The necrology showed the decease of John Messenger who joined December 4, 1896, and who died April 20, 1914; H. B. Homan, joined October 2, 1882, and died May 24, 1914; John C. Morton, joined April 9, 1884, died June 28, 1914, and Uriah F. Washburn, joined August 9, 1897, and died August 7, 1914.

There is a membership of 123. After all the expenses of the McAlpin luncheon had been paid the committee turned over $94.20 to the surplus fund.

The membership certificates now have a book value of $83.72 each.

The Treasurer's report showed a balance on hand April 2, 1914, of $10,999.92. In April, 1915, $11,051.62. The Exchange has its meeting rooms in the Woolworth building.

COMMON BRICK.

Big Gain in Sales and Demand Shows Building Impetus.

ANALYSIS of the common brick market, through statistics of unloading as compiled by the Greater New York Brick Company and the reports of bargeload movements on the wholesale market, indicate a marked improvement in the volume of actual building construction now going ahead here.

The gain in distribution riding as reported by Gnybco is 2,370,900 over last week's total and an increase of 1,940,900 for the corresponding week last year. Wholesale purchases were 33 in excess of those of the same week last year and arrivals showed an increase of four.

This condition indicates a remarkable demand for common brick and is a positive sign that there is a corresponding increase in building.

It was stated this week that prices remain absolutely unchanged, at $5.50 to $5.75 per M. wholesale. Prospects for a change either up or down are exceedingly remote because there is a large quantity of brick still available up river and manufacturers are almost unanimous in their decision to encourage the use of brick in building construction as much as possible this season so as to safeguard specification of brick to the fullest extent in the light of the heavy cuts in the price of Portland cement lately.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, April 15, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follows:

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

FINANCIAL CHANGE AIDS "BUILD NOW" PLAN

Effect of the Activity on the Stock Market Upon the Construction Situation—How Prosperity is Produced

OBSERVERS of building finance have noted, with satisfaction, signs of the times indicating a pronounced upturn in general business conditions. There is a growing opinion that the building industries and material manufacturers have seen the worst of the depression. Optimism is the rule to-day, not the exception. Business men since the first of the year have spoken of business as being good, but collections slow. They speak of business to-day as brisk and with collections improving.

Great industries are contemplating extensions to plants, notably the Sauer-Mack Automobile Company, the American Locomotive Company, the American Machine & Foundry Company, the Crucible Steel Company of America and the Bethlehem Steel Company. The Lehigh Valley Railroad, according to President Thomas, is ready to spend a million on improvements, President Truesdale of the Lackawanna Railroad, has been out on the road in contemplation of a great expenditure of money. The Central Railroad of New Jersey recently has placed an order with Harlan & Hollingsworth for steel cars and have more orders of the same character to give out. The New York Central stands ready to release car, locomotive and rail orders.

Cement Prices Low.

In the building material market Portland cement shipments for March indicate, if maintained, an annual production of 100,000,000 barrels, or 12,000,000 more than ever has been produced in a single year. Prices are very low. Common brick is conspicuous as being the only building commodity that is over produced. Lime, crushed stone and sand are in such demand as to require increased plant capacity. About 1,500 more union artisans are employed to-day than in the same time last month. And the Eastern building season is hardly under way.

Stock market transactions have recently exceeded a million shares a day. More than $20,000,000 in gold has been sent this month to this market from Ottawa to insure continued credit for English buyers here. The lawmakers of state and nation have about reached the end of their labors, a fact which doubtless inspires renewed confidence in all kinds of investors and especially in the hearts and minds of captains of industry. Savings banks are reporting increased deposits. They are actually redeveloping their surpluses.

Bank Surpluses a Sign.

The first sign of returning prosperity is not always to be found in the number of orders for building materials reported nor in the condition of the real estate market, nor in the condition of the United States Steel Corporation's table of unfinished steel orders. Instead, the first signs should be looked for in the condition of bank surplusses.

Some may entertain the mistaken notion that the shrinkage in the surplus of savings banks is of little consequence to the individual depositors in these institutions, and that therefore such shrinkage cannot have any effect upon the placing of railroad rail orders, structural steel business or the purchase of lime, brick and cement. But this is a serious error.

SIGNS OF PROSPERITY.

$20,000,000 in Gold Returned to the U. S. A.

Stock Exchange Transactions 1,000,000 shares a day.

Savings Banks are Developing their Surpluses.

Industrial Plants are Building Extensions.

Railroads are Releasing Orders Long Held Up.

Skilled Building Labor is Better Employed.

Current Business-Baiting Legislation Nearing End.

Building Materials are in Better Demand.

Money for Construction is Easier to Obtain.

Savings Banks' Surplus.

It is necessary for the savings banks to maintain a certain surplus as a matter of prudence and precaution and to insure their solvency beyond peradventure. Therefore, as the existing surplus began to dwindle because of the depreciation of the market value of the securities held, it became necessary to restore by degrees the lost portion by making appropriations for the purpose out of current earnings. Such appropriations in turn, diminished the amount which would be distributed in dividends to depositors, and hence these depositors have been receiving considerably less than would otherwise have been the case.

New York savings banks are all mutual institutions, the profits going entirely to the depositors and on the basis of the current rates of return on the investments in which savings banks are allowed to employ their funds, the depositors in these institutions ought to be getting 4½ per cent per annum in dividends. As a matter of fact some of the largest institutions were paying only 3½ per cent, having had to reduce to that figure owing to the necessity of using part of their current earnings in order to make good the impairment of their surplus account.

Savings Bank Securities.

Large quantities of savings bank securities are invested in railroad stocks. In Maine, during 1913, 50 per cent was thus invested, in Connecticut 38 per cent, and in New Hampshire 33 per cent Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey ratios ran from 15.96 per cent to 19.61 per cent. The number of depositors in these six states numbers almost 7,000,000 people. Combining the railroad investments of insurance companies, and educational institutions with those of savings banks, about $1,464,388,642 in railroad securities were thus held.

When American gold is being shipped abroad in large quantities, as marked the period immediately following the outbreak of the war, the manufacturer, the real estate investor and the prospective builder cannot readily effect loans to tide him over a consequent period of poor collections or commercial paralysis. The only alternative was to shut down. Hundreds of savings bank depositors were thus deprived of their incomes and instead of depositing they were compelled to withdraw money. This resulted in a shifting of funds in the banks to retain a safe reserve which cannot be recovered from railroad securities because of decreased earnings in the traffic departments. Building construction suffered.

Revival of Business.

It is just such a period from which we are emerging. The railroads are beginning to feel an increased amount of business. They asked and received, in some instances, a 5 per cent. freight rate increase which partially makes up for the sub-normal freight shipments. When the danger is passed with the adjournment of the legislatures, of additional business-baiting legislation and if the full crew bills are repealed, the earnings will be increased, the demand for railroad stocks will improve, savings banks can again begin to pay dividends, the building investment market will regain its strength and materials will begin to move into new construction work. This is what is happening to-day on the Stock Exchange and in the building material market. It is shown in increased employment of skilled building artisans.

Predictions Fulfilled.

The Record and Guide, in its issue of January 30, said that the big interests of the country were advised of the turn for the better and were planning to build. They knew what was in store for the securities market. To-day their predictions are fulfilled. The New York Stock Exchange had not known what several consecutive million share days were like, in several years. People are more confident. They are reinvesting their money. And real estate will be the next in line to benefit because money is being made more available to "Build Now."

A wave of confidence is rapidly spreading over the country. The enormous buying power is being turned loose, and its beneficial effect is being felt, at the present time. This is, however, only a beginning. Those who are in intimate touch with the situation cannot see anything but a long swing of prosperity in the immediate future.

Real Swing Launched.

Last November the Record and Guide printed reports from several leaders in various lines, in which the present movement was clearly forecasted. It was also pointed out that before the final movement was commenced a "false start" would appear. This happened last February, but now the "real swing" seems to have been launched.

NO RADICAL CHANGES FOR BUILDING CODE

Nothing Foreseen to Raise the Apprehensions of Builders, Unless It Be the Proposed Limitation on the Heights of Buildings

AN impression exists in labor circles that the majority of the building plans now being filed in large numbers are being filed mostly in anticipation of radical changes in the Building Code, and not with the intention of being translated into actual building contracts in the immediate future. The Record and Guide, therefore, called on former Superintendent Rudolph P. Miller, now in charge of the revision of the Building Code, to ascertain the facts with regard to it.

Mr. Miller was informed of the impression among the labor men and asked whether any very radical changes were contemplated in the Code. He replied:

"I do not see that this revision can have any great effect on the filing of plans, because there are no very important or very radical changes contemplated. Certainly none have appeared so far. I do not foresee any such changes that would cause the filing of plans before the changes go into effect, unless it is an expectation that the heights of buildings ordinance will pass and they want to get in ahead of that. That is the one thing that is really radical. The ordinances on materials and working stresses and loads have passed, and there is nothing radical in either of those. The most important change in the working stresses ordinance is really a reduction in the minimum live loads for dwellings and office buildings. Some people think that the changes in the code do not go far enough, but they go just as far as conditions warrant. What the revision really amounts to is merely making the law conform with the present practice, the present good practice, more than anything else."

Mr. Miller added that it was his experience as Superintendent of Buildings that only about 85 per cent of the plans filed were translated into actual buildings, and that a compilation of figures he had had made some years previously which covered a period of ten years showed that.

Superintendent of Buildings Ludwig expressed the belief that the majority of the plans filed would be actually used, and called attention to the fact that requests for examinations of soil were coming in in the Manhattan Bureau, suggesting that possibly the contracts for the new work were being delayed, but that the requests for soil examinations showed that the work in this borough, at least, was really going ahead.

A hearing is announced by the Building Committee for next Thursday at 2 o'clock, at City Hall, on the subject of the ordinance relating to excavations and foundations.

Four new ordinances to form part of the Building Code were passed by the Board of Aldermen this week: Section 2, relating to materials; section 3, relating to working stresses and loads; section 13, relating to wood construction, and section 15, relating to iron and steel construction.

New Regulations for Garages.

Amendments to section 100 of the Regulations of the Municipal Explosive Commission are pending in the Committee on General Welfare of the Board of Aldermen, introduced by Alderman Brush (by request). The principal new provisions follow:

Section 101. For a permit allowing the maintenance and operation of a Private Garage [as provided for in Sections 372 and 373 of these Regulations] where volatile inflammable oils are not stored, the applicant shall pay an annual fee of Five Dollars, where not more than three motor vehicles are [for a single motor vehicle] stored [therein] and an additional fee of Two Dollars for each additional motor vehicle so stored; if such garage be located outside the fire limits the fee shall be Two Dollars where not more than three motor vehicles are stored and an additional fee of Two Dollars for each additional motor vehicle so stored. Where volatile inflammable oils are stored the applicant shall pay an annual fee of Fifteen Dollars for a single storage tank and an annual fee of Five Dollars for each additional storage tank installed. The unit capacity of storage tanks for purpose of fee shall be two hundred and seventy-five gallons or major fraction thereof.

General Provisions.

Sec. 373. A permit may be issued for a private garage in a building occupied as a dwelling by [either] the applicant or his employee or by the applicant and one other tenant or by the applicant's employee and one other tenant, provided that not more than two [floors or] stories above the garage are occupied or used as living apartments, which apartments shall be separated from the garage by [unpierced fireproof] fire retarding walls and floors, not pierced except by one opening, protected by a fire-proof self-closing door, and provided that there shall be an entrance to the living apartments direct from the street without passing through the garage; and provided further that all motor vehicles stored or kept in [such] the garage shall be the property of the applicant or of his immediate family [and that none of such vehicles shall be let out for hire]. No certificate of fitness shall be required of the person having supervision of such garage. No public garage, however, shall be permitted in any building occupied for dwelling purposes.

Sec. 376. A separator must be installed according to the requirements of the fire commissioner in each individual case. Plans and specifications must be filed and approved by the fire commissioner, and the whole or any portion of the separator installed below the cellar floor must be in a pit sufficiently large so that the separator shall be readily accessible for inspection or maintenance.

Oil Separators.

In all cases the installation shall be such that the effluent from the separator shall discharge into the house sewer on the public sewer side of the house trap and house, and outside court and area drains, toilets and leaders shall not drain into the separator. Drainage from washing stands in garages shall not be permitted to flow into sump pits. When the cellar or basement floor is below the level of sewer, no cars shall be washed on that floor. No gasoline shall be used for cleaning purposes in a garage.

Section 400. No stove, forge, torch [boiler] or other device employing flame or fire [and no] nor any electric or other [appliance] apparatus which is likely to produce an exposed spark, shall be [installed] allowed in any garage, unless it be placed in a room or compartment which is separated from the garage by (fireproof walls and floors) a partition constructed of fire retarding material and provided with a self-closing fireproof door; provided, however, that electric motors may be of the fully enclosed type or provided with an approved type "A" [Fire Department Specifications] motor enclosure; the terminal blocks also shall be properly protected. No boiler or furnace shall be located in any garage unless separated from the remainder of the building by an unpierced fireproof wall consisting of solid masonry, or its equivalent, of at least 8 in. in thickness; provided, however, that where the construction of such unpierced wall shall be impracticable the Fire Commissioner may permit such openings in such wall as may be necessary, and prescribe such protection as in his judgment the particular case shall require.

Fireproof Construction.

Sec. 371 (a). Except as hereinafter provided in this section, all garages hereafter erected shall be of strictly fireproof construction as to rooms and compartments, where motor vehicles, with gasoline in their fuel tanks, are stored; and all garages heretofore erected shall have all walls, ceilings, and floors covered with fire retarding material in all rooms or compartments where motor vehicles, with gasoline in their fuel tanks, are stored. Garages not exceeding one story in height, however, may have non-fireproof roofs covered on the inside with fire retarding material and window openings and outside doors, removed at least thirty feet from the nearest exposure, may be non-fireproof. Nothing in this section shall prohibit the erection or the granting of a permit for a garage of non-fireproof construction while the following conditions exist:

(a) No volatile inflammable oil is stored except in the fuel tanks of the motor vehicle;

(b) Fuel tanks of the motor vehicles stored, are not opened, filled or drawn from in the garage;

(c) Not more than four motor vehicles are stored;

(d) All motor vehicles stored are the property of the owner and not for sale, rent or hire;

(e) The garage is situated at least fifteen feet from the nearest building, unless the nearest wall of such building or the wall of the garage nearest such building is of unpierced fireproof construction.

[The matter in brackets is omitted from the ordinance.]

Growth of the Suburbs.

One of the salient features in connection with suburban real estate today is the demand for building sites in a section adjacent to desirable summer features. The difficulty of finding in the area contiguous to New York City, locations which combine accessibility, residential and recreational advantages, increases daily.

Real estate men know the limit of suburban development possibilities. It is generally understood in realty circles that the quantity of land available in acreage in the Bronx and Westchester counties and in Morris, Union, Essex and Bergen counties in New Jersey is rapidly diminishing. Lands have been developed along the lines of the all-year suburban home and substantially built up with dwellings of the approved modern type. In most cases it has been the aim of the operator to retain as many as possible of the desirable urban features, and at the same time to afford the advantages of country life.

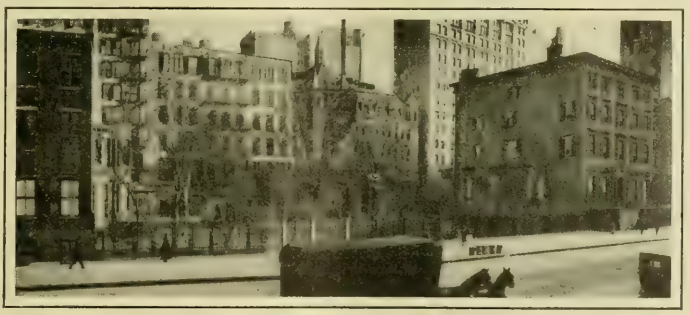
Long Island is therefore one of the few sections which offer marketable property for more open suburban improvement. Even Long Island shows some effect of the swift movement of population in the city, as evidenced by the increasing number of filings in Brooklyn and Queens.

FOURTEENTH STREET HOLDING ITS OWN

Despite the Removal of Many Large Retail Concerns, Thoroughfare Retains Its Character—New Loft Center Brings Trade

FOURTEENTH street retains its character as a popular shopping district in spite of the steady northward march of the large retail establishments, which has been coincident with the growth of the city in the same direction. The street has undergone little architectural change, within the last forty years, and outside of the new class of tenants remains practically unchanged and as it was when Union Square was the center of the amusement and shopping life in the city. The hotels and theatres have since established themselves farther north and latterly, a number of the big department stores have joined the up-town movement.

Thousands of employees working in the many loft buildings which have been recently erected in the streets nearby use Fourteenth street as a thoroughfare to and from their homes and the large traffic has aided the street in retaining its retail trade. This fact, coupled with the locations of the subway express station and stations of the Third, Sixth and Ninth avenue elevated lines and the Hudson tubes, places these stores within easy reach of practically all parts of Greater New York and sections of New Jersey. There are the additional transit facilities of the crosstown surface lines which connect all of the north and south car lines, except those east of Third avenue.



Fourteenth street is holding its own as far as tenants are concerned, for there is not a single store vacancy in the south side of the street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, with the exception of the ten-story building at the southeast corner of Sixth avenue, which was formerly occupied by the Fourteenth Street Store. Between Fifth and Sixth avenues a number of concerns dealing principally with ladies' wear are located. They include R. Smith & Company, Morrison's, the Bedell Company, and Milkman's cloak and suit house. Two department stores, James A. Hearn & Son and Rothenberg & Company, remain as evidence that this street is still desirable for retail shopping purposes. East of Fifth avenue all the stores are filled with concerns of a similar nature. They include among others, J. L. Post & Company and the Outlet.

The north side of Fourteenth street is filled with a miscellaneous assortment of retail stores comprising principally piano showrooms and moving picture film exchanges. A good part of the block between Fifth and Sixth avenues is taken up by one of New York's most famous landmarks, the Van Beuren homestead, built in 1855, which was for many years the homestead of the Spingler and Van Beuren families. This dwelling, with its extensive gardens, has remained in its original state regardless of the changes in the character of the neighborhood.

Union Square and Fourteenth street were originally residential districts with long rows of old-fashioned dwellings. The square became a park in 1811, when the City Plan was perfected and the residential community began to encircle the three and a half acres of green. Its eventual transformation into the leading business thoroughfare was forecasted in 1868, when Lake and McCreery, now James McCreery & Company, bought the northwest corner of Broadway and 11th street, diagonally opposite Grace Church, and moved their dry goods store from Canal street into a new five-story building, erected at that point. About the same time Arnold Constable & Company began building their new store at Broadway and 19th street. It was not very long before Union Square, which lay between these two large establishments, began to be taken over by business concerns. Many of the remodelled dwellings still stand as evidence of the early residential character of the place.

EAST FROM SIXTH AVENUE.

THE OLD VAN BEUREN HOMESTEAD.

WEST FROM SIXTH AVENUE.

In those days Fourteenth street was not blessed with the numerous transit facilities which it now enjoys, and the horse car which ran through the street, connecting with the ferry at Christopher street, was the line which placed New Jersey residents in touch with New York. The main bulk, however, of the patrons of the Fourteenth street establishments came from the south; the north was an "undeveloped wilderness." Its position as a wide east and west thoroughfare, accessible to all parts of the city, made it adaptable for retail businesses, and the pretty square was ideal for promenading. Numerous famous hostelries began to do business in the immediate neighborhood; the St. Denis and the Union Square Hotels are among the reminders of this development.

The Everett House, at the northwest corner of Fourth avenue and 17th street, was long a favorite place for professional people, lecturers, authors, etc. The Morton House was also frequented by theatrical people. Nearby were the Clarendon, the Spingler, and the Westminster Hotels, which were family hostelries, largely patronized by diplomats. On the square was the famous French restaurant, Maison D'or, the first one of its kind in the city, and further west near Sixth avenue, Ferraro's dancing academy, one of the most popular in the city at that time.

Theatrical interest centered on Wallack's theatre, at Broadway and 13th street, and on the Union Square theatre, now devoted to moving pictures. Music lovers frequented Steinway Hall and the original Chickering Hall, at No. 11 East 14th street, where the piano company of that name engaged in business, and later at the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and 18th street. The Academy of Music, at Irving place, was the influencing factor in the location of these institutions.

Union Square began to assume its business character when Tiffany & Company established their business in what was then considered an unusually attractive building at the southwest corner of 15th street. Later, R. H. Macy & Company and James A. Hearn & Son came into Fourteenth street.

North of the Square the Gorham Company, Lord & Taylor, W. & J. Sloane, A. A. Vantine & Company, Aitken Son & Company, and others, joined Arnold Constable & Company. The entire district bounded by Fourteenth street, Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street and Broadway, became the center of most of the retail shopping business of the city. Other firms formerly established in the immediate vicinity of Union Square were Schirmer & Company, music publishers; Brentano's, the Domestic Sewing Machine Company, Le Boutellier Brothers, and John Duncan & Sons, grocers. Maillard occupied the building at the southwest corner of University place and Fourteenth street, and the late Jacob Rothschild, owner of the Hotel Majestic, was also formerly a merchant in this street. In the Cruger House, adjoining the present Salvation Army headquarters, the Metropolitan Museum of Art made a modest start more than forty years ago.

For years Fourteenth street continued to be the center of the hotel and amusement life and then the uptown movement began, which drew away practically everything but its retail establishments. Even several of these joined the migration, notably R. H. Macy & Company, which moved to its present location, at 34th street and Broadway, about thirteen years ago.

Time has shown, however, that this shift was inevitable, because the need for central locations has caused the creation of new shopping districts, not only around Herald Square, but as far north as 44th street.

THE MAYOR CAN STOP OVER-REGULATION

The Legislative Measure For Simplifying Building Inspection the Subject of a Dramatic Hearing—Other Bills in the Legislature

AT LAST accounts, Mayor Mitchel was still withholding his approval from the bill to simplify building inspection, and eleventh hour negotiations for a compromise were not expected to be effectual.

"Both as a real estate owner and as a city official I beg of you not to veto this bill, but if you must, do so at once, so that the Legislature will have time to act."

This was the keynote speech in favor of the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill at the hearing given by the Mayor at City Hall on Wednesday afternoon. The speaker was Hon. Marcus M. Marks, president of the Borough of Manhattan. Voicing the sentiment of three more Borough Presidents, Mr. Pounds took his stand beside President Marks and protested against the charge that Comptroller Prendergast had just made, that the object of the bill was to break down the tenement house law.

It was the most dramatic moment in the most momentous hearing that Mayor Mitchel has yet held. The three other Borough Presidents stood near. All five had frequently given utterance to their sentiments on the question and refrained from further remarks on this occasion, in order that they might save the time of the assemblage and keep another engagement.

The Mayor's Quizzing.

Every speaker that came forward in behalf of the bill was heckled by the Mayor. President Marks was no exception. When asked if the bill would not interfere with the pending heights of building ordinance, Mr. Marks answered negatively. Doubtless perceiving that the Mayor was trying to confuse the question, Mr. Marks suavely advised the Mayor not to let details which could easily be repaired if defective interfere with the main question, and laughingly expressed the hope that the time he was taking in answering the Mayor's questions would not be counted against the opposition.

President McAneny of the Board of Aldermen was the next speaker, and as was to be expected, he advised delay until "a more perfect method of solution" could be devised, evidently having his charter revision in mind. Comptroller Prendergast had spoken first.

The usual course of procedure had been interrupted to permit of the high city officers to make their views known. It was the first time in the history of the city since consolidation that there had been such an array of officialdom on the floor of the chamber. The citizens of New York can congratulate themselves that their chief executive officers are orators of surpassing grace and power.

The Opposition.

The hearing began at half-past three. The opponents of the bill spoke first, with Lawrence Veiller acting as introducer. Mr. Veiller was the first Deputy Commissioner of the Tenement House Department and is now secretary of the Tenement House Committee of the Charity Organization. He drafted the original Tenement House law, and has been its defender ever since. It is not giving too much credit to Mr. Veiller to say that in this campaign carried on by the united business and realty interests of the city he has been the principal organizer of the opposition. In fact, while the campaign culminated in a statesmen's battle between the three chief city officials, on the one hand, and the five borough presidents on the other, the question whether the Tenement House Department should be left out of the consolidation of departments was the ostensible gage of battle. The real issue, centralization or decentralization, was not brought forward at the hearing.

MAYOR MITCHEL.
Will he permit the over-regulation of buildings to continue?

Mr. Veiller rallied a large company of gentlemen associated with the Charity Organization's work to speak against the bill. A well considered address was made by Robert S. Binkerd, secretary of the City Club—the club which the Mayor has referred to as "the right arm of his administration."

Alfred Marling was listened to with great attention while he argued that the relief which owners hoped for through the bill, would, after a certain point, be imaginary. He admitted, however, that up to the time when the new building would be completed and ready for occupancy there would be a co-ordination of supervision.

Other speakers in opposition were Miss Lillian Wald, of the Henry Street Settlement; Paul D. Cravath, chairman of the Tenement House Committee of the Charity Organization; Eugene Outerbridge, of the Chamber of Commerce; Otto Bannard, vice-president of the Charity Organization; E. R. L. Gould, of the City and Suburban Homes Company, builder of tenements on the East Side; J. G. Holland, of the Federation of Labor; Albert De Roode, of the Citizens' Union; Fire Commissioner Adamson and Tenement House Commissioner John J. Murphy.

The Proponents.

It was nearly five o'clock when the opponent oratory was shut off. Robert E. Simon, who has acted through the campaign as the chairman of the Conference Committee of Real Estate and Allied Organizations, was the first speaker for the proponents, Mr. Simon made an address which was a clear and pointed presentment of the issue, except as to two points, which the Mayor at the outset had asked all the speakers to omit, namely the depressed condition of the real estate market and the hardship of the present system of building inspection, as the Mayor said he was well aware of these things.

"Do the real estate interests feel inclined to co-operate with the Mayor?" asked Mr. Mitchel.

"We certainly do," answered Mr. Simon.

"Then why did you not come to the Mayor before?"

"We did," said Mr. Simon, "and we made many modifications in the bill to suit the views you expressed. We've compromised all along the line."

The Mayor insisted, however, that he had not been consulted personally.

"By what right do you assume that Mr. Bruere speaks for me?" he asked. "He is not the Mayor. If you want my opinions come to me for them. Don't go about asking others. Mr. Bruere did not represent me at your conferences. What he said was his own personal opinion."

Resents Misrepresentation.

"The real estate people of this city," declared Mr. Simon, "want to go on record as against wilful misrepresentation as to the purposes of this bill by those who oppose it.

"We give in to you, Mr. Mayor, on the question of consolidation, and you have got to give in to us on this bill. We will stand on this law. We admit it is not perfect. No law is. But we will back you up to the limit if you will sign it. We will pay a secretary for a commission you shall name to watch the working out of this plan, and if at the end of a year you are not satisfied we will consent to your plan for centralization."

Real Estate Biggest Asset.

"The biggest asset of the city is its real estate," asserted Mr. Simon. "Its largest income is from this source. What affects the real estate market is reflected in the city's income. Real estate is demoralized. It is in a maze of inspections. Sometimes it is necessary to see six different departments to pass on plans.

"This bill will not cure all the defects, but it is a step in the right direction."

Chasing the Bug-a-Boo.

"You need not be afraid of the Tenement House Law. That is specifically exempted. There can be no going back to conditions existing before the Tenement House Act became a law. There was no Commissioner of Accounts then to investigate derelict officials. And you would not be where you are to-day but for that. You were elected to represent the people of this city. Realty, building and allied interests are the greatest labor employers of any. It is most unfortunate that realty interests have not received a square deal at the hands of the press. The situation is desperate and we must have relief. This bill will afford it. It isn't fair to say that five borough superintendents of buildings appointed by the Borough Presidents will not be equally as honest and efficient as five deputies appointed by a commission."

The Mayor continually and aggressively interrupted Mr. Simon in a manner that the affirmative side resented as heckling, but Mr. Simon maintained his self-control, stuck to his guns and answered the Mayor effectively.

Counselor Walter Lindner, of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, riddled the Mayor's contention that there is no provision for enforcing the law. "An official charged with jurisdiction is bound to exercise that authority," he said, "and is subject to criminal prosecution if he fails." Mr. Lindner said the general intent and general operation of the bill would afford relief and would not cause the complications its opponents claimed.

F. B. de Berard, of the Merchants' Association next spoke in favor of the bill and it was observed that the Mayor did not interrupt him as he did the others.

Laurence M. D. McGuire, president of the Real Estate Board, said that no public official had at any time tried to work out a solution of the evil of over-inspection.

THE DESIGN OF THE SEVENTH AVE. SUBWAY

Structural Features of a Great Underground Traffic Route that Will Cause the Rebuilding of the Middle and Lower West Side

THE Seventh avenue subway, officially called Routes Nos. 4 and 38, forms the west branch of the city's new trunk subway in Manhattan, to be operated by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. It serves the lower West Side, connecting this district, which contains the Pennsylvania Railroad station, many steamship terminals, theaters, loft buildings and manufacturing plants, with Washington Heights and The Bronx through the existing Broadway subway at Times Square on the north and, through the William and Clark streets tunnel, with Brooklyn at the south. Two tracks extend through Greenwich street to the Battery.

The new line is expected to have a decidedly enlivening effect on the real estate of the middle and lower West Side zones, which have been left outside of the main currents of city traffic for many years. Alfred Brady, Acting Assistant Designing Engineer in the subway work, in a contribution to the Public Service Record (the monthly bulletin of the Public Service Commission) has given a complete description of the design and construction of this great underground railroad, in the course of which the following information is given:

Parts of the way, the Seventh avenue subway runs through the heart of the old Greenwich Village. This section of Manhattan, owing to its peculiar street system, has been isolated from the growing city and preserves to this day the traditions, habits and quaintness of old New York. The cutting through of Varick street and the simultaneous building of this subway therein, will transform Greenwich Village into a business district and destroy another link with the picturesque past.

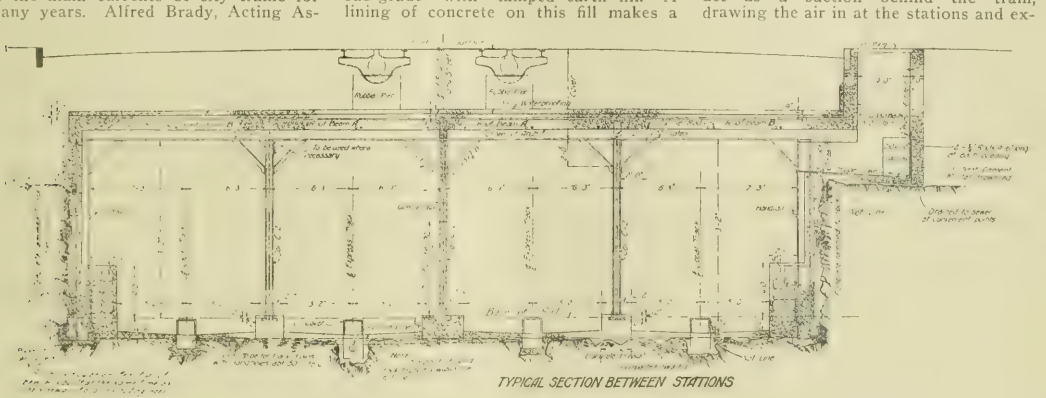
Eight Contract Sections.

This subway is 4.3 miles long, and is divided into eight contract sections, 1-A, 1 to 6, inclusive, and 6-A, all of which are now in the course of construction. The first two sections, 1-A and 1, are partly in rock and almost entirely below water. Section 2 is in earth, partly old fill, mostly below water and contains the deepest excavation. Sections 3 and 4 are in earth and through widened Varick street and the new Seventh avenue extension, permitting work to be carried on in open cut. On sections 5, 6 and 6-A, work is in rock cut, a considerable distance above mean high water, though at 28th street an old stream was encountered. All work, except in the widened Varick street and Seventh avenue extension, is carried on while maintaining the street traffic, by replacing the paving with heavy plank decking supported on timber posts placed every ten feet. At elevated and building columns the concentrated loads due to same are figured in addition to this loading.

Structural Features.

Steel roof beams or girders, spaced five-foot centers, along the subway, with concrete jack-arches between them, carry the street load. They are supported on 6-inch columns between tracks and I-beam columns in the side-walls. These side-wall columns are designed for both direct load and bending due to side pressure in such a manner that the maximum combined stress does not exceed 20,000 pounds per square inch. Where the structure is on rock and above water, the irregular rock excavation is brought to sub-grade with tamped earth fill. A lining of concrete on this fill makes a smooth track trough. Openings in the concrete prevent the collection of water which would cause pressure and crack the concrete.

In earth the floor is made of concrete one foot thick, which is reinforced with rods and waterproofed at places where the soil is found to be water-bearing. Where the invert is below mean high water, the floor is designed to distribute the dead load of the structure and backfill as a uniform load over the entire bottom. Where the ground is bad or heavy columns make it advisable, piles spaced about 2 feet 6 inch centers are used. The type of design is such as to readily permit the use of piles, which are to be placed at the direction of the field engineers. At stations and platforms columns are spaced 15-foot centers and 4 feet 6 inches from the edge of the platform, longitudinal girders carrying the intermediate beams from column to column.



Between Battery Park and Franklin street over 200 columns of the elevated railroad, carrying loads from 50,000 to 430,000 pounds, must be under-pinned or carried on the roof of the subway. At the Park Place curve 24 columns of a proposed twenty-story building, having an average load of 1,000,000 pounds per column, are supported on the roof of the subway.

Stations.

Local stations are 405 feet long and have 12-foot side platforms which decrease to nine feet at the ends, and have entrances in the adjoining side streets. Express stations are 480 feet long and have island platforms. It is desirable to make express stations as high as possible. Their great width makes them appear like long, low caves, where the ordinary headroom of 13 feet 2 inches from base of rail to roof is used. All express stations except the one at 34th street are entered through overhead mezzanines. As the stations are the part of the system which the public sees most, special care is being taken with architectural details, tiling, plastering, etc.

Ventilation.

In order to maintain proper ventilation of the subway, tracks carrying northbound traffic are separated from those carrying southbound traffic by a 6-inch curtain wall. This wall encloses the tracks going in one direction in a two-track tube. The piston action of the trains will push the air ahead and act as a suction behind the train, drawing the air in at the stations and expelling it at gratings, located between stations. Ventilating gratings usually four feet wide, are placed at stations over the platforms, on the approach to stations for the incoming track, and about midway between stations, so proportioned as to insure a complete renewal of air every ten minutes at express stations and every fifteen minutes at local stations.

CONSTRUCTION PLAN OF THE SEVENTH AVENUE SUBWAY.

Cost of the Work.

The total contract price of the eight sections of Routes Nos. 4 and 38, is $14,783,000, which is paid for according to the terms of Contract No. 3, between the City of New York and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. This includes only the construction work. The track work, block signals, power plants, lighting, rolling stock and station finish, will be taken care of under separate contracts or provided by the operating company. The chief items entering into the construction contracts, their cost and relative value, are:

Excavation	$6,078,000	40%
Concrete	2,070,000	14%
Structural steel	1,982,000	14%
Waterproofing	1,026,000	7%
Underpinning	894,000	6%
Sub-surface Structures	650,000	4½%
Restoring Pavements	440,000	3%
Sewers (exclusive excavation)	411,000	3%
Maintaining Elect. Railways	376,000	2½%
Other Items	867,000	6%

The first set of bids was received on October 31, 1914; the date of completion for the last contract is June, 1917.

The business interests of New York are like the martyrs in the arenas of the ancients, prostrate and appealing to Caesar. Will it be thumbs up or thumbs down?

The enemies of prosperous business are to be found in New York as well as in Congress. The over-regulation and the over-taxation of New York City real estate are part and parcel of the attacks on business interests generally by uplifters and socialists.

The duplication in building inspection which the taxpayers most resent has come from departments launched upon an unoffending local public by the State. There was no duplication of work under the borough government. The remedy is of course to stop the State's interference.

For the sake of the reputation of the Manhattan daily papers for accuracy and wisdom, in ordinary affairs, it is regretable that they have permitted themselves to be grossly misled by the uplifters as to the contents of the Lockwood bill for a mitigation of the over-regulation of buildings—when the meaning of the bill is so plain.

The movement among the business men of the city for legislation to reduce the evil of over-regulation has been carried to the point where no one denies the need for relief in some way, and where the responsibility has been by a great assemblage of substantial citizens put squarely up to the Hon. John Purroy Mitchel, as Mayor, either to give his approval or disapproval to the pending bill and let it take its course at once. No part of his duty to the people of the city requires that he should block the way. As a great moral and economic issue the case has been won. Mayor Mitchel should not withhold the fruit of that victory.

A Case in Point.

Pending in the Committee on General Welfare of the Board of Aldermen are amendments to the ordinance relating to garages, public and private, and to oil-selling stations. One of the new general provisions is that garages exceeding one story in height must hereafter be built fireproof. And another new provision is that all existing garages shall have all walls, ceilings and floors covered with fire-retarding material in all rooms or compartments where motor vehicles are stored. The amendments, when enacted, will be found in Section 100 of the regulations of the Municipal Explosive Commission. While these amendments are pending in the Committee on General Welfare there is in preparation in the Committee on Buildings an ordinance relative to the Classification of Buildings, the tentative draft of which provides that garages outside of the fire limits less than fifteen feet in height and less than 600 square feet in area may be built non-fireproof; and if they are situated outside of the new suburban limits they may be forty feet in height without being fireproof. These tentative provisions have received the approval of the Superintendent of Buildings in each of the five boroughs.

Here plainly is a conflict of laws and jurisdictions illustrative of the confusion existing in the administration of the innumerable and oftentimes inexplicable laws applicable to buildings in this city. Who is in charge of the construction of garages, the Superintendents of Buildings or the Municipal Explosive Commission? Obviously the authorities themselves are in doubt, for both are claiming the same jurisdiction and making conflicting regulations. The former hold that it is unnecessary that every little private garage in the Greater City —in distant Richmond suburbs as well as in the congested parts of Manhattan —should be built fireproof, as the Fire Commissioner would have it. Under the Lockwood bill, providing for the co-ordination of building inspection, this conflict of ordinances and departmental supervision would be avoided, as the Superintendents of Buildings, each in his respective borough, are to have jurisdiction over the construction and alteration of garages, while the Bureau of Municipal Explosives would have control over the maintenance and use of the buildings when they are completed. Architects, builders and business men generally believe that this is the sensible and economical way.

War and Property.

John Ruskin agreed with the saying of the militarists that war is necessary. More than this, he asserted that war is the foundation of all great art. To Ruskin's mind, war is also the foundation of all the high virtues and faculties of men, and he declared that it is quite an undeniable fact that peace and the vices of civil life flourish together—peace and sensuality, peace and selfishness, peace and corruption. Ruskin found, in brief, that all great nations have been nourished by war and wasted by peace, taught by war and deceived by peace.

But the warfare to which John Ruskin referred is not of the kind now being waged in Europe. The truly creative or foundational "war," he maintained, is one in which the natural restlessness and love of contest in men are disciplined into modes of beautiful and peaceable living. It is a "war" in which natural ambition and love of power in men are disciplined into the aggressive conquest of surrounding evil. "To such a war as this all men are born," said the great critic: "in such a war as this any man may happily die; and forth from such a war as this, throughout the extent of past ages, come all the highest sanctities and virtues of humanity."

Scientifically, all life is in its last analysis a struggle—a war. Every living thing is armed for war, offensive or defensive. But it is a cruel as well as a false doctrine which teaches that once in every generation a portion of the population must be killed off in order that the remainder may thrive, and that a vast amount of property must be destroyed in order that men may have work and profit in reproducing it. Still, it is a fact that the so-called waste of money—if we consider money alone—in international physical warfare is grossly exaggerated. The sinking of a battleship, for example, does not represent absolute loss. First, because the money was spent at the time of the ship's construction, not at the time of her destruction. As an investment a ship is destined to represent a total loss eventually through deterioration, if not by destruction. In the second place, the money spent for construction was not lost, but was paid out for wages and material, and therefore it contributed to the support of a great number of people.

The destruction of lives in war is a diabolical crime against nature, but the destruction of property by war, as by fire and flood, is in a very large degree merely an anticipation of natural and economic processes, which most often carry a blessing in disguise to the world at large, if not to particular individuals. But for the European war and the business it has generated for the people of this country, the economic situation here would have been far more distressful.

The Alternative.

According to President McAneny, a direct State tax of $18,000,000 will mean a tax rate of 2.15 in New York City next year, unless there is a cutting down of the service by the city in its departments. A city government at all sagacious will not hesitate long in accepting the alternative. A tax rate of 2.15 means more to this city than to any other in the State, because real estate is assessed here at its full market value, while in the other cities it is not assessed so highly as a general rule, and consequently the tax does not fall so heavily as here. In 1,121 instances when Manhattan property was sold during the year 1913, and the considerations made a matter of public record, it was found that the aggregate of the considerations was less than the aggregate of the assessed valuations by 1 per cent. In 919 Brooklyn cases the average consideration was less than the average value estimated by the Tax Department for assessment purposes by 2 per cent. In 383 Bronx sales the average consideration received was less by 3 per cent than the property was taxed for. (The figures are official.)

A rate of 2.15 figures out in the case of a property valued at $1,000,000 as a tax of $21,500; in the case of a piece of realty valued for assessment purposes at $100,000 it amounts to a tax of $2,150, and for a dwelling estimated to be worth $10,000 the 2.15 rate means a tax of $215, or $17.50 a month. If to the last named sum, for example, be added a figure that will represent the interest on the owner's investment in the dwelling, plus his coal bill, his repair bill and the occasional assessments for adjacent public improvements, there will be revealed a total annual charge so large as to raise the question very seriously in the owner's mind whether it pays any more to invest in New York real estate. In the case of the owners of office and loft buildings now half vacant this higher tax of thirty-five points in two years (and sixty-seven points in nine years) is a very severe infliction.

Can the City of New York afford to have the announcement go forth authoritatively that it doesn't pay to invest in realty within its bounds? For the country is wide and there are other places in which to live and carry on business. Mr. McAneny concedes that the 2.15 rate means an increase of rents—house rents, loft and office rents and store rents. And the alternative is to discontinue some of the service the city is rendering. During the last budget hearings it was made very plain that not only does the city attempt too much, but that there are too many hands even for the necessary work. The number of inspectors of one sort or another going about the city is extremely large, and the expense to the city is staggering, not to say anything about the annoyance to owners and tenants from the visitations. In the first two months of the present year (as can be learned from Comptroller Prendergast's summary for February) the payroll expenditures of the city amounted to about twenty million dollars. Ninety thousand is the number of persons on the city payroll, and how many more thousands there are on other payrolls which are met by voluntary contributions from the public generally nobody knows. Proportionately, there are more men and women in the public and semi-public service here than in any other city in the land. Eighteen million dollars of tax money was spent last year for health and sanitation, nine million for charitable purposes, two million for recreation, science and art, thirty-two million for the protection of life and property, and forty million for education. The per capita cost of all the budget appropriations for the year 1914 was no less than $34. In other words, a man with a wife and four dependent children had to pay directly or indirectly, in the form of taxes or rent, the total of $170 as his share of supporting the local government. It is inevitable that the city must shorten its protecting arm, put the civil service upon a business basis, and no longer sacrifice the interest of the public at large for the sake of the public servants.

City Rights in the Brooklyn Waterfront.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Dear Sir.—Permit me to call the attention of your readers to the incomplete presentation of the rights of the City of New York in the proceedings to acquire rights for the terminal station of the freight railway on the Brooklyn waterfront in Gowanus Bay. The deed to the First Construction Company recites that it grants "subject to the right of the City of New York and State of New York and United States of America to regulate and control the use of the lands below original high-water mark."

It is submitted that the words "to regulate and control the use of the lands" are synonymous with the words "to the use of," which words as every lawyer knows, constitutes a naked trust, under § 93 of the Real Property Law, vesting the entire title in the person entitled to the use or control of the use of the land.

If this construction is correct, the First Construction Company has no title to the land "below original high-water line."

Second. According to the authoritative map to determine this line of original high-water (a map made by Lieutenant Ratzer, in 1766), introduced in these proceedings by the City (p. 244 of Vol. I of testimony), all of the land to be taken was below original high-water mark, except about 100 square feet, at the intersection of present Clinton and Creamer streets.

The location of these lines is further confirmed by three maps on file in the Kings County Register's Office, which are referred to in the deeds through which these claimants derive title, i. e., a map of the property of Nicholas Laqueer, filed Feb. 15, 1838; a map of the lands of Jordan Coles, filed Dec. 12 and 17, 1834, and a map of lands of the heirs of Mathias and Nicholas Van Dyke, filed in 1834.

It is therefore submitted that the city proposes to pay the First Construction Company, according to the testimony of experts who testified as to the value of land, owned in fee simple absolute—while in fact under proper legal construction it does not belong to the First Construction Company except possibly about one hundred square feet.

Third. There was no mistake in drawing the deed to the First Construction Company. The grantor conveyed all that he had any right to convey, in fee, when he excluded all land below original high-water mark from passing to that grantee and to any one, except the City and State of New York, and possibly the United States. The grantor above named and his predecessors in title derived their rights, beyond the line of original high-water from Chapter—of the laws of 1847. This act authorized Daniel Richards and others, owners of upland, to erect docks as on land under water in front of their land to a line, including Halleck street, on the westerly one-half of the site to be taken for the Terminal, and extending along Sigourney street on the easterly half of the site, so as to include most of the site to be taken.

The fourth section of this act provides that "nothing in this act contained shall be taken or construed to destroy, abridge or in any manner impair or affect the rights of the Mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the City of New York, in respect to any land under water, or other land belonging to the said Mayor, Aldermen and commonalty of the City of New York, or to which they may have right or make claim, nor shall this act authorize any dock, wharf, pier or basin to be erected upon or in front of any of the lands belonging to the City of New York, without the permission of the Mayor, Aldermen and commonalty of the said City first had and obtained."

The reason for the insertion of this proviso is found in the charters of the City of New York, granted by Lord Cornbury and Governor Montgomerie (see Gerard's "City Water Rights," p. 35), granting to the City of New York the ownership of land between high and low-water mark on Long Island from Wallabout Bay to the west side of Red Hook.

These proceedings are not yet closed; ought not the legal representatives of the city to present these claims fully and emphatically, before an award is made?

Projections Beyond the Building Line.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I note in your edition of April 17, a communication from Hon. Cyrus C. Miller, former Borough President of The Bronx, on the proposed ordinance relating to "Projections Beyond the Building Line." It would seem that Mr. Miller is under a misapprehension in regard to this proposed ordinance.

The proposed ordinance does not provide for any encroachment outside of the building line that is not already provided for by some ordinance. It therefore does not legalize any illegal encroachment. What will be accomplished by this ordinance is consistency between existing ordinances. It is quite true that, generally speaking, the provisions outlined in the ordinance represent the practice established for Manhattan in 1911. At a conference of the Superintendents of Buildings some time last year this matter of projection outside the building line was discussed, and the Superintendents generally agreed that the Manhattan regulations as then established seemed fair and reasonable. The Superintendent from The Bronx felt that they were too liberal. Mr. Miller knows quite well that the establishment of the Manhattan regulation of 1911 restricted the permissible encroachments into the street to what was considered, not only by the Borough President, but also by the architects, as a fair and reasonable amount.

If Mr. Miller carries his ideas to their logical conclusion, there could be no projection outside of the building line, not even a belt course, cornice or window sill. I think that he would hardly be willing to go so far as to prohibit these projections. If he doesn't, then why not permit other reasonable projections that are for purely ornamental purposes? Furthermore, Mr. Miller, as Borough President, did not deem it necessary to prevent projections outside the building line if they were ten feet above the sidewalk.

I should be very glad to have from Mr. Miller any suggestions as to the proper amounts of these projections, and to have him indicate which of the projections, in his judgment, should be absolutely prohibited. While this matter is being revised and an attempt is being made to harmonize the ordinances, it is just as well to consider also what limitations should be fixed as a matter of policy.

RUDOLPH P. MILLER.

The Garbage Disposal Question.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The extremely unfair press campaign that has been indulged in by the city administration because Governor Whitman properly vetoed the garbage disposal bill, calls for a strong protest. I advised all New York City realty protective associations to ask the Governor to veto the bill, and the following were my reasons:

City refuse consists of garbage, ashes and rubbish; garbage from American cities cannot be burned alone, but can be reduced by reduction plants, and grease and oil obtained as by-products; or garbage can be burned with rubbish and ashes; ashes, although containing from 15 to 30 per cent. of carbon, cannot be burned alone, but can be burned with rubbish, with or without garbage; rubbish consists of rags, paper, waste, bottles and tin cans. The tin cans can be sold to detinning plants, and the bottles resold.

There is a difference of opinion in Europe as to whether it is more economical to burn garbage, rubbish and ashes as a whole in incinerating plants, or to reduce the garbage in reduction plants, and burn rubbish and ashes in incinerating plants. But the preponderance of opinion is that it is better and more economical to incinerate all city refuse and utilize the power derived therefrom. The power so produced can be used either for electric lighting purposes or for power in light manufacturing plants, or for electrically charging the motor garbage wagons used in the collection of city refuse.

It is absolutely necessary, sooner or later, for New York City to erect incineration plants for burning its refuse instead of the present antiquated plan; and it is all important that such plants be built in small units throughout the different boroughs so as to make short hauls for cartage purposes, as it is only by this means that economies, if any, can be effected.

The question arises if these incineration plants were built in the several boroughs of the city, for what purpose could the power generated be used? The power could be used for recharging the batteries for the electric motor garbage trucks hauling refuse; or it could be used for lighting the streets, or sold for commercial purposes provided the city had the use of electric conduits, which it does not now own. It would therefore seem that the only use that the city could put the power generated to would be to recharge its electric garbage trucks.

I consider that the City Administration owe a public apology to Governor Whitman when it publicly stated that but for his act the city would have saved $1,400,000 per annum on an expenditure of $9,000,000.

In conclusion, I am in favor of the erection of incinerating plants even without a reduction in present expenditure, whenever the financial condition of the city warrants such expenditure, which it certainly does not now do.

Hearing on Bronx Subways.

A joint conference and hearing before the Rapid Transit Committee of the Board of Estimate and Edward E. McCall, chairman of the Public Service Commission, will be held at eleven o'clock, Monday, April 26, in the rooms of the commission, in order to arrive at a conclusion in the matter of the proposed connection of the old and new subways, on Southern Boulevard and Westchester avenue, by a spur on Whitlock avenue.

A delegation of the Bronx Board of Trade, headed by the Traffic & Waterways Bureau, will appear and urge that the Board of Estimate appropriate the necessary funds for this work.

—In general business conditions in this country one extreme has eventually been balanced by the opposite extreme, as in nature. The present rebound from extreme depression in the stock market is extraordinary only because of its suddenness. It foreshadows the certain revival in real estate.

MR. M'GUIRE PROTESTS.

And Substantiates His Statement That the Mayor Was Consulted.

President Laurence M. D. McGuire of the Real Estate Board, sent to the Mayor on Thursday a letter which recites certain important facts in connection with the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill. Mr. McGuire says:

"In view of the developments at the hearing before you yesterday on the so-called Lockwood-Ellenbogen Bill, I feel I did not have an opportunity of putting certain facts, which I consider important, on the record. The speakers who appeared in opposition to the bill were accorded by you an uninterrupted hearing. I regret to have to say that those who spoke in favor of the bill, including myself, were not accorded this same privilege to which I submit they were entitled.

"While I personally realize that the bill did not have your support and I may say it was generally understood, and in fact publicly stated, that you would disapprove the bill, I nevertheless felt that you would accord both sides equally fair consideration.

"You repeatedly stated at the hearing yesterday that you were not consulted at the time the bill was being drafted.

"The minutes of a meeting of the executive committee of the conference held on Friday, December 11, at 11 a. m., contain a record of the presence of City Chamberlain Bruere as representing the Mayor, also a statement that the chairman (Mr. Robert E. Simon) said 'he had asked Mr. Bruere to this meeting for the purpose of hearing the Mayor's views on this subject.'

"Again, under date of January 16, a written invitation was sent to you by the secretary for a meeting of the Conference Committee to be held on January 21, from which I quote as follows: 'The enclosed notice to the delegates of the various associations will give further particulars. You are respectfully requested to be present at this meeting in order that all phases of the matter may be discussed. This conference would appreciate it if you could spare the time to attend the meeting or, if not, send a representative.' I enclose herewith a copy of a letter under date of January 20, signed by your secretary, Mr. Theodore Rousseau, in which you regretted your inability to attend this meeting.

"You will no doubt recall asking me to attend a luncheon at the Whitehall Club along with yourself, Commissioner Adamson, Corporation Counsel Polk and Mr. Abram I. Elkus. You asked me then if the real estate interests were unalterably committed to what was called the Borough consolidation. I told you that the Conference Committee had voted in favor of the transferring of the functions now exercised by the various city departments to the Building Bureaus in the different boroughs. I nevertheless, expressed it as my opinion that if a so-called central plan, which had your approval, could be submitted to the Conference Committee I was confident it would receive every consideration.

"It was then agreed that Mr. Elkus should draft a bill for a central department and I was to submit the bill to the Conference Committee.

"I may say here that this meeting was held prior to the drafting of the Lockwood-Ellenbogen Bill and consequently had your bill for a Central Department been submitted, the committee would have been in a position to substitute it for the Borough plan upon which they had before voted.

"Now this is what actually happened. Instead of Mr. Elkus submitting to the committee your proposed Central plan, he being counsel both for your committee on Consolidation of Departments and for the State Factory Investigating Commission, on the morning of February 15, at an executive session of the State Factory Investigating Commission, the members of your committee came before the members of the State Factory Investigating Commission and submitted a plan giving the Board of Estimate power to consolidate these various departments. In other words, instead of the agreement to submit a Central plan being carried out, this eleventh hour suggestion to give the Board of Estimate power and which, by the way, I believe could not have passed the Legislature, was submitted.

"These facts I feel will show conclusively that you were not only consulted but you were constantly informed as to what the Conference Committee was doing.

"This being the case, I believe the facts should be recorded and this is my purpose in sending you this letter. I regret exceedingly that in public statements attributed to you, none of which you have denied, you have misunderstood the character and the purpose of the supporters of this measure, and I personally resent being alluded to as a land speculator, and I believe the seventy odd representative organizations who have made a hard, fair and earnest fight to obtain relief from an intolerable condition are justified in feeling hurt at your public allusions to them.

"Whatever your action may be, I want to go on record now as having been of open mind on this whole question, as having considered every phase of it, and as having been instrumental in meeting fairly every objection that was made to the original Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill. I am on record before the Joint Committee on Cities of the Legislature as being as much in favor of a Central as a Borough plan and you must know that I personally would have favored a Central plan, were it a legislative possibility. I do not believe you are justified in feeling that the real estate interests of the City of New York are antagonistic to your administration. You will recall on February 6th, at the dinner of the Real Estate Board I took the initiative in pledging the real estate interests to support your administration and that representative gathering there and then heartily pledged themselves in support of you. I believe we are entitled to your support. We are a unit for the Lockwood-Ellenbogen Bill as amended and I now make one further appeal to you and ask in all fairness and consideration for the great real estate interests of the City of New York, that you approve of the bill."

How Business Men Feel About Over-Regulation.

William H. Browning, of Browning, King & Co., a large real estate owner, has written a letter to Mayor Mitchel on the subject of the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill, in which he records the state of feeling among business men on the subject:

"I feel that there must be something wrong in the attitude of the daily newspapers toward this bill. You can go into any place of business anywhere in the city and you will find that the feeling against the present system is most bitter. It is not real estate alone, it is the business and industries of the city that are being injured.

"The real estate interests cannot be prosperous unless business is prosperous, and the employers in the business cannot be prosperous unless the business they work for is prosperous. It all seems so silly to me, and it is really sad when one sees the Tenement House Department of the Charity Organization Society opposing this law with one hand and trying to help the bread line on the Bowery with the other. I may be very stupid, but I cannot see any sense in it pushing people out of work and then trying to feed them. Unfortunately public business has no competition. It would be so refreshing to see it set an example of efficiency to private business.

"Remember, however, if the administration does not make good on the payroll, all the talking in the newspapers and all the nice laws passed to benefit one class and tax another under the assumption that there are two classes in business, when there is no such thing, will not do any good. Your administration will stand or fall by the size of the people's payroll and the size of the payroll will depend entirely upon the amount of prosperity of the business under its control."

MAYOR CAN STOP OVER-REGULATION.

"That is not true," exclaimed the Mayor irritably. "I took such action myself."

Mr. McGuire also said that every effort had been made to meet the Mayor's wishes and asked if certain clauses in the bill drawn by Mr. Elkus were not inserted for this purpose.

"I don't know whether he did or not," snapped the Mayor. Mr. McGuire, finding the Mayor in an antagonistic mood, did not prolong his remarks.

Stewart Browne, president of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, said the civic associations understood Mr. Bruere to say he represented the Mayor at the conferences and they certainly thought he spoke for the Mayor. Real estate must get relief. The Mayor should choose between two evils. "You should waive your personal objection to the bill and any minor defects should be lost sight of in view of the great relief it offers. If you will not sign the bill I ask you to return it to Albany promptly," concluded Mr. Browne.

"So as to carry out the program," said the Mayor, sarcastically.

"I know you don't lack the nerve to sign this bill if you think it will afford relief," said Mr. Browne.

"If I'm satisfied after investigating the legal points I shall not lack the nerve either way," asserted the Mayor.

Clarence Shumway, of the North Side Board of Trade, said the Tenement House Law is unusually well guarded in the bill and those who deny this have not investigated the provisions of the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill.

W. B. Greenman, of the Brooklyn Builders' Association, said that during the numerous conferences preceding the framing of the bill and after its introduction all objections were met in a fair spirit and all of the seventy civic associations regretted that the Tenement House Department refused to fall in line to afford relief. But for this the bill had practically no opposition.

Prof. Charles T. Perry said the Mayor must realize that the bill does, to some extent, afford relief and that it does, to a large extent, represent public opinion; so it must have a germ of something in it that is worth while. "We know that, even were you not consulted, you are too much the Mayor of this great city to sulk in your tent."

"It was up to you," said Prof. Perry, "as the honored head, the father of this great city, knowing what we were doing, to have said to us who were preparing this bill, of your own accord, 'come forward, let us talk this matter over.'"

Joseph L. Buttenweiser said the opponents of the bill seemed to think the Tenement House Law more sacred than the Ten Commandments. The whole city and not the real estate interests only was crying for relief.

"If you find no better objection than these gentlemen have given and no worse than you yourself have given, you should approve this bill," he said. "No law outside the Decalogue was ever perfect—the Tenement House Law least of all—for it had to be amended hundreds of times. I am sure you will be very careful before taking on your shoulders the responsibility of vetoing this bill, which is so plainly of the people, by the people and for the people."

Other Legislative Measures.

The Legislature will adjourn this (Saturday) afternoon.

The Senate has passed, under a suspension of the rules, Senator Mills's second bill amending the secured debt tax law by increasing the recording tax from 5 mills to 7½ mills and fixing the exemption at five years instead of for the life of the bond.

A new administration bill provides that after October 1, 1915, liquor dealers shall turn over to the State Treasury 2½ per cent. of their gross receipts, payable monthly, excepting the first $2,000 of annual receipts.

The Direct Tax.

"The direct tax will be nineteen millions and a few hundred thousand," said the Governor. "I'd hoped we could keep it to eighteen million, but we can't. There is no doubt about the obligations we will have to meet. And our revenues are falling off. If the liquor tax will amount to five millions the direct tax will be sufficient to meet our obligations."

Both houses have passed Senator Slater's bill repealing the Burns law, passed nearly twenty years ago to prevent the construction of trolley roads on the Albany post road, especially along the narrow portions of it in Westchester county.

Both houses have passed the Spring bill to consolidate the Compensation Commission and the State Labor Department. The bill creates an industrial commission of five members.

The only things necessary now to make Rockaway a city are the signatures of Mayor Mitchel and Governor Whitman to the bill which has passed both houses of the Legislature.

Water System at Brentwood.

With the opening of the spring season the suburban real estate operators report a brisk demand for improved and unimproved property in sections contiguous and easily accessible to the metropolitan centers. In many cases the market tendency has been in harmony with the physical improvements made on the properties. At Brentwood, Long Island, a new central pressure water system has just been installed. It is a great improvement over the former system and feeds the entire Brentwood Park District. The Brentwood Realty Co. reports the completion of three new houses of bungalow and semi-bungalow design.

Real Estate Board Tennis.

A tennis tournament for members of the Real Estate Board of New York is scheduled to be held Saturday, May 8, at the "Notlek Courts," Claremont avenue and 119th street. The preliminary play for classification will be held April 24. Among its members the board includes several individual players of note and it is expected before the prizes are distributed many close and interesting games will result. The committee in charge consists of Alfred V. Amy, chairman; Wallace J. Hardgrove, secretary; Harry Parker, Leroy Coventry and E. A. Tredwell.

—The Supreme Court holds that the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. of New York must pay a franchise tax of $500,000 imposed by the State of New York for the privilege of doing business in the State. That will help to ease off the direct State tax for other taxpayers.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Washington Heights District.

Resolutions for the following indicated improvements have been adopted:

Closing and discontinuing of Chittenden avenue from Northern avenue to Riverside drive. Petition of Jonas M. Libbey. The Bureau of Design and Survey reports that the closing of Chittendon avenue would leave a 40-foot strip in private ownership flanked by public parks on either side. The report also calls attention to the fact that the petitioners for the closing should file a bond to meet possible damages under chapter 1000 of the Charter.

Construction of receiving basins adjacent to the southwest corner of West 160th street and Fort Washington avenue, and the southwest corner of Fort Washington avenue and Broadway, the estimated cost being $820 and the assessed valuation, $1,693,000. This improvement originates in connection with the proposed paving of West 160th street. It is deemed advisable to improve surface drainage conditions before paving work is commenced.

Murray Hill District.

Alteration and improvement to sewer in West 24th street, between Sixth avenue and Broadway. Laid over two weeks on March 9th and again on March 23d. Estimated cost $15,600. Assessed valuation $35,622,500. The proposed improvement is due to the fact that the condition of this sewer is very bad throughout. The mortar joints are gone at the crown and sides, with bricks loose or missing. There is a heavy crack in the crown. The house connections are badly broken in numerous instances, permitting dirt to enter. The sewer was built in 1849.

Construction of receiving basins adjacent to the southeast corner of West 52nd street and Sixth avenue, and on the south side of West 52nd street and north side of West 51st street, between Sixth and Fifth avenues. Estimated cost $1,340. Assessed valuation $9,422,000. This improvement originates in connection with the proposed repaving of West 52nd street. It is deemed advisable to improve surface conditions before repaving work is commenced.

Alteration and improvement to sewer in East and West 28th street, between Madison avenue and Broadway, at an estimated cost of $17,700, the assessed valuation being $20,309,000. The proposed improvement is presented because an examination of the existing sewer indicates that it is in a very bad condition throughout its entire length. It is badly distorted, the crown having flattened and the sides buckled. The brickwork is loose and in numerous places there are holes varying in size from 8 to 18 inches. The existing sewer was built in 1847.

Kips Bay District.

Construction of receiving basins adjacent to the northwest corner of 15th street and Avenue B, and the southeast corner of 16th street and Avenue A, at an estimated cost of $900 and assessed valuation, $1,013,500. This improvement originates in connection with the proposed repaving of 15th street. It is deemed advisable to improve surface drainage conditions before any paving work is undertaken.

Greenwich District.

Alteration and improvement to sewer in Pine street, between Nassau street and Broadway, and in Broadway, east side, between Pine and Cedar streets, at an estimated cost of $13,000, assessed valuation being $39,040,000. The existing sewers have settled unevenly in varying amounts up to fifteen inches, probably due to excavations for the new Equitable building. They are cracked, distorted and liable to collapse, thereby creating an unsanitary condition that is a menace to public health, and are in a physical condition which endangers public safety. The Corporation Counsel advises that the owners of the Equitable building or their contractors cannot be held liable because no specific negligence on the part of the contractor can be shown, and states that the city will be guilty of neglect unless these matters are brought before the proper officials for action. He also advises that the procedure now being taken in bringing this matter to the attention of the Local Board is the proper one.

Construction of receiving basin adjacent to the southwest corner of Tenth avenue and 27th street. Estimated cost, $440; assessed valuation, $1,567,450. This improvement originates in connection with the proposed repaving of West 27th street. A readjustment of surface drainage makes the proposed basin desirable.

SEVEN YEARS OF PLENTY NEXT.

This Is the Prediction for Long Island Realty—Speculation Not a Market Feature.

Real estate, throughout Nassau county, Long Island, is displaying the best spring activity in several years, and operators and builders assert that it justifies the old saying that real estate undergoes an unusually brisk movement every seven years. It is about seven years since the last era of marked activity in Nassau and Queens counties properties.

The suburban sections of western Long Island are so extensively improved and transit facilities have become so prolific, that real property has lost the boom aspect completely and has solidified into actual fee values.

It is predicted by investors and operators that if a great buying movement of Long Island real estate starts this spring, as seems likely, that those who sign contracts of purchase will retain them and get deeds to home sites and improve them for occupancy. Speculation is not a market feature.

Queens is carrying on numerous building operations and Nassau county is the scene of much home construction. The north shore of Queens, from Beechhurst east to the Nassau line, is retaining its detached home character, while the central area is susceptible to urban types of construction because of the new subway routes that penetrate it. The north shore of Nassau county is being improved along costly lines, while the south shore of the same county, from the Queens line easterly to Baldwin Harbor, is a theatre of construction of moderate-priced homes.

Long Island is no longer a transit enigma to commuters between Manhattan and the suburbs. It now shares residential honors with the five suburban counties of New Jersey, as well as with Rockland and Westchester counties. The urban growth in the major part of Queens borough is necessarily bringing into greater demand for suburban homes the central and southern parts of Nassau county.

—The president of an industrial concern employing about twenty traveling salesmen, who cover all of the United States as far west as the Rocky Mountains, says the reports he receives from his representatives conclusively point to a decided improvement in sentiment and business conditions. Pittsburgh he sets down as the bluest spot in the United States, while Chicago is optimistic, and points beyond are positively enthusiastic. The sentiment east of the Alleghenies, he says, is still depressed but improving.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Those who were encouraged by last week's good showing to the opinion that the real estate market has a marked tendency toward improvement should not be led toward a contrary view by a cursory survey of this week's business. While not so many deals have been reported as in the previous week, the sales represent the same diversified demand which has characterized recent dealings. There have been 164 conveyances recorded this week, as against 134 last week, which more than balances the falling off in the number of sales privately reported.

Special interest attaches to several important transactions. A Times Square corner figured in a long-term lease as a site for a tall structure to be devoted exclusively to film producers. This class of business, on account of the highly inflammable nature of its commodity, has created a demand for certain kinds of space, and the new building, it is said, will cater to this demand. Just north, the old Lincoln Hotel is also reported to be involved in a deal which will result in a large commercial improvement.

Apartment houses and costly private residences also figured prominently in the business. It is evident to many that there is still a fundamental strength to the market, evidenced by the greater number of deeds recorded, many of which undoubtedly represent sales that did not happen to be reported.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 30 as against 35 last week and 28 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 6 as compared with 5 last week and 12 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 24 as compared with 30 last week and 16 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 164, as against 134 last week, 21 having stated considerations totaling $625,000. Mortgages recorded this week numbered 69, involving $1,063,610, as against 73 last week, totaling $2,532,-687.

From the Bronx 9 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 17 last week and 18 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $13,602,177, compared with $580,751 last week, making a total for the year of $27,937,850. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $1,320,170 and the total from Jan. 1, 1914, to April 25, 1914, was $13,736,094.

$1,000,000 Brooklyn Deal.

Oppenheim, Collins & Company have purchased, through Clark T. Chambers, from H. B. Duryea and William Kuhr, the property at 471-479 Fulton street and 155-157 Lawrence street, Brooklyn, an area of about 12,000 square feet, with a frontage of 75 feet in Fulton street. The same firm acquired adjoining property last Fall from the Loeser estate and now controls a plot fronting 135 feet in Fulton street. A modern structure is contemplated which will be devoted exclusively to the business of the purchaser. The land and building will represent an investment of more than $1,000,000.

Old Burns Restaurant Sold.

Charles S. Kohler sold for Mrs. Susie E. Fitchette, the Burns restaurant property, 783-785 6th avenue, with an "L" to 102-104 West 45th street, four, three and four buildings, 50x100 on the avenue and 43x75 in the street, to a client of the Lawyers' Title Insurance & Trust Company. It was rumored yesterday that the buyer was John Dunstan, proprietor of "Jacks'" restaurant. The property was held at $300,000. Blandy, Mooney & Shipman, as attorneys, represented the seller.

Adds to Holdings.

The E. R. Merrill Spring Company, now owning and occupying 527 and 529 West 27th street and 526-532 West 28th street, have purchased the adjoining three-story building, 531 West 27th street, from Noah B. Shute, and 525 West 27th street from the John Frey estate, and now control eight lots, with frontages of 95 and 100 feet, respectively, in 27th and 28th streets.

Sale and Lease in Fulton Street.

Charles F. Rosenberg, trustee in bankruptcy. Other sales of interest involved the five-story mercantile building at 257 Fifth avenue, which went to the plaintiff in the foreclosure suit, the Windham Realization Company, for $229,000, and the four-story dwelling, 38 East 36th street, offered by the Moore estate, to a client of the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, for $83,000. The buyer is reported to be William Church Osborn, attorney.

Moving Day

Moving day discloses the fact that most of the moving vans are depositing their loads in front of buildings equipped for electric service.

Modern families demand electric light in their homes. They know its many advantages and conveniences and go where they may enjoy them.

The residence or apartment electrically equipped rents more readily and sells at a higher price.

DEPARTMENTAL RULINGS.

BOARD OF EXAMINERS.

During the month of March, the Board of Examiners held seven meetings, and received 71 appeals. There was, in addition, 12 appeals pending on March 1, making a total of 83 appeals. At the various hearings held 58 appeals were approved on condition, 6 approved outright, 5 disapproved, 4 dismissed, without action, 5 withdrawn, by appellant and 5 laid over.

The following appeals and decisions have been handed down by the Board of Building Examiners:

APPEAL 129 of 1915, New Building 341 of 1913, 31 West 110th street, Manhattan. Louis Allen Abramson, appellant.

24. Wood enclosure on roof garden of unlawful construction. Should be of incombustible material.

To approve the mode, manner of construction or materials proposed to be followed or used in the erection or alteration of such building or structure.

To permit the use of wood in the construction of the open trellis work, pergola, and supporting members.

The building is occupied and owned by the Young Women's Hebrew Association, by reason of which the fire hazard is reduced to the minimum, no smoking being allowed, and the building being the highest in the locality, it is the appellant's belief that the material desired to be employed, will be equally good to that demanded by the Superintendent of Buildings.

APPROVED ON CONDITION that the supports of the pergolas be placed on the roof, and not on the exterior walls; and that the rafters of the pergolas shall not project beyond the walls of the building.

APPEAL 130 of 1915, New Building 1810 of 1915, northeast corner Livonia avenue and Hinsdale street, Brooklyn. Louis Allen Abramson, appellant.

Denied under Section 31 of Code.

To approve the mode, manner of construction or materials proposed to be followed or used in the erection or alteration of such building or structure. Or that an equally good and more desirable form of construction can be employed.

The use of steel girders; steel girders to be properly fireproofed, in place of fore and aft brick walls.

The form of construction proposed above is, in the opinion of the appellant, equally good and more desirable, particularly inasmuch as a continuous transverse fire wall exists on all floors.

APPROVED on the following CONDITIONS:

1st. That an unpierced brick wall at least eight inches thick be provided at the point marked "A" on 2d, 3d and 4th floor plan, extending from the second floor to the underside of the roof-boards; and that the brick wall marked "C" may be replaced with an ordinary partition.

2d. That that portion of the second floor over space marked "B" on the first floor be of fireproof construction.

3d. That all columns and girders supporting floors or walls be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Bureau of Buildings.

APPEAL 131 of 1915, New Building 1973 of 1915, 1354-1356 63d street, Brooklyn. Matthew W. Del Gaudio, appellant.

This proposition being in conflict with the conditions required by the Board of Examiners, I would recommend that the proposed changes be submitted again to the said Board of Examiners for consideration.

The proposed amendment was in accordance with the recommendations of the Board of Examiners, made on March 16, 1915, at the hearing given the appellant, in the matter of application No. 1220, of 1915, said latter matter being in relation to omission of the fore and aft partition wall, in said building, and when appeal was approved, on certain conditions. The said appeal is known as No. 77, and is dated March 10, 1915. By said amendment it is proposed to provide a steel girder, with a column supporting same, for the support of the floor beams at front portion of building, and to have the wall dividing the front from the rear portions of the building, of 12" brick.

That, in view of the providing of said girder and columns sufficient support is provided for the floor beams, while the providing of a 12" wall between the front and rear portions of building will divide the building in two sections, completely separated from each other.

Proper support being shown for the floor beams, and also, the girders and columns will be properly fireproofed, and the conditions mentioned in the Board's official notice of March 16, 1915, will be complied with.

APPROVED ON THE FOLLOWING CONDITIONS:

1st. That a self-closing fireproof door be provided at the point marked "A" on the cellar plan.

2d. That all columns and girders supporting floors or walls be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Bureau of Buildings.

APPEAL 132 of 1915, New Building 1878 of 1915, 113-121 Linden street, Brooklyn. Harry Dorf, appellant.

1. Comply with Section 31 of the Code. Section 31 of the Code permits me to use steel girders and columns in place of a brick wall where the span is over 26' between bearing walls. May I use steel girders and columns in place of a brick wall? It will diminish the rooms 6" in width and under the present condition it will be bad construction.

APPROVED on the FOLLOWING CONDITIONS:

1st. That an unpierced brick wall at least eight inches thick be built at the point marked "A" on the first floor plan, extending from the first floor beams to the underside of the floor of the second story.

2d. That the floor and ceiling of the space marked "B" on the first floor plan be of fireproof construction.

3. That all columns and girders supporting floors or walls be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Bureau of Buildings.

APPEAL 133 of 1915, New Building 49 of 1915, 588 Fifth avenue, Manhattan. Alfred Freeman, appellant.

6. Walls in rear portion of second story are of unlawful thickness as shown on new plans. That an equally good and more desirable form of construction can be employed. To construct side and rear walls which are to be of skeleton type 12" in the second story and same to be carried on steel framing. A 12" wall being considered as sufficient for the upper 75 feet or more of the exposed part of the building, the same should apply to the lower or less exposed part of the building. The load on the second story wall is no greater than that on the wall of the story above, and therefore need not be increased in thickness. The main use of this wall is as a fire protection, or protection from the elements.

Appearances: Alfred Freeman and Sidney Diamant, C.E. APPROVED.

APPEAL 134 of 1915, New Building 58 of 1915, 1562 Broadway, Manhattan. James C. Green, appellant.

1st. That the walls shown are of unlawful thickness.

2d. Lining of party walls are insufficient.

That the Superintendent of Buildings will not approve of the mode, manner of construction to be followed in the erection of this building.

1st. That the walls can be built as shown on submitted plans. 12" thick entire height.

2d. That 4" brick lining thoroughly anchored to party wall be permitted. The outside walls are supported at each story on the steel columns and girders, the strength is ample as shown and additional encroachment on the restricted rental space is unnecessary hardship to the owner.

Appearance: James C. Green. On motion, after lengthy discussion, entered on the record as withdrawn by appellant.

APPEAL 135 of 1915, New Building 1862 of 1915, 383-385 South 3d street, Brooklyn. Charles M. Straub, appellant.

Denied for excessive height, contrary to Section 31 of Code.

He refuses to approve the mode and manner of construction to be used in the erection of this building—as to thickness of walls in second story for height of building, same exceeding 60'. To permit the front wall in second story to be 16" thick, and the rear, side and all court walls in second story to be 12" thick, as proposed. The 12" portions of walls from the second floor up to top roof beams does not exceed 50 feet in height, and the total height from curb level to top of roof beams is only 63' 1", and to highest point of roof 64' 9".

Appearance: Charles M. Straub.

APPROVED on the following CONDITIONS:

1st. That an unpierced brick wall be provided at the point marked "A" on the several floor plans, extending from the cellar floor to the underside of the roof-boards.

2d. That a self-closing fireproof door be provided at the point marked "B" in the cellar.

3d. That all columns and girders supporting floors or walls be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Bureau of Buildings.

APPEAL 136 of 1915, New Building 1863 of 1915, 64-68 South 2d street, Brooklyn. Charles M. Straub, appellant.

Denied, for excessive height, contrary to Section 31 of the Code. He refuses to aprove the mode and manner of construction to be used in the erection of this building—as to thickness of walls in second story for height of building, same exceeding 60 feet. To permit the gable wall on South 2d street in second story to be 16" thick, and the front, rear side and all court walls in second story to be 12" thick, as proposed. The 12" portions of walls from the second floor up to top of roof beams does not exceed 50 feet in height, and the total height from curb level to top of roof beams is only 63' 6¾", and to highest point of roof 64' 8¾".

Appearance: Mr. Charles M. Straub.

APPROVED on the following CONDITIONS:

1st. That a self-closing fireproof door be provided in the cellar of the point marked "A."

2d. That those portions of the second floor above spaces marked "B" on the first floor plan be of fireproof construction.

3d. That all columns and girders supporting floors or walls be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Bureau of Buildings.

APPEAL 137 of 1915, New Building 2110 of 1915, 467-469 Prospect avenue, Brooklyn. Frederic W. Eisenla, appellant.

Contrary to Section 31 of Building Code. That 8" brick walls divide each apartment, arranged between the hall walls and the cross walls. Fore and aft supports to be covered with wire lath and 2" of cement mortar, equally as good and more desirable for construction. And being claimed that the Rules and Regulations of President of Borough or provisions of law or ordinance do not apply. That the 8" brick hall walls and the 8" brick cross walls be accepted as dividing apartments, with necessary fireproofing of the columns and girders with wire lath and 2" cement mortar. Distance between main bearing supports does not exceed 26' and therefore no fore and aft partition walls are necessary. To erect fore and aft brick wall in the arrangement of lay out of rooms would cause additional expense in cost of iron to carry upper fore and aft wall at front and loss of space to rooms both at front and rear. Walls forming structure comply with Section 31 of the Building Code in that the main bearing walls are not over 26' apart between supports and 8" brick cross fire walls are provided.

Appearance: Mr. Joseph P. Farrell.

APPROVED on the following CONDITIONS:

1st. That self-closing fireproof doors, or unpierced brick walls at least eight inches thick, be provided at the points marked "A" on the cellar plan.

2d. That a self-closing fireproof door be provided in the first story at the point marked "B."

3d. That all columns and girders supporting floors or walls be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Bureau of Buildings.

APPEAL 138 of 1915, New Building 2190 of 1915, 319-321 Stone avenue, Brooklyn. Benjamin Cohn, appellant.

1st. Comply with Section 31 of Code for brick partition walls fore and aft spans exceed 26' between bearing walls An equally good and more desirable form of construction can be employed. And it being claimed that the rules and regulations of the President of said borough, or the provisions of law, or ordinances do not apply. That the distance between the main bearing wall is not over 26' and therefore no fore and aft brick partition walls are necessary. Walls forming structure conforms with Section 31 of the Building Code, in that the main bearing walls are not over 26' apart, and 8" brick fire wall separating front part of building from the rear part of building is provided.

Appearances: Benjamin Cohn and M. Weinberg.

On motion, APPROVED on the following CONDITIONS:

1st. That an unpierced brick wall at least eight inches thick be built at the point marked "A" on the cellar plan, extending from the cellar floor to the underside of the first story floorboards.

2d. That self-closing fireproof doors be provided at the points marked "B" on the cellar plan.

3d. That all columns and girders supporting floors or walls be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Bureau of Buildings.

APPEAL 139 of 1915, Alteration 617 of 1915, 23d to 24th streets, 4th to Madison avenues, Manhattan. D. Everett Waid, appellant.

1st. Building increased in height to over 150'. All flooring, interior trim, window frames, etc., should conform to Section 105.

2d. Walls of 12th story unlawful. Should be of brick where supported on brick walls below. (Modification to be prepared when objection is answered.) The provisions of the building ordinances do not apply and an equally good and more desirable form of construction can be employed.

1st. Whether the building with the proposed pent house or 12th story can exceed 150 ft. in height above the curb, and whether fireproofed wood flooring and wainscot will be required in the gymnasium in the proposed pent house or 12th story.

2d. Whether steel columns in brick piers with steel frame and hollow tile spandrel walls may be used facing on interior courts as shown.

1st. The present main building is 11 stories high and is being divided into sections by means of fire walls and automatic fire doors as shown on sheet 45. The proposed pent house or portion of the 12th story is to be used for gymnasium and is of fireproof construction, including trim, except the wood running track supported on steel, and the maple flooring and oak wainscot of the gymnasium proper. The chief contents will be steel lockers and gymnasium apparatus. Reference is made regarding the existing building to a ruling of the Bureau of Buildings known as "Bulletin 42, 1910, modification Section 105 in re Alteration 2 Wall Street," and approval of wood flooring and wainscot in the new gymnasium is asked on the ground that equally good or more desirable construction is provided. So-called fireproofed wood for the floor surface of a gymnasium would be a detriment.

2d. The proposed gymnasium is of skeleton construction with columns in the court walls encased in brick piers. The spaces between the piers which might be filled with windows it is proposed to build up with 4 in. hollow tile block and steel I beam walls plastered on the inside and covered with copper on the outside. Few windows are needed and approval is asked of the construction proposed as being equally good and more desirable than that permitted by the Code.

Appearance: D. Everett Waid.

APPROVED ON CONDITION that the wainscoting is manufactured flush on the back, and that the structural steel is found by the Bureau of Buildings of adequate strength to carry the additional load to be imposed. And on the further CONDITION, that the running track be covered on the underside with asbestos board or sheet metal. Mr. Waid recorded as not voting.

APPEAL 140 of 1915, New Building 2138 of 1915, 379-381 Irving avenue, Brooklyn. S. Millman & Son, appellants.

Construction does not comply with Section 31 of the Building Code.

An equally good and more desirable form of construction can be employed.

To allow the floor beams to rest on cross girders with span not over 25 ft. 6 in. and to omit the construction of brick partition walls.

1st. Section 31 Code does not prevent the use of steel girders for the support of floor beams.

2d. An unpierced brick wall 8 in. thick provided midway of building from cellar to roof.

3d. S. C. F. P. D. provided in cellar at the same place.

4th. That all girders and columns supporting floor and roof beams will be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Bureau of Buildings.

Appearance: James J. Millman. APPROVED.

APPEAL 141 of 1915, New Building 2186 of 1915, 558 50th street, Brooklyn, S. Millman & Son, appellants. Wording same as in Appeal 140 of 1915. Appearance: James J. Millman. APPROVED.

APPEAL 142 of 1915, New Building 2163 of 1915, southwest corner Newkirk avenue and East 21st street, Brooklyn. W. T. McCarthy, appellant. Comply with Section 31 of Code. The proposed arrangement of brick partition walls, while not in compliance with the letter of the Code, fulfills all conditions contemplated in the Code as to fire protection and strength. Whether or not the arrangement of brick partition walls and fireproof doors enclosing floor areas of two thousand square feet or less is adequate for fire protection. Whether or not the thickness of walls as shown is adequate for strength. That unpierced brick walls and fireproof self-closing doors are provided dividing floors into areas of two thousand square feet or less. That no 8 in. brick wall used as a bearing wall takes bearing from beams more than 18 ft. 8 in. in length, while the Code permits an 8 in. party wall between two twenty-foot buildings or the carrying of beams on both sides of 19 ft. 4 in.

Appearance: W. T. McCarthy.

APPROVED on the following CONDITIONS:

1st. That self-closing fireproof doors be provided at the points marked "A" on the cellar plan.

2d. That all columns and girders supporting floors or walls be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Bureau of Buildings.

APPEAL 143 of 1915, Alteration 2023 of 1915, premises 1262 President street, Brooklyn. A. Koeppel, Inc., appellants.

Letter from appellant requesting that appeal be laid over. Request granted; appeal 143 LAID OVER.

APPEAL 144 of 1915, New Building 1612 of 1915, 234-236 Columbia street, Brooklyn, 79 ft. north of President street. Albert C. Kunzi, appellant.

1st. Contrary to Section 352D., Paragraph 3, Moving Picture Ordinance as to height and covering of exit passageway ceiling.

The exit passageway is not directly connected with auditorium. An open court 25 ft. in length is provided between auditorium and exit passageway in question. The proposition has been approved by the Fire Department as being reasonably safe. To allow the height of the passageway to remain at 8 ft. 0 in. clear, and to cover the ceiling of said passageway with metal on ½ in. plaster boards. To make the ceiling of passageway 10 ft. in height and put in a fireproof ceiling as per Section 306 of the Building Code would mean the removal of present tier of beams, partitions, etc., in the first story of premises 79 President street, thereby incurring not only an enormous expense, but also the loss of rent and revenue without any apparent benefit to anyone.

Appearances: Albert C. Kunzi and S. Pellegrino. APPROVED on the following CONDITIONS:

1st. That the railings, at the points marked "A" on the typical seating and exit plan, be rounded at the corners.

2d. That the brick wall be rounded or splayed in the exit passage, at the point marked "B" on the same plan.

APPEAL 145 of 1915, New Building 21 of 1915. Premises 1237-1239 Broadway and 502-504 6th av. J. Walter Katz and I. G. Feiner appellants. Appearances: S. Walter Katz, Geo. W. Harris and E. Chapman.

The appellants requested a postponement of the hearing. Laid over.

APPEAL 146 of 1915, New Building 2169 of 1915, premises 4320 5th avenue, Brooklyn. Thomas W. Lamb, appellant.

Appearance: Eugene De Rosa.

Following lengthy discussion, laid over; the appellant being requested to furnish additional drawings.

ELECTRIC SERVICE IN HOTELS

By A. B. ODAY*

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

UNDOUBTEDLY there are no commercially public buildings that present greater possibilities for original treatment, with regard to electric service, than those used for hotel purposes. This is particularly true when considering the lighting equipment, as there are a large number of factors which must necessarily be considered. The other electrical equipment, which is largely utilitarian, is standardized to some extent, and the variety from which to choose is considerably smaller.

There is such a variety of hotels, all of which present distinctive possibilities, that it is almost impossible to present data that would be applicable in all cases. We find the small and large hotels in large and small cities and it is obvious that the electrical equipment should be quite different. In some, the equipment resolves itself into bare necessities, while in others elaborate surroundings and conveniences must be provided so as to appeal to a particular class of trade.

All equipment which is primarily for the comfort of patrons, whether for appearance or practical use, is sure to be an advertising feature and the many applications of electric service are always remembered by hotel patrons. If a building is poorly lighted and, consequently dingy and unattractive, it is obvious that customers are not attracted to the extent that they would be if such a place were bright and cheerful.

In order to give a general summation of the applications of electricity for the various portions of a hotel, each class of rooms will be treated individually, setting forth a few of the most important requirements.

Lobby.

This is the main room of the building and consequently, should be made as attractive and comfortable as possible. Electric service for the lobby resolves itself largely into the question of lighting, as the other power requirements are comparatively few. A number of electric fans and an electric cigar lighter are the services that are most generally found.

The lighting system should be given careful attention for it is here that first and last impressions are made. As a great amount of reading is done, it is necessary that there be a comparatively high intensity of softly diffused light. The whole room should be evenly illuminated so that it is not necessary to be in a particular section to read in comfort. Either semi-indirect or totally indirect illumination is to be preferred, as they not only give the room a pleasing appearance, but they also diffuse and distribute the light in a proper manner. With the large number of designs from which to choose, it is possible to get a fixture which is distinctive as well as architecturally harmonious. Wall bracket fixtures equipped with either candelabra lamps, imitation candlesticks or regular low wattage lamps and decorative glassware of the same design as the main fixtures, when placed at regular intervals about the room, add greatly to the attractiveness of the lighting system.

Dining-Room.

It is rather difficult to say just what form of lighting is most desirable for the dining-room, as there are a great variety of equipments, many of which, although quite different in design, seem to meet the requirements equally well. Some owners prefer high intensity lighting for the dining room, while others endeavor to obtain a more subdued effect. A very pleasing lighting scheme is one in which a medium intensity is obtained by a well designed indirect system, this being supplemented by individual table lamps, equipped with low wattage Mazda lamps and decorative silk or glass diffusing shades. When the wiring is being installed wall receptacles should be provided at frequent intervals about the room for the attachment of electric fans during the summer season.

The type of lighting usually found in the rathskellar is quite similar to that described for a dining room, except that a low intensity is prevalent, which is generally supplied by indirect fixtures or recessed ceiling diffusers, supplemented by table lamps. Coziness and attractiveness being the chief requirements, it is obvious that a large amount of illumination is not desired. Glaring light sources, such as clear unshielded lamps, should always be avoided as such a condition tends to defeat the purpose of such a room. Here again should be provision for the attachment of electric fans. Outlets must also be provided either in the floor or baseboard to supply service to the table lamps.

Ladies' Parlor.

Efficiency of light utilization should never be considered when designing the lighting equipment for the ladies' parlor, as artistic appearance is the predominating factor. Daintily designed glassware, etched and tinted to harmonize with the wall decorations and room furnishings, or carefully selected silk shades, are appropriate. One centrally located ceiling fixture, of the semi-indirect type, will usually suffice for the main lighting unit. This should be supplemented by bracket lights and an attractive table lamp. A high degree of diffusion is desirable for all lighting units in a room of this nature, consequently dense glass or heavy silk shades should be employed. Each writing table should be equipped with a portable lighting unit.

Bedroom.

Before the wiring installation is made for a bedroom, information should be obtained as to the probable location of furniture, as this will determine the location of the majority of lighting fixtures. One centrally located ceiling fixture of appropriate design should be provided with a Mazda lamp of such a size as to supply a medium intensity of general illumination. A wall bracket, equipped with an upright opalescent reflector and small lamp, should be located on each side of the dresser mirror. The writing table should be equipped with a portable lamp, as should also the table at the head of the bed. A wall outlet and electric fan should be provided at some convenient location. It is also desirable to provide one or two additional wall or baseboard receptacles to permit the use of such electrical appliances as occasion might demand.

In the bath rooms of most up-to-date hotels should be found a wall receptacle for use in heating the curling iron. This is a service which will be appreciated by many of the women guests. If the bathroom is quite small, two upright burning lamps and opalescent reflectors on wall brackets, one placed on each side of the mirror, will usually suffice. These lighting units will be in the correct position for shaving etc., and will supply sufficient general illumination throughout the room. If the bath room is quite large a ceiling fixture should be installed in addition to the bracket lights.

Cafe and Bar.

A high intensity of illumination is not necessary for the hotel cafe, as quietude and repose should be the predominating feature. Any system of lighting that is artistically harmonious and gives good diffusion is applicable.

The bar and immediately adjoining space should be well lighted. The direction of light should be such that there will be no sharp shadows. Low wattage lamps should be installed at intervals beneath the bar to facilitate the mixing of drinks and washing of glasses. The wine cabinet, which is usually located behind the bar, is similar to a store showcase and should be lighted in a similar manner. Concealed tubular lamps and reflectors, if properly installed, are applicable for this service. Electric fans afford added comfort on warm days and provision should be made for the installation of a number of these in various portions of the room.

LIGHTING SYSTEM IN A HOTEL LOBBY.

Kitchen.

A hotel kitchen undoubtedly presents a larger field for electrical service than any other portion of the building. The whole service can be made electrical and in instances where this is done very good satisfaction has been experienced. There is the complete electric range where all cooking may be done, or it is possible to utilize any of the many electrical cooking devices. Food choppers, buffers, grinders, dish washers, potato peelers, etc., all find application in an efficiently operated kitchen. An exhaust fan and ozonator are useful in removing objectionable odors.

The lighting equipment for a kitchen should be well designed to assist in the rapid and careful preparation of food. One or more ceiling fixtures should be installed, equipped with prismatic glass reflectors and lamps of sufficient size to supply a fairly high intensity of illumination. Bracket lamps should be located over the range, sink, etc., so as to eliminate shadows when a person is working at these points.

Laundry.

Extractors, washers, starchers, ironers, etc., all present possibilities for motor drive and should be given due consideration when installing the electric wiring. The electric flat iron should be installed for use on all hand work. An exhaust fan will also be useful in carrying off the steam and keeping the air in circulation.

The lighting units most applicable for the laundry consist of lamps and porcelain enameled steel reflectors. These lighting units should be spaced with reference to the location of the various machines and tables, and so suspended as not to interfere with any of the operations.

Exit lights usually consist of low wattage, colored lamps or clear lamps within colored enclosing globes.

Each elevator should have a fixture in the roof of the cage, as well as signal lamps by the operators. On each floor are lamps over the doors which serve the double purpose of signaling and illuminating the entrance. Many elevators are also equipped with threshold lights which serve to eliminate accidents due to tripping or missteps. A large portion of the electrical equipment for a modern hotel consists of the motor installations and to give an idea of the various applications, the following table as published in the Electrical World is given:

This data shows the equipment of an actual installation in a modern hotel structure in the South. The total connected load aggregates nearly 185 kw., the annual energy consumption for lighting being 118,500 kw. hr. and that for motor service 183,000 kw. hr.

The public of to-day demand that a hotel be modern in every respect and to be this, modern conveniences must be provided wherever possible. Of all the agents which go to make up a commodious hotel, electricity undoubtedly holds one of the most important places, hence, due to the numerous and varied applications it is of utmost importance that the wiring for electric service in hotels be given the consideration which it justly deserves, so that ample provision is made to meet all requirements.

National Association Formed.

A meeting of the organizers and directors of the National Association of Realty Brokers, Inc., was held on a recent evening at the McAlpin Hotel. The following officers were elected: William H. Brown, president; William E. Morrell, first vice-president; David V. Proskey, second vice-president; Walter Scott, third vice-president; Oliver B. Ferris, secretary and treasurer, and Irvin G. Herman, general counsel.

It is the purpose of the association to limit its membership to real estate brokers, one per county, and to cover the United States and Canada. The efforts of the association will be to create business in real estate lines between counties and States, thus enabling its members to obtain business and profits, which brokers have not been able to obtain heretofore. The association contemplates issuing a national catalogue of the real estate listings of its members as soon as the membership reaches 500 or more, and plans were also laid for the issuing of a monthly publication among the members. Plans were formulated for holding a convention in New York City in the near future at which it is expected brokers will attend from all parts of the country.

Among the advantages members of the association will enjoy may be mentioned the use of a New York office maintained for the benefit of out-of-town members. A member in New York City, who has a client contemplating purchase or exchange of property in San Francisco, may obtain a trustworthy appraisal of the California piece by the member there for the nominal sum of ten dollars. The association also proposes to conduct a national campaign of advertising in order to attract prospective purchasers of farm properties, industrial land sites, etc., and also to familiarize the trading public with the services performed by the association and the reliability of its members.

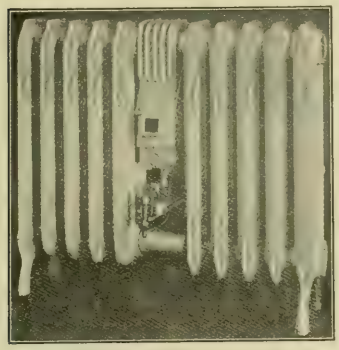
One important function of the association will be a department designed to establish better facilities for the handling of mortgage investments, so that capital may be made available for investment in farm loans through the states where high rates of interest are obtainable with a reasonable degree of security. The association will also enable its members to foster public improvements which will add to realty values, and also to oppose and prevent by organized effort, the enactment or enforcement of unjust or obnoxious legislation, as well as to encourage the enactment of laws in the various states beneficial to realty interests.

New Specifications for Brick Highways.

The National Paving Brick Manufacturers Association has issued specifications and directions for laying brick street and highway pavements, which have been revised from previous editions under the direction of the board of directors of the association; there having been added to the street paving specifications a set applicable especially to country highways. The specifications and instructions are made still more clear by the photographs and diagrams which accompany them. No explanations of the reasons for the various details of construction recommended nor advocacy of brick pavements is contained in this pamphlet, but an announcement is made that a handbook is being prepared to supplement the specifications, which will contain matter of this kind. These specifications will be sent on application, without cost, to officials, engineers and contractors.

The specifications for street pavements include grading, drainage, curbing, concrete foundation, cushion, expansion joints, the brick itself, brick laying, rolling and applying filler. Alternate specifications are given for stone and concrete curbing; an edging to the concrete in place of curbing; crushed stone foundation, old gravel or macadam foundation, or No. 2 paving brick foundation in place of concrete, or brick laid on natural earth without any artificial foundation. Also for sand filler in place of cement. No provision or mention is made of a bituminous filler of any kind.

Specifications for highway construction include the same items, except curbing, concrete edging being substituted therefor.



No effort is made to specify dimensions, such as thickness of concrete foundation or the proportion of the ingredients entering into it, dimensions of curbing, etc.

New Gas Heating System.

SOMETHING entirely new in heating systems is being brought out by a large company of long standing in another department of building equipment. It is in the form of a gas heating system. Of comparatively recent invention, it has aroused much interest. Since obtaining the manufacturing and contracting rights for the system, engineers have given the whole apparatus careful study and have made many rigid tests.

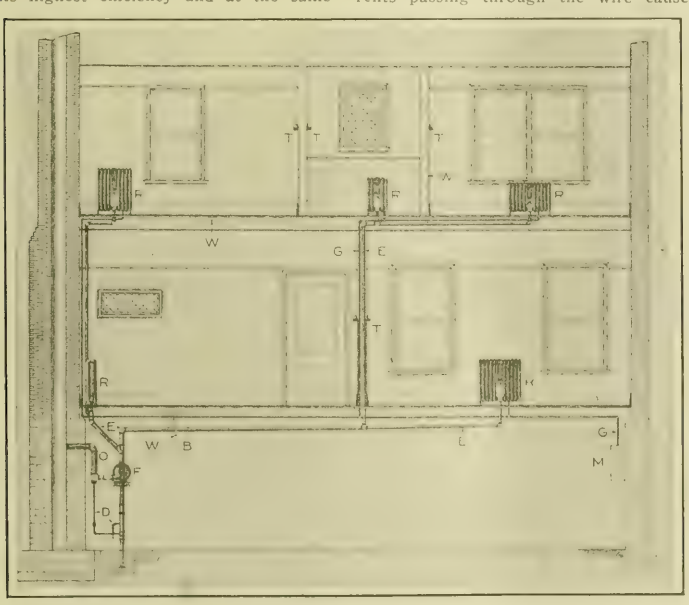
This heating system is peculiarly adapted to residences, apartment houses, churches, halls, office buildings, and, in some instances, may advantageously be used in industrial establishments.

Gas is burned in a partial vacuum. The advantage of this is threefold: It secures better combustion of gas; it removes the waste products of combustion; and it introduces fresh air into the room.



Thus at one stroke gas is brought to its highest efficiency and at the same time two of the most vital objections to gas for heating purposes are removed.

As many radiators as may be needed are used and the same are tied together into a complete unit, as far as the exhaust of the products of combustion are concerned. But each radiator is an independent and self-contained unit as far as heating is concerned, gas being burned in each radiator according to the individual needs of the room.

The one big objection to gas heating, viz., the removal of the waste products of combustion, is removed. This is accomplished by means of the exhaust pipe (E) shown in drawing. The operation of this exhaust also provides ventilation for the room.

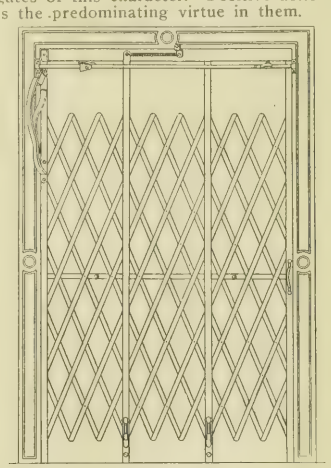
The system is under thermostatic control, thermostats being located in each room, if desired. This makes it possible to heat any desired number of rooms, without rendering it necessary to warm up the whole house, as with other forms of heating. In other words, the desired temperature may be obtained just when and where it is wanted because the gas supply is automatically controlled by the thermostat and is shut off when the temperature reaches the required degree or turned on when the room becomes colder than the degree fixed on the thermostat.

A little pilot light in the combustion chamber remains lighted all the time and is in sight through a small mica door in the combustion chamber. If by any chance the fan used to draw off the products of combustion should stop, there is no danger of gas filling the room, for the stopping of the fan automatically shuts off the gas.

Thermaphone Versus Telephone.

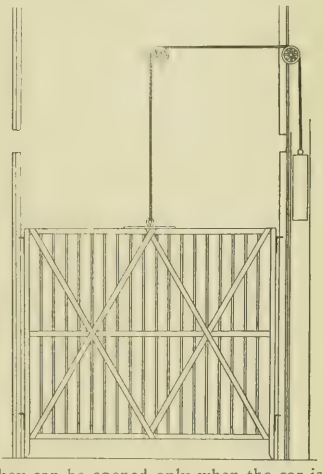
A DUTCH inventor, P. de Lange, residing in the Amsterdam consular district, has invented a simple little instrument that seems to be a decided improvement over the present-day telephone. The receiver and transmitter are so small they may easily be carried in the vest pocket, taking up no more space than the ordinary watch. The cost of manufacture is estimated at thirty cents, in American currency.

Notwithstanding its diminutive size, the "thermaphone," for so the inventor has named it, appears to transmit messages with perfect clearness and distinctness, the vocalization being especially good. There is no confusion of vowel sounds, letters or figures. In the "thermaphone," the magnet and diaphragm of the telephone are eliminated, there being substituted a loop of exceedingly fine platinum wire, within a small aluminum cover, pierced with minute holes. Currents passing through the wire cause changes in temperature, alternating from heat to cold with great rapidity, the consequent expansions and contractions of the surrounding air becoming evident as sound.



The receiver is so small (being not more than an inch in length and about the thickness of a lead pencil) that it may be placed in the ear, connection being maintained by a thin wire. Either a single or double receiver may be used, and the hands are left free to make notes of any messages transmitted.

At a demonstration of the invention recently at the University of Utrecht, where, by permission of the Netherlands authorities, the wireless telegraph was brought into requisition in connection with the thermaphone with success. Subsequently, at the inventor's laboratory, he had the opportunity of transmitting and receiving messages to and from a distant room in the building over the ordinary wires, all the tests proving satisfactory.



Among the advantages claimed for the thermaphone are compactness, reliability, simplicity and cheapness of construction, and clearness of enunciation. It is claimed, also, that because of the peculiar character of the receiver, and the fact that it can be placed close to the drum of the ear, the thermaphone may be of advantage in ameliorating certain forms of deafness.

Steel Automatic Gates.

THERE are being placed upon the market two new types of open shaft elevator gates, designed to render conditions safer in factories and warerooms. They are both manufactured by A. Bataille & Company, 587 Hudson street, and have features not usually found in gates of this character. Positive action is the predominating virtue in them.

As will be seen by the accompanying illustrations they are strongly built and are made to stand the wear and tear usually given to factory equipment by careful hand work. In addition to this there is a patented device on them that makes them self closing and locking and they can be opened only when the car is at the landing. The first illustration shows the patent self locking and closing gate and the other the semi-automatic hoisting gates.

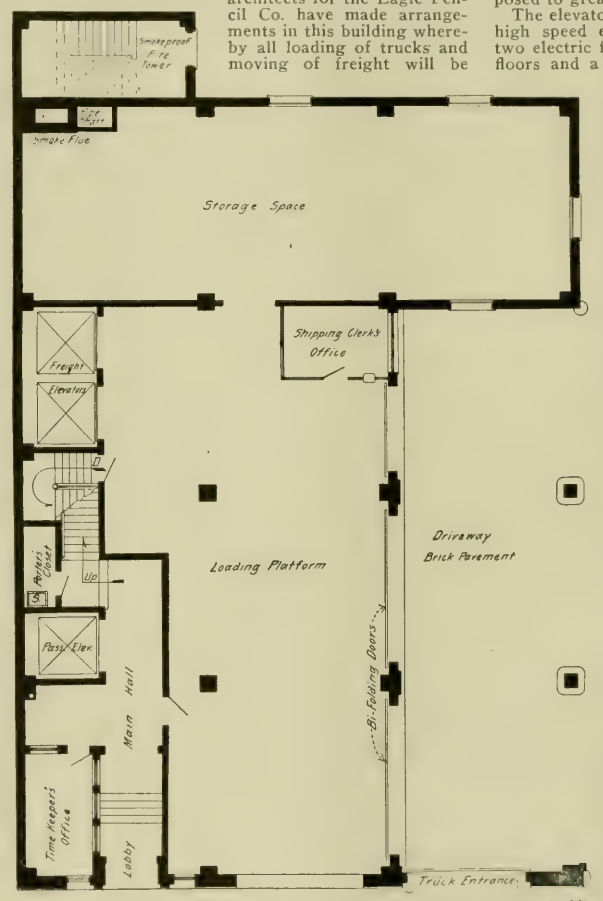
CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

New Building for the Eagle Pencil Company, in East Thirteenth Street, to Contain Many Innovations

AT 703-707 East 13th street, between Avenues C and D, the Eagle Pencil Co. is making preparations for the erection of a modern office, warehouse and shipping building. A prominent feature of the plan of this structure is the provision for the loading of trucks within the lines of the building, thus obviating street obstruction and consequent danger to pedestrians. Another interesting feature is included in the arrangement for the welfare of employees. The new building will be in close proximity to the company's factory buildings and, when completed, will house the executive and general offices which are now located at 377 Broadway.

Buchman & Fox, architects, 30 East 42d street, have prepared the plans and specifications from which this building will be erected, and they have taken estimates for its construction under a general contract. Chauncey Matlock, consulting engineer, 30 East 42d street, has designed the steam heating and ventilating systems.

This building will be ten stories in height and will occupy a plot 64x90 feet. The cost is placed at approximately $150,000. As this building will stand entirely independent of its neighbors, all four sides will be constructed of face brick. The front has been designed in a simple, even severe, manner with little ornamentation, except for the pattern of the brickwork. The front is to be of stone to the height of the third floor and of brick above.



One of the chief requirements of the owner was that this structure be made absolutely fireproof, and in addition it will be equipped with the most modern appliances for fire protection and fire fighting. This precaution is made necessary by the terms of the factory law and the owner's desire to protect the employees from fire hazard.

The fire-protection equipment will consist of a sprinkler system of 100 per cent. efficiency, a stand pipe, with hose connections on all floors, and a fire-alarm system of the highest type. In addition to this mechanical equipment, a smokeproof fire tower will be provided as a safe means of egress for employees should a fire occur.

Window frames, sash, doors and trim throughout the building will be of metal, and all glazing will be with wired glass. Office partitions will be of fireproof materials, and where glass is necessary this will be set in steel frames and sash. As a further precaution against the fire hazard all office furniture will be of metal or some other fireproof material.

Realizing the necessity of perfect natural light and ventilation for the best interests of the employees, much of the wall space in this structure will be devoted to windows. In the warehouse floors patented steel ventilating sash will be used.

Some time ago, Borough President Marks sent a letter to the architects of the city in which he requested their cooperation in his efforts to keep the sidewalks clear of obstructions caused by the shipping and handling of merchandise. With this request in mind, the architects for the Eagle Pencil Co. have made arrangements in this building whereby all loading of trucks and moving of freight will be accomplished within the confines of the building. With the exception of the main entrance hall and an enclosed storage space, the entire first floor will be utilized as a loading platform and driveway, with generous space for the movement of trucks. This loading platform is open on two sides, protected at night by bi-folding doors. This plan means that all loading is taken off the street, which is left free and unencumbered for pedestrian traffic.

Buchman & Fox, Arch'ts.

FLOOR PLAN FOR EAGLE PENCIL CO'S BUILDING.

Along the easterly side of this building a space 10 feet in width has been reserved, which will be utilized as a driveway for trucks. This is in addition to the space given up for that purpose within the actual bounds of the building.

The second, third and fourth floors are to be used for the assembling and packing of stock, and the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth floors are to be used solely as stock rooms. On the ninth floor the executive and general offices will be located and the tenth floor will include a large show room, educational room, restaurant, kitchen, rest room and lavatories. The educational room, rest room and dining room come under the firm's department of welfare work. This has been an important feature of the company's plan, and with better arrangements it is proposed to greatly increase its scope.

The elevator equipment consists of one high speed electric passenger elevator, two electric freight elevators serving all floors and a short run freight elevator from the fifth to the factory bridge floor or third floor. This bridge will be erected to provide access to the factories and will also serve as an emergency horizontal fire exit.

The new building, on account of its unusual height for that section and also because of its new details of construction, will rise in marked contrast to its rather old-fashioned and commonplace neighbors. West of Avenue C is the congested tenement district, forming part of the great lower East Side, with which we are all familiar. These buildings house a mixed foreign population.

East of the avenue and extending to Avenue D is the factory community, in which the Eagle Pencil Company's works hold a conspicuous position. The plant occupies a large frontage in East 14th street, taking in Nos. 702-732, through to 703-731, East 13th street; part of this plot is to be the site of the contemplated structure. Adjoining it on the west is the factory of the Defender Manufacturing Company, makers of sheets, pillow cases and other kinds of dry goods merchandise. Its other neighbor on the east is the Eagle Smelting and Refining Works, while the rest of the 13th street frontage is taken up by the sawmill of J. & F. Eifert.

These buildings are built of the same kind of red brick, which seems distinctive of every factory building, and years of contact with grime and smoke have given them the dull and dusty color which one invariably encounters in a survey of any factory neighborhood.

On the opposite side of the street is the large plot occupied by the various structures of the New York Mutual Gaslight Company, extending southward to East 11th street. The huge gas holder, towering 230 feet in the air, almost overshadows a row of tenement houses in East 13th street, near Avenue C, the only ones which have penetrated east of that thoroughfare.

In 14th street another large public utilities corporation, the Consolidated Gas Company, has its plant, occupying the north side of the street, from Avenue D to Avenue C, and a good part of the block from Avenue C to Avenue B.

THE JOINT COMMITTEE.

The Work of the Committee on City Departments of New York Chapter.

This committee consists of nine members of New York Chapter, A. I. A.; and is a part of the "Joint Committee on City Departments," composed of representatives of the Building Trades Employers' Association, the American Institute of Consulting Engineers, Brooklyn Chapter, A. I. A.; the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, the National Board of Fire Underwriters, the New York Society of Architects, and New York Chapter, A. I. A. The Chapter representation is by far the largest on the committee.

This committee, during the past year, was, as usual, active in many matters, according to a report printed in the journal of the institute. Sub-committees studied the question of a Board of Appeals for the Tenement House Department, and the question of efficiency and economy in the enforcement of laws and regulations of public departments, with particular reference to inspections and approval of plans and specifications. The standardization of the rules and regulations of various departments, and the recommending of necessary legislation in the interest of efficiency and economy were other subjects of study.

The committee also considered the question of the control of the heights of buildings and the districting or zoning of New York City, and favored the appointment of a commission on building districts and restrictions. The committee also recommended that all powers affecting the control of building construction be centered in one department. In addition to its other activities, the committee is responsible for the suggestion that the editing of the proposed Building Code be placed in the hands of Mr. Rudolph Miller, with the result that this code is now being prepared by Mr. Miller. The new code is now being presented section by section to the Board of Aldermen for passage.

Mediæval Stained Glass.

Commenting on the destruction of considerable of the mediæval stained glass in French cathedral cities that have been bombarded during the progress of the war, a writer in the Boston Transcript describes the essentials that make this glass so valuable and give it that artistic quality that is its chief claim. He writes:

The beauty and charm of mediæval glass lies to a great extent in the character of the material itself, and especially in the inequality of it. Chemically impure and mechanically imperfect, it was seldom crude in tint or texture. It shaded off from light to dark, according to its thickness; it was speckled with air bubbles; it was streaked and clouded, and all these imperfections of manufacture went to perfection of color. And age has improved it. The lack of uniformity in the material has led to disintegration of its surface. Soft particles in it have been dissolved by the action of the gases in the atmosphere, and the surface, pitted like an oyster-shell, refracts the light in a way which adds greatly to the effect. So that an appreciable part of the beauty of old glass is the fortuitious result of its age. This is one reason why no modern glass can be compared with it. It does not require a very expert eye to distinguish at a glance between the modern glass in a cathedral and the ancient, and the superiority of the older work stands out in almost every case with unmistakable emphasis.

To what extent it is possible to reconstruct or restore broken stained glass windows evidently depends upon a number of circumstances. In several of the English cathedrals there are windows which have been reconstructed after a fashion, without regard to the original patterns; this is true of the so-called Golden Window in the east end of the Lady Chapel of Wells, which is gloriously fine in color, but is simply a kaleidoscopic patchwork of bits of the fourteenth century glass put together without any definite design. It is therefore under certain conditions possible to preserve, in a quite remarkable manner, the color effect of the ancient glass, even when it has suffered apparently irremediable damage.

We may therefore indulge the hope that when at the close of the present war, a careful survey has been made of the mediæval glass of the Cathedral of Rheims, its restoration may be attempted with a certain measure of success. Unfortunately, the skill of the modern craftsman cannot successfully imitate the rare quality of the glass destroyed, a quality that only comes with age.

Classified List of Heating Pamphlets.

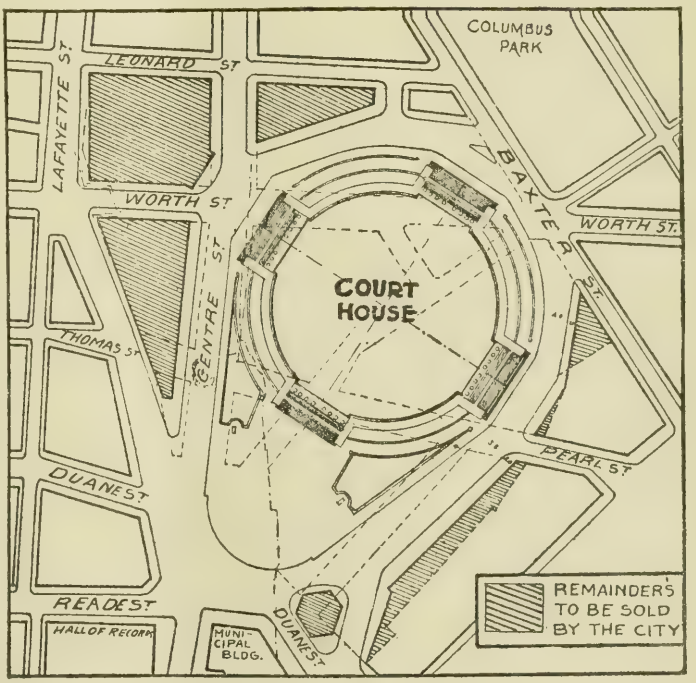
A list of pamphlets on heating subjects, carefully classified, comprising papers and reports which have been presented from time to time before the heating engineers' society, has been compiled by the society and published, together with the prices at which they may be obtained. The classification includes: Boilers for heating, central station heating, cooling surfaces, etc.; depreciation of heating plants, effect of wind on heating fans, forced blast circulation, etc.; furnace heating (hot air); foreign practice in heating and ventilating, gas heaters, heating guarantees, heating and ventilating buildings, proportioning steam and water pipes, radiators, transmission, etc.; steam heating, time element in heating; testing heating apparatus, uniform contracts, vapor heating, etc.; ventilation, etc.; water heating, and temperature regulation. Copies of the circular may be had by addressing the secretary, J. J. Blackmore, 29 West 39th street, New York.

J. S. Hoyt to Build Residence.

John Sherman Hoyt, former president of the Standard Plunger Elevator Co., will shortly erect a fine residence at the northwest corner of Park avenue and 79th street. The site of the proposed new dwelling fronts 41 feet on 79th street and 82.2 feet on Park avenue, and will probably be improved from plans by Howells & Stokes, architects, 100 William street.

NEW MAP OF COURT HOUSE SITE

THE City Plan Committee and the Corporate Stock Committee of the Board of Estimate have had referred to them a tentative map of the amended Court House site. The map was submitted by the Court House Board, but is still subject to the approval of the Justices of the Supreme Court and the Municipal Art Society.



The Court House Board has requested the city to take title on May 6 to that portion of the site which is now the subject of condemnation proceedings. Guy Lowell, the architect, is to have the revised plan of the building ready by May 1. He has a large force of draftsmen at work.

The site is composed of three parts: The first part was selected by the Board of Estimate on January 18, 1912, and the property not owned by the City of New York embraced therein was finally acquired in August, 1913. The second part consists of property not owned by the City of New York which was selected as the addition to the Court House site on July 2, 1914. This property is now being acquired in condemnation proceedings which are well under way. The third part consists of the streets intersecting the site, a small park place and a small playground. These lands have as yet not been selected by the Board of Estimate as a part of the court house site.

The Court House Board has submitted the drafts of four resolutions for approval: (1) To vest title in the Court House site on May 6 (proceeding No. 2); (2) a resolution selecting park and street areas as an addition to the court house site; (3) a resolution approving the layout of the court house site generally; (4) a resolution relative to the construction of temporary roadways within the site.

If the Board of Estimate determines at once upon the vesting of title in the land now being acquired and selects as a part of the court house site the lands not heretofore selected included in the general area, the city may be in a position to complete its title in these lands prior to July 1, at which time the streets within the building plot may be closed and building operations begun. Any delay, however, at this time will delay correspondingly the commencement of the building operations.

It will be necessary to negotiate an agreement between the city and the railroad companies for the re-location of the tracks upon some other street or streets.

H. W. Johns-Manville Company.

On May 1, the Mitchell Vance Company will become a part of the H. W. Johns-Manville Company lighting service. Under this arrangement the Mitchell Vance Company will devote its entire effort to the development, design and manufacture of lighting equipment, while the marketing of this product will be solely in the hands of the Johns-Manville Company. The real significance of this arrangement reaches further in the combined efforts of these two companies for it establishes, under one guidance, three divisions of lighting effort:

First, for specialized and localized illumination the Frink & J-M linolite systems of lighting; second, in esthetic and commercial lighting the Mitchell Vance product, for the last half century prominent in many representative buildings throughout the United States; and, third, the professional co-operation and installation service of the Johns-Manville Company, through its lighting specialists and construction department, throughout the United States and Canada.

The Johns-Manville Company has forty-four offices throughout the United States and four in Canada.

Film Concerns to Build.

A sixteen-story building for moving picture film concerns will soon be started at the southeast corner of Seventh avenue and 49th street, on a plot 100x100 feet. The project is to be erected by the 727 Seventh Avenue Realty Company, a subsidiary of the George Backer Construction Company. The proposed building is estimated to cost $750,000. It will have special film vaults, and the entire structure will be of steel and reinforced concrete, absolutely fireproof. There will be no transoms and no glass doors. A unique feature will be a theatre for use of the tenants for the private showing of new productions. It is planned to have the building ready for occupancy in March, 1916.

Contractor for Plainfield Post Office.

A general contract was recently awarded to Charles Gilpin, Harrison Building, Philadelphia, for the construction of a post office building at Plainfield, N. J. The plans for the new structure were prepared by the architects of the U. S. Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., and call for a building one story in height, with basement, on a plot 46 x 95 feet. The building will be fireproof, built of brick faced with limestone. The estimated cost to complete this project is $120,000.

Brooklyn Theatre Project.

Daniel G. Malcolm and John P. Benson, architects, 331 Madison avenue, Manhattan, are preparing the plans for a photo-drama theatre, to be erected in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn, and which will be one of the largest and best equipped of its kind in the borough. The new theatre will be located at the corner of Flatbush avenue and Cortelyou road. The theatre will be owned and erected by Picker & Bennett, proprietors of the Eighth Avenue Theatre, in Manhattan. It will be built of brick and limestone with trimmings of terra cotta. Including the balcony the structure will have a seating capacity of 2,800. The roof is being designed to be used as a roof garden, which will have a capacity of 1,500. The cost is estimated at about $225,000.

Tammany to Build Uptown.

At a meeting of the Tammany Society, held this week, the project of moving from its historic clubhouse, in East 14th street, to large and more modern quarters uptown, was again discussed. While no definite plans were decided upon it is understood that the society has in mind the erection of a modern building for its own occupancy. Preliminary sketches were presented at this meeting for a building in the colonial style of architecture, which would be well suited to the needs of the organization. Action was deferred, however, till a later date.

When Every Moment Counts —Use Edison Service

The presses, linotype machines and all other mechanical equipment in the World Building are operated on Edison Current. Dependability of service means everything in this newspaper plant. In a few hours an entire edition of hundreds of thousands of copies must be composed, printed and sent into the streets. Every moment counts. Mechanical trouble may mean utter confusion

For seven years Edison Service has stood the test here. What it is doing in the newspaper world, it is accomplishing in every other manufacturing field. Costs are cut, time saved and trouble avoided when Central Station Supply is used

Let us send an engineer to look over your light and power requirements and give you an estimate

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

BIG BRONX AND SUBURBAN BUILDING MOVEMENT SAPS MILL SUPPLIES OF CEMENT—STEEL MUCH STRONGER

Nineteen Bidders on Eastern Parkway Work—Prices Range Over Million

IF there is any doubt still remaining in the minds of prospective builders regarding the condition of the material supply market the latest advices from the Lehigh Valley cement market indicate that the day of low prices is fast closing. April 1 there were only 700,000 more barrels of cement in stock in Zones No. 1 and 2 than there was on Oct. 1, 1914, a period when the stock is normally low. In normal times this supply would barely be sufficient to take care of ten days' excess market requirements.

Consequently the Knickerbocker Company threw in four additional kilns this week and the Alpha Company started additional capacity, making a total number of kilns now in operation in the two zones approximately 160.

A tour of the leading supply yards in Newark, Jersey City, Elizabeth and leading distributing points in Union and Middlesex counties in New Jersey, and Staten Island early this week showed a healthy movement of materials to jobs. Municipal work and especially state road development wherein the use of brick and cement is being largely used is partially responsible for the heavy movement of cement and the taxing of cement mill capacity as far as the suburbs are concerned. Actual building work of commercial or residential structures has not yet developed in appreciable quantity.

In the river section of Long Island City tremendous acreage is either in process of commercial construction or is being prepared for it. In many sections of the Bronx there is scarcely a stretch of three blocks not broken by piles of material moving into jobs. The condition of that borough at present, irrespective of subway and municipal construction, both vast in themselves, looks like the prosperous building seasons of 1906 and 1909. An estimate was made indicating that approximately 12,500,000 common brick are moving into that borough weekly and something more than a million barrels of Portland cement. So great is the demand for material that at least one company has been forced to employ quick delivery methods for conveying stand to jobs. A procession of 5-ton automobile trucks loading at five-minute intervals, is necessary to keep abreast of the requirements of the Kingsbridge neighborhood alone, and yet that is not the busiest portion of the Bronx.

Contractors are still hungry for business. When the bids for the Eastern Parkway work were opened this week there were nineteen bidders putting in figures ranging from $2,734,000 to $3,849,000. This indicates the competition now existing for work requiring building materials and indirectly shows that even contractors are awakening to the fact that prices of materials cannot long remain at present levels.

Common brick in New York, the Newark distributing zone, and throughout Union and Middlesex counties are cheap, but stiffening. Lime and plaster are steady on present levels, but the increasing demand is making discounts tight. Steel reinforcement and structural material is much more active and the new 1.36c price base is rigidly held. More money is moving into suburban real estate development which bespeaks continuation of the present building movement late in the autumn.

Roofing slate is stiffening and there are reasons for believing that present prices on Bangor and some Pennsylvania grades will be changed before long. Hardwoods are extremely active, but mahogany is now coming in again from South America. Flooring and wall panelling woods are still easy, but are stiffening at mill centers.

Heavy requirements of steel and iron on war orders is having an effect upon staple hardware and building hardware. There has been another slight advance in sheet brass and in copper. Spelter is active, which may affect galvanized ware, forcing prices still higher. Dealers are buying in heavy quantities in anticipation of a shortage and discerning consumers are laying in their stocks accordingly.

Plan filings in the five boroughs for the current week follow: In the same week last year there were 264 new building plans filed with an estimated value of $1,866,660.

	Week ending Apr. 16		Apr. 23
Manhattan...	18	$1,636,840	13	$1,026,400

CEMENT.

Record and Guide's Prophecy of Sixty Days Ago Coming True.

TWO months ago the Record and Guide prophesied that by the first of August there would be practically a shortage of cement supply. Developments in the mills of Zones Nos. 1 and 2 since that time have shown the accuracy of the information then presented to the consuming public of the Eastern market. At the present time there are not more than 700,000 barrels of Portland cement, outside of sealed bins held for special contract orders, above the reserve stock of October first of last year, the low-water mark in cement stock reserves.

When it is considered that this is not more than a normal ten days' supply over average requirements, it is apparent that with close to 160 kilns now in operating, including those just thrown in by the Knickerbocker and the Alpha, the present heavy shipments which in April probably will be equal to output in some plants, at least, an actual shortage of this commodity is at hand.

At the same time there is no reason to expect any immediate change in the price situation, disturbing rumors in the market to the contrary notwithstanding. Conditions are such at present that whatever change in price does take place it will result from anticipation of a shortage of supply at the mills. The Record and Guide is advised that only an actual shortage can force prices up uniformly. At present there is a comparatively meagre supply for building and subway construction alone. When the railroads, municipalities and highway commissioners release work now being figured, and the big terminal projects now being prepared for actual work begin to call for cement, it will be interesting to note the effect it will have upon mill supply and mill prices.

TO CREATE TILE ARTISANS.

Board of Education Opens Trade Apprentice School.

REALIZING the necessity of taking prompt action in the matter of correcting the apprenticeship conditions in New York City, the Tile, Grate & Mantel Association, under date of April 1, issued to members the following letter:

"The undersigned, being a Trade School Committee appointed by the Association, have visited the Boys' Vocational School, 138th street and Fifth avenue, New York City, where there is a class in tile setting under the tutelage of Mr. E. E. Alexander.

"We consider that this is a very good step towards improving the conditions of the trade and in getting tile setters, and is the next best thing to apprentices, which we cannot get through our Union. This Class should be supported by every member of this Association.

"We would, therefore, suggest that every member have a shop boy about 17 years old who should be employed with the understanding that he shall regularly attend this school, and by the time the boy is 19 years of age, he can then be put into the Helpers' Union, as it is our privilege to put in 12 helpers each year.

"After the boy has been a helper three years, he can be put on as an improver, and through taking this course at the school, will know something about the practical end of the business and will prove a valuable man to you

"The course is free, as it is run by the Board of Education of New York City, and each student must be a resident of the city to entitle him to take the course.

"Kindly advise the Chairman what you intend to do to help this course along, as something must be done at once to induce the Principal of the School to continue this class.

"Yours very truly,
"HERMAN PETRI,
"CHARLES ALEXANDER,
"F. H. NOBBE,
"Committee on Trade School."

BRICK.

Twelve Million a Week Going Into The Bronx—Front Active.

MOVEMENTS of common brick in the wholesale market reflect the activity of building construction in the Bronx. About two-thirds of that moving out from West 52d street is for use above the Harlem River. According to this estimate there must be no less than 12,000,000 brick going into that section of the city every week. There is also a corresponding movement of front brick. Here and there the new tones of yellow and buff being introduced by front brick manufacturers are in evidence.

Manufacturers using the open yard system have so far shown no signs of resuming operations. One or two dryer yards are making preparations to open. Shipments are still being held close to demand, as shown by a balance of only three cargoes left over at the close of the week, and seven bargeloads en route. Prices on list are without change for ordinary run of brick.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, April 22, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follows:

EASTERN PARKWAY BIDS.

Nineteen Contractors Vary More Than a Million in Their Figures.

IF any intimation is needed to show how hungry the contractors of New York are for good business as well as the wide variation in the prices of materials in this market reference need only be taken to the bids received this week for the Eastern parkway improvement. They follow:

The Inter-Continental Construction Corporation, $2,734,000 (low); the Tidewater Building Company, $2,810,000; Charles Cooper, $2,856,000; The H. B. Construction Company, $2,945,000; The Underpinning and Foundation Company, $2,950,000; Newman & Carey, $3,300,000; E. E. Smith, $3,359,000; The Mason-Hanger Company, $3,410,000; Morton & Gorman, $3,145,000; Oscar Daniels, $3,347,000; T. E. Gillespie, $3,064,000; Rogers & Hagerty, $3,445,000; Dock Contractor's Company, $3,357,000; Bayley Hipkins, $2,823,000; Degnon Contracting Company, $3,849,000; Smith, Hauser & McIsaac, $3,860,000; Arthur McMullen, $3,600,000; W. A. Gahagan, $3,710,000, and John J. Creem, $3,757,000.

Before contractors bid on work of this sort it is customary for them to obtain quotations from building material supply houses. It is reasonably safe to assume that, in view of the competition now prevailing, the margin of profits in each instance were shaved to the utmost That being the case, the figures presented would seem to reflect a wide degree of shading of prices on future delivery on large requirements, a fact which tends to impress upon prospective builders the fact that manufacturers will not be able to keep supply far beyond demand for some months to come.

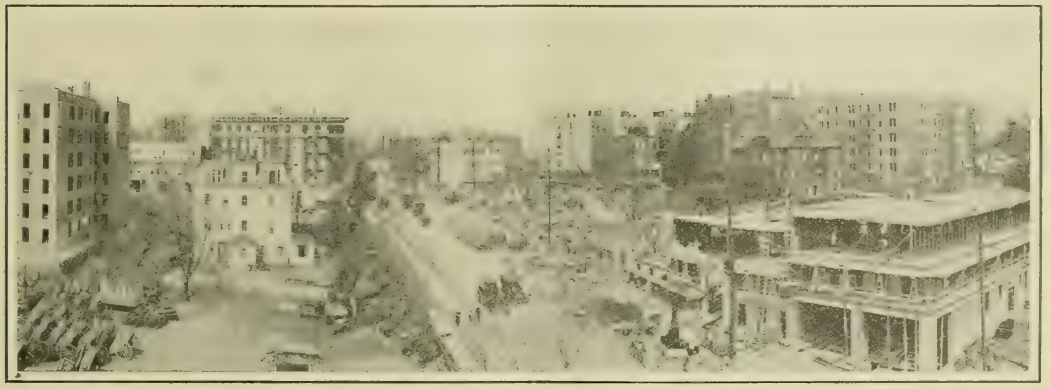
GIGANTIC OPERATIONS ON WATERFRONTS

Terminals in the Bronx and Queens to Care for Future Business — Activity Rivals 1906 and 1912 Periods

ANYONE taking the trouble or being willing to spend the time can see that the "Build Now" movement is bearing fruit in this city. In Long Island City, the way is being cleared for a great terminal project. The Hunts Point section is the scene of another great improvement of the same sort. Kingsbridge is taking material for new building construction so fast that one material dealer has been compelled to install an almost continuous chain of five-ton trucks to cart away the sand on a one-minute loading schedule.

GRAND BOULEVARD AND 184TH STREET.

On the upper East Side, along Valentine avenue, square blocks of building construction, under way, is not an exceptional sight. In this section 12,000,000 common brick a week are arriving and cement barges are unloading in excess of a million barrels every six days. In the New Jersey counties of Hudson, Essex and Union, in Staten Island and in Brooklyn construction is proceeding on a scale in ratio to the population of the Bronx. Manhattan is the only section in which actual construction is not now keeping abreast of plan filings.



Within the last thirty days about 1,500 additional skilled laborers have found work in this city. Portland cement authorities declare that the shipments from the Lehigh and Hudson valleys to this market in April will equal output despite the fact that there are one hundred more kilns in operation today than there were at the first of the year. At the present rate of common brick consumption in the Bronx of 12,000,000 a week, one-half of the oversupply of 300,000,000 now reported to be in the Hudson river sheds on call, will be consumed in the borough of the Bronx alone by the time the 1915 production is ready for market, about the first of July. This, too, in spite of the fact that great projects have not yet come into the market for materials.

Some of the big work that is now going ahead here includes the Johnson and Degnon terminals, one in the Hunts Point section of the Bronx and the other in the Dutch Kills district of Long Island City. There are already on the latter site the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Company's Sunshine factory, with 20 acres of floor space under one roof, and the American Ever Ready Works of the National Carbon Company, with 400,000 sq. feet of working space. The company has contracted to erect within six months from the signing of the contract a 4-story square block factory for the Brett Lithographing Company, and others are under negotiation, tending to make this one of the "largest industrial communities in the world." Connected with the Queensboro Bridge, the Sunnyside yards of the Pennsylvania railroad and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, by means of the New York Connecting Railroad over Hell Gate, this improvement alone will not only require in itself a large amount of building material, but it will necessitate the erection of hundreds of apartment and tenement houses in Long Island City for housing the operatives of factories now going up in the locality in considerable number. There will be a big demand for small shops, too. This terminal's size may be judged by the statement that more than 60,000 feet of railroad siding will be required.

Diagonally across the East river, in the Hunts Point section, is the great filling-in work of the George F. Johnson project, entailing a mile square terminal improvement that will take a vast quantity of material and change a countryside into a teeming industrial and freight originating center for maritime transportation and railroads. It is now a considerable distance from the apartment and tenement sections of the now populated section of Hunts Point, but there is an unmistakable tendency to reach out toward the new terminal so that when manufacturers move in there will be a labor market available near at hand.

In this operation between 200,000 and 300,000 square yards of ground is being reclaimed each month, through the agency of giant suction dredges and cartage of subway rock and refuse to the section.

Along Valentine avenue, in the neighborhood of 184th and 188th streets, whole blocks are being transformed from rock piles to handsome brick-faced apartments. One can stand at the site of the block-square school being erected at the corner of Valentine avenue and 188th street and, without turning, see investments involving at least a million dollars. Turning completely about half a million dollars' worth of work can be seen actually under way. From that vantage point it is not possible to look in any direction without encountering piles of building materials ready to be assembled into apartment houses or tenements.

Clubhouses, churches and even the Union Hospital are slated to be demolished for further meeting the demand for apartment houses in that section of the city, tapped as it will be by the new subway system.

It is a matter of wonderment to many where the people will come from to occupy these handsome new places of residence. Expert realty men say that a large percentage of the new Bronx population will be that driven out by the encroachment of aliens in certain sections of the east and west sides of Manhattan, the new subway giving this class of tenant an acceptable alternative from that of moving into the suburbs. The subway will give these families desirable environment at a cost of ten cents a day as against an overhead of twenty-five to fifty cents a day for carfare.

All of which seems to prove that Manhattan of the future will be a place of abode for the very rich and the very poor, and the habitation of light manufactories and mercantile shops.

Conjecture here reaches toward the housing problem of Manhattan as this tendency continues to assert itself. Will the consequent supervision of the tenement and semi-philanthropic agencies compel a general revision of type of multi-tenanted houses in Manhattan? Or will the constant exodus of the great middle class from Manhattan to outlying sections reached by the new subway systems hasten the conversion of districts like the old drygoods section into downtown tenement districts for a class of labor whose earnings are so meagre as to make even an expenditure of ten cents a day for transportation to and from source of income a considerable burden?

Regardless of the ultimate effect of this shifting of population arising from changing of manufacturing centers the fact remains that demand has proved to the minds of investors that more apartments and tenements are needed in the Bronx and Long Island City, and that instead of this demand being satisfied within a year or two or three, the establishment of great industrial centers like the Degnon and Johnson terminals will make for a "Build Now" movement in these centers lasting an indefinite time, but the early builder gets the first tenants.

EQUAL PRIORITY FOR MECHANICS' LIENS

If an Arrangement Is Made for Completing Building Operations That Get into Trouble—Vital Amendment to the Law

CERTAIN amendments to the mechanics' lien law were passed by the legislature on the last day of the recent session and the bill is now in the hands of the Governor for signature. Any material amendment to the lien law is of great importance to the building industry, and a brief reference to the history of the recent legislation will be of interest.

The matter of amending the law was placed before Phillips & Avery, attorneys, of 41 Park Row, this city, who have had a very extensive experience in mechanics' liens and building matters, and they were requested to draft a bill, which they did, acting in the interests of the public generally and without retainer.

The bill was introduced in the Assembly by Assemblyman Simpson, of Kings County, and in the Senate by Senator Carswell, of Kings. Public hearings were then had before the Joint Judiciary Committee of the Assembly and Senate, and representatives of various trade organizations and many individuals appeared and expressed their views in respect to the proposed legislation.

General Consent Obtained.

Previous to the introduction of the bill it had been submitted to several building trades associations in this city and elsewhere in the State and had received their approval. It was also placed before many of the prominent institutions and firms in New York City engaged in making building loans; copies were sent to the most important materialmen and subcontractors throughout the State, and it was also submitted to the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York, and its provisions in respect of liens for public improvements were discussed with his office.

The bill, as originally drawn, provided that all mechanics' liens should be of equal priority. This was a very radical departure from the mechanics' lien law as it had existed for many decades in this State, and such provision was put in the bill in deference to a sentiment on the part of a number of prominent materialmen.

When the bill came up in committee there was an objection on the part of many members to this provision. The chief argument in favor of making mechanics' liens of equal priority was that in case a building operation got into difficulties and realized less than sufficient to pay all the claims in full, the lienors should share equally. Further public hearings were had in committee.

A Plan to Finance.

It was found that the situation could be met by arranging to take away priorities among lienors in case the proposed plan for carrying on a building operation which had gotten into difficulties should be undertaken, and the bill was amended at the instance of the Senate Judiciary Committee to provide that, in case the arrangement contemplated by the act be carried out, the liens should thenceforth be of equal priority and share pro rata; and as so amended the bill passed.

This legislation does not generally change the present provisions of the existing lien law, for while many of these are susceptible of improvement, it was thought best to leave them as they are, because during many years they have received judicial interpretation. The most important feature of the bill is the addition of a plan by which building operations which have gotten into trouble may be financed, the building completed and placed on sale and realized upon.

Some Difficulties.

At the present time, it frequently happens that a builder who is building upon a building loan secured by temporary mortgage gets into trouble; mechanics' liens are filed; and he is then confronted with the situation where, if he cannot lift these liens and receive further advances on the building loan and finish his building, and then replace the temporary loan by a permanent loan, a foreclosure suit will follow and he and his creditors will be wiped out.

Under these circumstances it is usual to undertake to put through a creditors' agreement, by which the lienors agree to lift their mechanics' liens and to subordinate them to further advances on the temporary loan and finally to the permanent loan. It frequently happens, however, that some lienors stand out against such a plan and refuse to join with the other creditors, in the hope that they may be bought off, which action frequently results in the blocking of the whole scheme and is followed by the inevitable foreclosure.

The New Plan.

In the bill which has just been passed, a plan is formulated to overcome this situation. Upon vote of seventy-five per cent. in amount of mechanics' lien, creditors provision is made that the owner may give to trustees for his creditors an assignment of payments still to be made under the building loan, if any, and may also execute to them a mortgage to secure the cost of completion; in which case the mechanics' liens, as well as judgments, attachments and similar encumbrances, are subordinate to the lien of such trust mortgages, and the mechanics' liens then become of equal priority.

Provisions Made.

Under the act an arrangement can also be made for the payment of those who thereafter furnish material and labor for the completion of the structure. Another amendment provides that, upon similar vote, a permanent loan may be placed and the various liens subordinated to a mortgage given to secure such loan; and there is a further provision which enables the owner, upon like vote, to sell or exchange the property free from mechanics' liens, judgments and attachments.

The effect of these amendments will be to give seventy-five per cent. in amount of the mechanics' lien creditors power, upon receiving the security provided for, to authorize an owner or contractor to raise funds for finishing a building to place a permanent loan, and to sell or exchange the property without hindrance by a minority of the creditors. There are some minor amendments embodied in the bill, but the foregoing is an outline of the principal provisions.

Listing by Telephone.

In New York City we do not have much trouble between owners and brokers over commissions, considering the amount of business done. But in smaller cities, where business is more loosely conducted, brokers encounter not a little difficulty in holding clients to their agreements. For one reason, because they are too prone to accept listings over the telephone without following up and insisting on a written contract. L. D. Woodworth of Rochester, commenting in the Rochester Democrat on two cases just won by his firm, says:

"There is no greater source of difficulty on each side than the listing by telephone, under which neither party becomes personally acquainted with the ideas and intentions of the other, and there is absolutely no writing or note of any kind to record the terms of the agreement which then is made. Some owners persist in listing by telephone in the belief that they make it impossible for the broker to ask for a signature, and in a very large proportion of the cases it is undoubtedly true that the owner intends to obtain the services of the broker under such circumstances that no commission will have to be paid unless the broker is able to keep in such close touch with any deal on the property that his claim for a commission cannot be questioned. This is not saying that the large majority of owners are dishonest, but there are many who do not appreciate the value of their broker's services and who will avoid paying therefor under every pretext."

The New Edison Tariff.

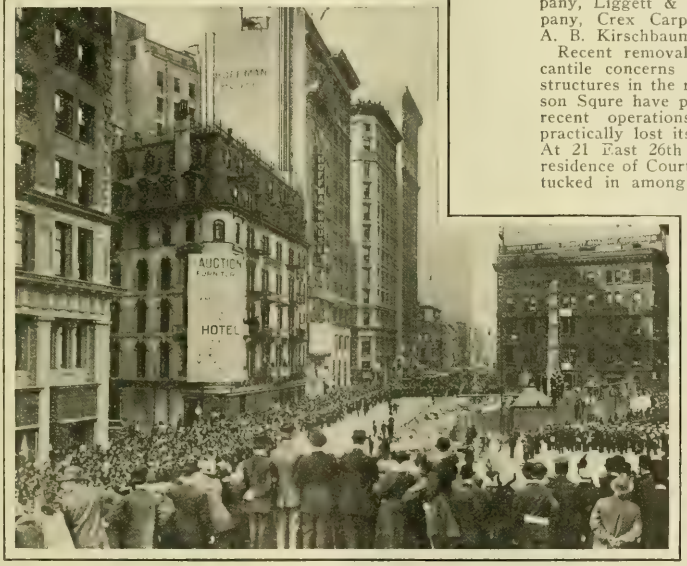
The New York Edison Company has filed with the Public Service Commission a new tariff, putting into effect May 1, 1915, in conformity with a recent order of the commission, a new schedule of rates. The maximum rate is reduced from ten cents to eight cents per kilowatt hour, but those who get the benefit of the eight-cent rate must pay for their lamps. Under the old rate of ten cents per kilowatt hour the company furnished and replaced carbon filament lamps free of charge. The new rates will be effective in Manhattan and in the Bronx west of the Bronx River, except for the old town of Kingsbridge. Customers may obtain the free renewal of lamps as heretofore under a separate agreement for ½ cent per kilowatt hour.

ACTIVITY IN MADISON SQUARE SECTION

Sale of Old Hoffman House Property Has Given New Impulse to Historic District—Ayer Estate Improving Holding

ABOVE the roar of the street cars and the rumble of the heavy vehicular traffic just north of Madison Square, is heard the steady crash of the rock drill and the grind of the giant steam shovel now excavating at the northeast corner of Broadway and Twenty-sixth street. The estate of Frederick Ayer has commenced the erection of a sixteen-story commercial building, on plot 51 x 100, which marks another step in the rejuvenation of Madison Square. Further south the placards of the auctioneers who disposed of the furnishings of the historic Hoffman House and Albemarle Hotel at public sale still confront the passerby and bear mute witness to the huge building project which is contemplated on this site.

The property has had an interesting history and, with the demolishing of the hotels, marks the passing of two notable landmarks, and the last of the hostelries in this one-time famous hotel center. The sale and improvement of the Victoria Hotel site, a few blocks to the north, last summer, was another step, which clearly indicated the shifting of the hotel population.



The corner of Broadway and 25th street, under the ownership of Mrs. Louisa M. Gerry, was, until 1913, occupied, in part, by the Hoffman House, but plans were filed for a 12-story building, 50x212.4 x irregular, which was taken over under a long term lease, and the first inroad in the block made. The initial estimated cost of the Gerry building was $400,000, but it is understood that a considerably larger amount was involved in the operation before it was completed.

A few years ago the old Fifth Avenue Hotel, on Broadway, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets, was razed, and an office building of the most modern type erected, and it is interesting to note that the investment has been a success from the start. Great care was exercised in the selection of tenants and the owners stated, some time ago, that had every applicant been accepted, all the available space in the building would have been under lease before the building was completed.

In April, 1911, the announcement was made that the Hoffman House would close its doors, but the creditors decided that a continuance of the business would serve the best ends. This was done and the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company was appointed trustee for the Kinney estate. It is understood that the Hoffman House has done well and that the large majority of the 221 rooms in the building have been occupied nightly. The main fact, however, remained that the building was outside the hotel zone and that only a question of time would decide its ultimate change of occupancy.

There are many reasons for taking the step at the present time, principal among which may be cited that favorable contracts for building materials can now be made, good labor obtained, and, on account of the lack of work in the contractors' offices, better general results obtained.

The passing of the Hoffman House and the Albemarle Hotel are splendid examples of the evolution which has been going on in the Madison Square section for several years. This change has been particularly marked during the last two years, but, at the present time, a new era is starting, wholesale firms coming in where the retailers formerly occupied quarters. Rentals have been adjusted, in many cases, to fit the new condition, but property owners are more hopeful now than for many months.

MADISON SQUARE, DURING POLICE PARADE, SHOWING THE HOFFMAN HOUSE.

If reliance can be placed upon tradition, the late Francis S. Kinney, who was prominently identified with the tobacco industry, purchased the block front in Broadway, between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth streets, for $5,000. The present sales price is reported, by the brokers, Marston & Company and the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, as being $3,500,000, a figure far in excess of even the fondest hopes of Mr. Kinney, when he acquired the property.

The original Hoffman House, which only occupied part of the site involved in the present deal, was erected in 1864, and, during the half century of its existence, has gone through various changes. It was one of the best known hostelries in the city and during the height of its success, vied with the Fifth Avenue Hotel as a gathering place for politicians. It was the headquarters of the Democratic party, while the Republicans frequented the one on the block to the south. Another hotel, which has since passed out of existence, was the Bartholdi, at the southeast corner of Broadway and Twenty-third street. This was also, in its day, a meeting place for those interested in the administration of city and State affairs.

The Hoffman House was originally under the proprietorship of Reed, Wall & Company and, in 1882, an eight-story addition was built, which greatly increased its capacity. Edward S. Stokes, Jr., was taken into the firm and remained identified with the hotel until 1897, when he retired.

Among the prominent firms which have taken large space in the vicinity of Madison Square are Strawbridge & Clothier, of Philadelphia, Einstein-Wolff Company, Sealpackerchief Company, Stein & Company, George W. Blabon & Company, Strouse & Brothers Company, B. Kuppenheimer & Company, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, Crex Carpet Company and the A. B. Kirschbaum Company.

Recent removals of such large mercantile concerns into the tall, modern structures in the neighborhood of Madison Squre have probably influenced the recent operations. The section has practically lost its residential character. At 21 East 26th street, the four-story residence of Courtland de Peyster Field, tucked in among the skyscrapers, still remains as a tie which binds the historic square to its past. On Madison avenue the Manhattan Club and the ten-story apartment house at Nos. 35 and 37 and one old-fashioned brownstone dwelling are the sole survivors of a residential character.

Many dry goods firms, and others in kindred lines of business, have been taking space in the new buildings erected in the vicinity. In the Victoria Building, firms dealing in carpets, dress fabrics, worsteds, rugs, etc, have established themselves. The store, basement and first loft in this building, which extends through to Fifth avenue, was recently leased to a large importer of laces and embroideries at an aggregate rental of about $500,000.

The twenty-story building at 1134 Broadway, through to Fifth avenue, facing the square, also houses a number of concerns of a similar nature. At the opposite corner the twenty-story Crosic Building and diagonally opposite, the twelve-story Brunswick Building, also serve as examples indicative of Madison Square's growth as a commercial center.

In East 26th street there is a twenty-one-story building and a twenty-story building, and on Madison avenue the Madison Avenue Building with its twenty stories, at the corner of 25th street, and the adjoining fourteen-story Farragut Building and the fifteen-story Pullman Building, mark the inroads which business has made on this one-time exclusive residential thoroughfare. The 23rd street or southerly end of the square has long been claimed by business, although the trend has not manifested itself in any new construction; the dwellings have been remodeled for commercial purposes. The one-time Bartholdi Hotel was remodeled several years ago into offices and show rooms.

WHAT THE LEGISLATURE DID AND DID NOT DO

For the Welfare of New York City Property Interests—Veto of the Lockwood-Ellenbogen Bill—Measures Still Pending

AFTER the Legislature had adjourned, and too late for further action by that body, the Mayor vetoed the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill, which was intended to coordinate the departmental inspections over the construction and alterations of buildings. In explaining his reasons for the veto the Mayor declares that the bill "destroys the efficiency of the Tenement House Department—the only agency that in the past has stood between the unscrupulous among the builders and landlords and the welfare of more than three million people.

"In the public discussion that has been had upon this measure, it has been charged that the real purpose of some—by no means all—of those responsible for the bill was to weaken the efficiency of the Tenement House Department, and to return to the old discredited conditions when the control of tenement construction was in the hands of building officials who were more responsive to the desires of the building interests than have been the several successive Tenement House Commissioners. But whether or not this be true is really not of great moment, as it is result rather than motive that I am primarily concerned with. I need only say, in that connection, that every effort I made to bring about an agreement upon some compromise measure split upon the rock of the control of tenement house inspection. The proponents of this bill, while disavowing all intention of injuring the efficiency of the Tenement House Department, would not in fact agree to any plan which contained the feature of retaining the control of tenements in that department.

"I think it must be self-evident that the health, safety and welfare of three million people is of far greater importance than the convenience of the building interests."

Results from the Session.

The Legislative Session of 1915 adjourned sine die last Saturday night. The financial measures passed were an Appropriation bill amounting to $33,000,000, an Excise tax increasing the license fee of liquor dealers twenty per cent., a Supply bill of $5,500,000, and a Direct tax bill imposing a rate of 1.7 to raise $19,500,000. The General Construction bill amounts to $3,857,000, Canal appropriations to $3,650,000, and the Sinking Fund contributions to $9,000,000.

In view of the big direct tax coming at a time when realty was already overburdened by local taxation, it cannot be said that the Legislative session left a pleasant memory for taxpayers. The session was distinguished otherwise by the enactment of a number of reformatory measures, including the one for the reorganization of the State Tax Department into a bureau with added powers, the abolition of the Departments of Fire Marshal and Efficiency and Economy, the creation of a new Industrial Commission to take over the functions of both the State Labor Department and the Workmen's Compensation Commission and the repeal of the Alien Labor Law.

Four Investigations.

Legislative committees were appointed to investigate (1) the State Labor laws, (2) new sources of revenue for the State, (3) the State payrolls, and (4) the New York City tax situation with the aim of affording relief.

Other bills enacted were:

Bills That Have Become Laws.

Simpson bill, permitting use of approved style cement blocks as well as hollow tile in tenement hallway construction.

O'Hare bill, excepting tenements of two stories and under from provisions regarding two independent ways of egress from ground floor to roof.

Spring bill, to relieve alien labor situation on subway construction.

Mills bill, permitting Board of Estimate to appropriate without limit money for maintenance of Museum of Natural History.

The Mills secured debt tax bill.

Brennan bill, permitting American Institute of Architects to carry on business in the State.

Ahern bill, extending time for completion of New York Connecting Railway work.

Hamilton bill, permitting City College to give free courses to city employees.

Simpson bill, permitting city authorities to "ease off" on assessments and taxes when such equal or exceed value of property concerned.

Lockwood-Brennan bill, reorganizing municipal courts and increasing jurisdiction to cases involving $1,000.

Pay as you go bill, applying to New York City bond issues.

Coroner's bill, abolishing offices after January 1, 1918.

Bills That Failed.

The Cromwell bill, to permit the Board of Estimate and Board of Aldermen to fix salaries of all county and city officers except County Judges and Supreme Court Justices.

The Cromwell bill to reduce the number of members in the Board of Education from 46 to 23.

Mayor Mitchel vetoed Senate Bill 1672 which was an act to amend the city charter in relation to the purchase of supplies for the city and the establishment of a department of purchase. The Mayor's principal objection to the bill was that it would make the Board of Estimate the head of the department of purchase, instead of placing that authority in the Mayor.

Bill to abolish the office of City Chamberlain.

Boylan bill to remove the tracks from Eleventh avenue and Riverside Drive.

Bill creating a Department of Markets.

Lockwood-Goldberg bill, providing flat 5 per cent. telephone rate in New York City.

Flamman-Lawson bill, to prohibit persons from drawing both pension and salary from city at same time.

Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill to reorganize building inspection in New York City.

Carroll bill, to authorize public buildings trustees to lease whole building in New York City for local branches of State officers.

Lawson bill, to reorganize New York police system, resurrecting the office of chief of police.

Patten-Nehrbauer bill, to require exchange of transfers between car lines operated over Queensboro Bridge and Second and Third avenue lines.

Patten-McGarry bill, providing 80-cent gas for the Second Ward of Queens and the Twenty-fourth and Thirty-first wards of Brooklyn.

In the Governor's Hands.

Among the bills passed by the Legislature and now awaiting executive approval are these:

Patten bill, to permit dual elevated system trains of Corona line to run over Long Island Railroad tracks.

Sanders bill, excluding New York from jurisdiction of State Labor law so far as structural changes of buildings is concerned and lodging the administration of all such law in the local authorities.

Thompson-McWhinney bill, requiring State Engineer and Surveyor to investigate plan of Federal Government for construction of canal to connect inland bays along south shore of Long Island carrying no appropriation.

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, through its law committee, Walter Lindner, chairman, urges property owners and taxpayers' associations to communicate with the Governor, endorsing the four following named bills in particular:

The Sanders bill, Senate Int. No. 1303, which provides that the provisions of the Labor law relating to construction, alterations and structural changes in buildings, and authorizing the Industrial Board to make rules and regulations in respect thereto, shall not apply to cities of the first class.

The Mills bill, Senate Int. No. 1333, which amends the Labor law by providing that in New York City the Fire Commissioner may waive the requirement for a fire alarm system in buildings not over four stories or buildings equipped with automatic fire sprinklers if, in his opinion, such signal system is not necessary for the safety of the occupants.

The Thorn bill, Assembly Int. No. 1123, which amends the Labor law by making the present provisions of the section relative to fire walls around stairways apply to buildings more than six stories in height instead of to buildings more than five stories in height.

The Thorn bill, Int. No. 1656, which amends the Labor law by authorizing the Industrial Board to suspend the enforcement of mandatory requirements of the Labor law, when there are practical difficulties or the provision would work unnecessary hardships, until the next session of the Legislature, when recommendation for repeal or modification shall be presented to the Legislature.

Bills in the Mayor's Hands.

The land condemnation bills, providing for excess condemnation and new court supervision.

The Cromwell-Perlman bill, to permit the city to charge for trade waste.

The Green bill (Assembly No. 1728, Int. No. 164), enabling the city to widen, straighten and improve Coney Island Creek.

The rapid transit amendment bill, with reference to assessment of cost and expense necessary to be incurred for the construction of a rapid transit railroad and for property to be acquired for the construction and operation upon property benefited.

Green bill, to permit the Board of Estimate to modify assessments.

The Burlinghame-Stoddard bill, rearranging the Aldermanic districts in New York City.

The Mills inferior courts act, reorganizing the Special Sessions, Children's and Magistrate's courts along lines which it is believed will lessen the present congested condition of the Special Sessions Courts and obviate the necessity of poor people unable to get bail going to jail for minor offenses against the civil codes—ordinances, sanitary and health regulations.

Senate No. 1826, Int. No. 1480, an act to empower the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York to retire upon pension persons employed in the fire department of the city of New York.

A FIRE-PREVENTION CODE COMING

Fire Department Will Prepare and Publish Regulations Which Have Never Before Appeared in Unified Form

At the request of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, through its Industrial Code Committee, Julius Franke, Chairman, the Fire Department has consented to print and distribute to the public the instructions issued to the Fire Prevention Inspectors as soon as these rules and regulations can be compiled. These instructions have been issued from time to time, but have never been collated in unified form. The chief of the Fire Prevention Bureau, Mr. Hammitt, is now undertaking this work.

For many years past the architects, builders and real estate owners of New York have been trying to have the Fire Department publish definite rules and regulations. For example, they wish to have it definitely settled what buildings require standpipes and what buildings require sprinklers; and next, to be sure that in case certain standpipes, house tank and other apparatus are specified that the regulations in this respect would not be changed unless property owners were informed, so that they would not be in a position of having contracted for something they assume to be correct, only to find out later that the Fire Department wanted something else.

Standpipe Uncertainties.

The history of standpipe regulations in the Fire Department has demonstrated that it has been possible for one inspector of the Fire Department to insist upon a connection overhead for two standpipes, and another inspector to insist that it was all wrong and that the standpipes should be in the basement. Then it has been insisted that the house tank should be connected with the standpipe. Later on it was maintained that there should be a separate tank for the standpipe.

Then the rule was altered again to allow for a certain reservation in the house tank, available only for the standpipe; and the latest rule is that no reservation is necessary for the standpipe, for in fact, all that is required is to have water in the standpipe, so as to be sure there is no leak, as the fire inspectors now believe the standpipes are to be used only in connection with the Fire Department, attaching the same to the siamese on the street.

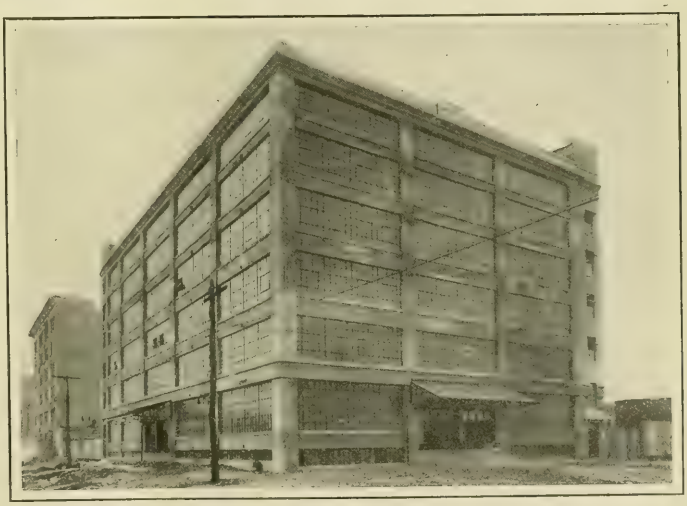
The result is that builders, architects and real estate men do not know whether this latter requirement refers to new buildings alone, or to alterations. In fact, the entire matter is very indefinite and, although the Fire Department has some typewritten rules they are for the use only of the inspectors, and are not handed out to the public. The rules of the Fire Department with reference to garages and ammonia piping, and other apparatus for refrigerators have also been in a rather undefined state.

Final Rules Wanted.

The architects of the city have been after the Fire Department for some time to induce it not only to make final rules for all matters over which the Fire Department has jurisdiction, in connection with the erection and equipment of a building, but also to provide what is known as application blanks, similar to those which are provided in the Building Department, so that everything can be definitely stated on the blank and obtain formal approval of the Fire Department. This is customary and has been for years the form of procedure in connection with the work of the Building Department as well as the Tenement House Department, and unless such a system of application and formal approval is adopted, there is always the chance of laxity, with consequent confusion.

The Fire Commissioner, in response to the request of the Advisory Council, has stated that the regulations of the Fire Prevention Bureau should be published for the information of builders, architects and owners. He has added, however, that the Fire Prevention Bureau inherited on January 1st, 1914, thirteen thousand uninvestigated complaints, and that this department has been endeavoring to clean up these complaints, in addition to carrying on its regular work. The Fire Commissioner has further written to the Mayor, asking his permission to publish in the City Record the resolutions adopted by the Board of Standards and the Board of Hazardous Trades.

This agreement on the part of the Fire Department to facilitate and expedite the approval of plans, and likewise arrange its rules and regulations in such a form that there can be no conflicting requirements or confusion, is undoubtedly a decided benefit to real estate owners. When these rules and regulations have been codified so as to represent the final decision of the heads of the various Bureaus of the Fire Department they will undoubtedly be printed in booklet form and can be obtained from the Fire Department. The department now has a printed pamphlet containing the regulations of the former Municipal Explosive Commission, known by the name of the Board of Hazardous Trades, and small pamphlets known as resolutions adopted by the Board of Standards and describing the Fire Alarm requirements for buildings, where the Fire Department has jurisdiction over fire alarms. These pamphlets can be obtained either through the Advisory Council or by writing direct to the Fire Commissioner. When the large number of resolutions adopted by the Board of Standards, and the many amendments adopted to the printed regulations, as well as the special rulings of the Board of Hazardous Trades, are finally prepared it is believed that the doubt and uncertainty which have heretofore prevailed, as to exactly what requirements must be observed, will be cleared away.



INTERESTING EXAMPLE OF CONCRETE CONSTRUCTION

MANUFACTURING concerns, of today, are giving more attention to the efficient construction of their buildings. Having developed their own manufacturing processes to the highest efficiency they demand, in their buildings, everything which will tend to make the manufacture of the product easier, quicker and cheaper.

An excellent example of the architect's answer to the demands of the manufacturer is the new paint factory recently completed for the C. A. Willey Company, from designs by John Boese, Bridge Plaza, L. I. C., architect. The Woermann Construction Company, of St. Louis, Mo., was the builder.

The machinery installation, being light, and there being no extreme moving or shifting loads, it was possible to effect economies in design. Concrete was used throughout, reinforced with corrugated bars. The structure is a series of flat slab floors, supported by reinforced concrete columns. The spans are 24 x 25 feet, between columns, and in spite of this large span, the floor thickness is only 8½ inches. Well-lighted floor spaces have been obtained because there are no beams or girders visible, which permits the windows to expand clear to the ceiling, giving more light and air. The following out of this plan also makes the installation of overhead shafting and sprinklers easy and cheap.

The thin flat roof construction also permits a lower ceiling height, which reduces, correspondingly, the height of the structure. This has resulted in a considerable saving in materials and cost of construction. The floors are constructed of the Corr-Plate flat slab two-way system, designed in this case to support a live load of 150 pounds to the square foot. Such a structure as the Willey building illustrates the value of reinforced concrete for industrial buildings. Despite the fact that the footings had to be supported by piles, the cost, including all the materials used, was approximately 9½ cents a cubic foot, or about $1.25 a square foot, floor area.

The first of May is here, but with no strikes and lockouts in the building trads to report as in old times.

This was a decidedly unauspicious year for Single Tax legislation. New sources of revenue rather than fewer is the obvious need of the hour.

Charity covers a multitude of—good jobs. Applications were received this week for a position as "social investigator" in the Charities Department at a salary of $4,000 a year.

The three piers of superlative size which the city will build at South Brooklyn will carry themselves financially when completed. With the Dock Department it is not a case of everything going out and nothing coming in.

The Sanders bill, now in the hands of the Governor, will relieve New York City builders of the attentions of the State Labor Department at least, and if signed, will be some consolation for the fate of the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill.

The strength of the influence which the leagues of social workers have for many years been able to bring to bear upon the municipal government of New York City is the wonder of clear-seeing business men. At the City Hall one feels almost compelled to apologize for possessing property or substantial business interests of any sort.

Half of the real estate tax becomes a lien today and is payable. The personal taxes for the year are also payable today. The remaining half of the real estate tax will become due on November 1. If paid before then, a discount at the rate of four per cent. a year, will be allowed from the date of payment to November 1.

Another Cycle of Higher Costs.

Ricardo, an early writer on political economy, laid down the doctrine that rents should rise, profits fall and wages remain about the same in any growing community. If the natural course of society had not been interfered with by the organization of labor and capital, and by the enactment of laws giving more or less protection to certain trades and professions, things might have worked out that way. Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale, tells us that what has really transpired in our generation is that the man of fixed income has lost one-third of the purchasing power he possessed eighteen years ago, and Professor Fisher believes that we are destined to see for many years to come a rapidly rising tide of prices, during which men must simplify their wants and look for satisfaction in other ways than in the possession of things.

Fortunately, large elements of American society have not been restricted to fixed incomes. The wages of organized labor have as a rule been increased within the period referred to—since the Spanish-American war. On the face of the returns, labor engaged in agriculture, transportation and mining, as well as in construction work and manufacture, is paid at a higher rate. For New York City there was a very general readjustment of wages in the building and material trades about the year 1903. Rents had taken a decided upturn in consequence of the higher cost of construction and maintenance required by the new tenement house law which, while it assured to a certain class of society better housing, thus raised the cost of living for all classes.

In recent years millions upon millions of tax money has been poured out for social and charitable service from which comes no return in money, as well as millions for public works which could just as well have been postponed to a time when the city would be in more affluent circumstances. The State having added to the financial chaos by imposing more taxes directly upon realty, the only way in which the enlarged obligations can be met is by the owners again requiring higher rents.

As compensation for the higher rents, organized labor in turn will be certain to demand, as it did before, still higher wages. Thus has another cycle of higher costs of metropolitan living been started. Forty years ago a similar situation in municipal affairs caused Governor Tilden to appoint a committee of citizens to formulate a reorganization plan for the New York City municipal finances. The State Legislature which has just adjourned has left with Governor Whitman authority to appoint a committee for a similar purpose. We also note that an unofficial committee of local financiers is about to come forward in the hope of somehow helping the city government out of its difficulties. The world truly moves in cycles though never exactly in the same path.

An Illogical Veto.

That Mayor Mitchel's understanding of the meaning and purpose of the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill is different from the understanding which the owners, builders and managers of property have is very evident in the message which accompanied his veto of the bill. That he did not derive his opinions entirely from his own perusal of the text is as apparent as that the promptings and motives had their origin in considerations quite apart from the real merits of the case. Ostensibly the veto is based on two allegations. First, that the bill, if enacted into law, would "destroy" or "weaken" the efficiency of the Tenement House Department; and second, that the over-regulation of buildings complained of would be aggravated instead of lessened by its operation.

The first allegation in its original form was that the bill would destroy the Law of the tenement house. Now at last it is confessed that it is the Tenement House Department, and not the Law, which the Mayor and his advisers are anxious about. The obvious question then is, Why should the Tenement House Department, any more than some other department, be left out of the reorganization? This question the Mayor has not attempted to answer, and presumably he was as unable as were the framers of the bill to find a good reason for so doing. Surely if the bill was intended to "weaken" and "destroy" one department, its intention must have been the same toward the others, for it was impartial and impersonal, in that it treated all alike.

Nor is there a better basis in logic and fact for the second allegation which the Mayor makes, that the bill would aggravate and not lessen the over-regulation which he pretends to deplore? The primary object of the legislation was to coordinate and bring under one jurisdiction the supervision which a number of departments are exercising over the construction and alteration of buildings. So far as the Departments of Health, Labor, Fire, Tenement, and others had in recent years assumed such supervision, those duties were to be transferred back to the Building Bureaus where they belonged. Then instead of ten or a dozen different departments, municipal, State and national, exercising control over construction and alteration, there would be but one. This is the relief which the building and real estate interests prayed for, and which certainly would have resulted. There would have been but one place to file plans, and but one certificate of approval to obtain. The owner of a new building would thus have been able to get a "clean bill of health" and thereafter be relieved of further attentions by building inspectors.

True, there would have been other duties under the law remaining to the existing departments, but these duties would have had to do with occupancy, and not with construction, and would have concerned tenants rather than owners, architects and builders. It ought to be clear to everyone that there would have been a juncture when a building completed according to law would be absolutely relieved from the attention of inspectors, except those sent around to old buildings to discharge duties similar to those of supervising housekeepers.

The true business of the Fire Department is to extinguish fires, of the Health Department to prevent public nuisances, of the Labor and Tenement Departments to do welfare work, and not in any case to superintend the construction of buildings. The relief from over-regulation provided in the Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill is clearly discernible to the builders, owners and managers of buildings, if not to the Mayor; but doubtless there will come a day when he will see more clearly.

Building to Meet the Demand.

Few people who are not in close touch with the building situation realize the change that has come over the market during the last few months. The old feeling of pessimism is rapidly disappearing and in its stead optimism prevails. This is clearly shown by the number of new buildings in course of construction in the various boroughs, especially those outside Manhattan. All classes of buildings are represented, but industrial buildings, tenements and private dwellings in Queens, and business buildings and apartment houses in Brooklyn and the Bronx, form the nucleus of the operations. Though the plan-filings show a healthy increase for the first three months of the current year, as compared with 1914, still these figures do not entirely reflect the situation. The fact of the matter is that many building operations have been commenced this Spring, from plans filed during the preceding eighteen months.

A year ago times were not propitious for structural activity. Many thought there was an overbuilt condition in some quarters. Then again, the loaning institutions were unwilling to invest money in this branch of the business, for they had more pressing need for their funds. The European war caused an alarming scare in banking circles. The savings banks, which in normal years lend vast sums on real estate, were conserving their funds to the last dollar. A large percentage of their depositors are foreigners, or Americans who have relatives abroad, and these people send millions of dollars home to relieve the immediate stress of their families. This condition has passed to a large extent. Now the remittances from this class of people have returned to a normal basis, and bankers do not now fear any unusual demand for funds.

It takes only a comparatively short period of building inactivity to change an over-production of structures into a shortage. At present there is a decided shortage of moderate-priced apartments in Manhattan. While there does not seem to be any permanent solution for this problem, still there is but little doubt that a number of houses will be erected which will relieve the congestion in spots. The very high-priced apartments have been somewhat overdone in certain sections. This condition is largely the result of the period of retrenchment that many families went through during the last six months of 1914. But periods of stress and privation are soon forgotten. When it becomes unfashionable to talk about "hard times," the other extreme point of view is taken; people expand their household plans, and once more are extravagant, taking the position that "easy come, easy go" is the proper principle to work upon. With business expansion, it naturally follows that more floor space must also be provided for mercantile concerns. The present war has brought about a realization of how dependent we are upon the foreign countries. Many American concerns now understand how unnecessary it has been to rely upon others for products which we are able to supply at home. The result is that a New America is in the process of formation. New lines of industries will and are being organized, and it should not be long before we shall be supplying some foreign countries with commodities which never before have been produced here.

There is much valuable land, in and adjacent to Greater New York which can be properly converted to the uses of manufactories. Hundreds of acres in Queens and in the Bronx are ripe for improvement. Connections are possible with every trunk line in the country; besides, there is the unrivalled waterfrontage which makes it possible to ship by water to any foreign or domestic port. But little doubt is there that the building movement which was started all over the country will expand to huge proportions and that an era of general prosperity will ensue. The local real estate market usually follows the lead of Wall Street, and the "street" is having its "day." Why should not all precedents be followed? A logical assumption is that real estate is once more coming into its own.

The State's Rights in the South Brooklyn Waterfront.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Having shown in my former letter the rights of the City of New York to the land between high and low water mark, constituting about one-half of the land proposed to be taken for the terminal stated, of the elevated freight railroad, at Gowanus Bay, permit me further to call attention to the rights of the State of New York to the land below water mark, constituting the other half of the territory proposed to be taken.

As stated in my last communication, the deed to the First Construction Company expressly impressed upon the land a use for the benefit of the City of New York, the State of New York, and the United States of America, so far as the land was beneath the original line of high water! I also showed that, according to the Ratze map, produced by the city in this proceeding, all of the land to be taken for this terminal was below the original high-water mark, except a piece amounting to about one hundred square feet, at the intersection of Creamer and Clinton streets. The deed to the First Construction Company does not divide this land below high-water mark between the beneficial owners, i. e., the city and State of New York and the United States, but leaves those bodies to make such division, according to their respective interests.

A glance at the Ratze map, introduced in this proceeding to condemn land for the terminal, shows that the land between high and low water mark, to which the city is entitled, amounts to about one-half of the premises to be taken; i. e., the westerly half between Halleck and Creamer streets and also a piece along Clinton street, north of Creamer street.

According to the testimony of the city officials, this much of the land, below high-water mark, was above low-water mark; it therefore passed to the city under the Cornbury and Montgomerie charters, as set forth in my former letter.

The remainder of the land on the Ratze map, which is to be taken for the terminal, was below low-water mark, in Gowanus Bay, and belonged of course to the State of New York (Weber vs. Commissioner, '8 Wallace, 57). What are the present rights of the State of New York to this land, originally below low water?

The Act of 1847 imposed a condition precedent upon the rights granted to Richards and his associates, i. e., they were to obtain the permission of the Mayor, Aldermen and commonalty of the City of New York before they might erect any wharf on the land below low-water mark, in front of the land between high and low mark which belonged to, or was claimed by the Mayor. I have searched the minutes of the Sinking Fund Commission for several years, about this date, and find no such consent, and I feel confident that none was given. Without such consent, the rights claimed under this act by the First Construction Company, to the land below low-water mark are of course void. Ought not the legal representatives of the city to demand proof in these proceedings that the First Construction Company's predecessors in the title obtained the consent to the erection of these wharves and docks from the City of New York?

But, assuming that this consent was obtained, did the State grant anything except the right to build wharves? Can the structures necessary for a freight railway terminal be erected, if the condemnation awards are paid to the First Construction Company, on land formerly under water, over which only rights to build wharves, had been granted?

The answer to this question is important, because the State of New York appeared in these condemnation proceedings, having been made a party by the city, and stated that it would not be bound thereby (vol. II of testimony, p. 710) and protested against condemnation proceedings, covering any of its lands. No title company would, under these circumstances, insure a title against the State, as litigation is morally certain to ensue. In this litigation, what rights could the city assert against the State, if this proceeding were continued and the awards were paid to the First Construction Company?

All of the land to be taken under the condemnation proceedings below low-water mark seems to have been filled in, under Chapter 202 of the laws of 1847, except the block and a half on the southeast corner, on Court and Halleck streets. This act contains no grant of the title to the land beneath low-water mark, but merely confers an easement, practically identical with the rights already enjoyed by the upland owners.

How do these rights differ from those which every upland owner has in the land under water, in public waters, adjacent to his land? Washburn on Easements (4th Ed., pp. 323-325) and the recent case of Smith vs. Town of Hempstead in New York Court of Appeals, declares that the owner of the upland has the very rights, mentioned in this act, at common law, although he does not own the land under water, in front of his upland. The act of 1847 therefore merely fixed the limit which is otherwise uncertain, within which, the upland owners might exercise their rights of building wharves, etc.

But the existence of these rights of wharfage in the upland owner does not deprive the owner of the fee of the land under water, of his title. If any rights, beyond those of wharfage, are to be exercised on the land under water, such as building a terminal for freight cars, the rights must be acquired by contract or condemnation proceedings from the owner of the land under water. Until, he is settled with, any erection beyond a wharf, etc., would constitute a trespass and the party erecting it would be liable to damages; the erection would be removed and probably the license, or whatever the right of wharfage might be called, would be forfeited.

In the case of the lands claimed by the First Construction Company, the act of 1847 restricted the use of the land to docks and wharves; how can this land be used for a terminal for a freight railway? Certainly this fact should be taken into consideration and full values should not be awarded as though the city were acquiring the fee simple absolute, when it is only acquiring an easement.

It is therefore submitted that the proposed payment of awards, in the proceeding to acquire the terminal, is as objectionable on account of the outstanding rights of the State of New York, as it is reprehensible for its failure to recognize the rights which the City of New York already possesses. As to land below low-water mark, as well as to land above low-water mark, it would be gross injustice to pay the proposed awards.

Encroachments Cannot Be Legalized.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Your issue of April 24 has a letter from Mr. Rudolph P. Miller, entitled "Projections Beyond the Building Line," which replies to a letter of mine of April 17. Mr. Miller writes:

"It would seem that Mr. Miller is under a misapprehension in regard to this proposed ordinance. The proposed ordinance does not provide for any encroachment outside of the building line that is not already provided for by some ordinance. It therefore does not legalize any illegal encroachments."

On the contrary, I am not under any misapprehension. If there are any ordinances which legalize encroachments beyond the building line, they are illegal, and any new ordinance which proposes to make such encroachments legal is quite as illegal as the old ones.

It seems difficult for architects and others who are not lawyers to understand that the law is the law, and that the thoughts of city officials as to what are reasonable encroachments have nothing to do with the case. In times gone by city officials thought that the encroachments were reasonable which subsequently were declared illegal by the courts after much expensive litigation. Only a few years ago private owners were forced by the city to remove encroachments which had been thought reasonable by former city officials, at a cost I have seen estimated at over $9,000,000. Under such circumstances, what excuse is there for present city authorities to appear to legalize such encroachments and encourage owners to erect them when the courts have declared time and time again that no city official or body has the power to legalize them?

Mr. Rudolph P. Miller, for whose ability and integrity I have the highest regard, of course looks at the matter from the architect's point of view. If I knew any way to formulate a rule to legalize permitting reasonable ornamental projections which would not interfere with the public rights or the private rights of neighbors, I should be very glad to let Mr. Miller know of it. The mistake he makes is to suppose that such encroachments can be legalized if city officials think they are reasonable.

FOR THE PUBLIC WELFARE.

The Good Service of the Real Estate Board's Law and Legislation Committee.

An unusual amount of attention was this year given to the work of the Legislature by the Legislation and Taxation Committee of the Real Estate Board. Weekly meetings were held by the committee and action taken on bills that affected real estate or city finances generally. In every case the attitude of the Real Estate Board was presented at Albany, either by personal representation before committees, or by written statements to legislators introducing the measures under consideration or to the chairman of the proper committees. Some of these measures looked to the carrying out of the legislative program of the Real Estate Board, outlined before the Legislature convened. The following is a brief reference to some of the more important bills affecting real estate owners and now in the hands of the Governor:

Special effort was made in the direction of amending the Torrens Act. The work being in charge of Prof. Alfred G. Reeves, chairman of the Board's Committee. This bill, introduced in the Senate by Senator Boylan, was passed. It was Assemblyman Ahern's bill in the Assembly. It was recommitted during the closing hours of the session.

The Lockwood-Ellenbogen bill, designed to secure simpler building inspection, was passed by both houses of the Legislature, but was vetoed by the Mayor after the Legislature had adjourned.

Senate Int. No. 393, Print No. 1364 (Senator Gilchrist)—Amending section 450, Real Property Law by providing that cemetery lands in first-class cities may be assessed for local improvements of sidewalks abutting thereon in the same manner as other lands, and regulating the collection of such assessments. This bill was actively supported by the Real Estate Board.

Senate Int. No. 1030, Print No. 2131 (Senator Carswell)—This bill abolishes the Recreation Commission and confines these duties to the Commissioner of Parks for each Borough within the jurisdiction of the Department of Education. This legislation was suggested by the board as far back as last November.

Senate Int. No. 1303, Print No. 2033 (Senator Sanders)—Adding a new section 3 to the Labor Law. This places the enforcement of the requirements of the Labor Law, in cities of the first class, in the Bureau of Buildings of the several Boroughs, excepting jurisdiction over exits and fire-escapes. It will give a measure of home rule in matters of this kind such as is not now had by real estate owners. This bill was introduced at the request of the Real Estate Board.

Senate Int. No. 1333, Print No. 2045 (Senator Mills)—This amends section 83-a of the Labor Law by providing that in New York City the Fire Commissioner may waive the requirements for a fire alarm signal system in buildings not over four stories or buildings equipped with automatic fire sprinklers, if in his opinion such signal system is not necessary for the safety of occupants. This bill was actively supported by the Real Estate Board.

Senate Int. No. 1456, Print No. 1788 (Senator Cromwell)—Amending section 119-a of Greater New York Charter relative to assessments for local improvements confined after January 1, 1908. It provides in effect that in dividing installment assessments the improvements shall not be considered. This will be of great benefit to the small owner. This legislation was recommended by the Real Estate Board.

Senate Int. No. 1509, Print No. 1881 (Senator Mills)—Repealing sections 2 and 79-f, Labor Law, by defining a "factory building" as any building or structure any part of which is occupied or used for a factory and in which at least one-tenth of all persons employed are engaged in the work of a factory, but not a building used exclusively for dwelling purposes above the first story. It provides that approved wire glass shall be required in all cases where glass is permitted in a fire-retarding enclosure of a vertical shaft and makes other provisions relative to fireproof shutters for windows, etc.

Assembly Int. No. 1123, Print No. 1854 (Assemblyman Thorn)—This bill amends subdivision 2, section 79-b, Labor Law, by providing that the present requirements of the section relative to fire walls around stairways shall apply to buildings more than six stories in height instead of to buildings more than five stories.

Another bill in the Governor's hands is Senate Int. No. 1024, Print No. 1956 (Senator Spring), which amends the Labor Law by establishing the State Industrial Commission, transferring thereto the powers and duties of the Workmen's Compensation Commission and abolishing the office of Commissioner of Labor and Deputy Commissioner of Labor, the Industrial Board and the Workmen's Compensation Commission. It also creates an Industrial Council consisting of five employers and five employees. This bill has not been urged by the Real Estate Board; although the Board believes that the principle providing for a court review by any person in interest to determine the validity and reasonableness of the provisions with respect to rules and regulations is not without merit and justice.

BILLS BEFORE THE MAYOR.

Senate No. 1649, Int. No. 1378, an act to amend the Greater New York charter, relative to ceding, granting and conveying to the United States lands and lands under water, acquired by or owned by the City of New York, necessary for the improvement of the navigation of waters within or separating portions of the city of New York and for the sale of lands under water and filled-in lands not required for such improvement.

The Cullen marginal railway bill, permitting the city to go into partnership with the trunk line railways for the building and operation of a terminal railway along the South Brooklyn water front.

The Gillen bill, making the cost of the Flatbush avenue extension in Brooklyn a borough charge, instead of a charge against abutting property.

Senate No. 1573, Int. No. 699, an act to amend the Greater New York charter, in relation to the collection and distribution of the tax on foreign fire insurance companies and their agents.

Senate No. 1788, Int. No. 1456, an act to amend the Greater New York charter, in relation to assessments for local improvements confirmed after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and eight.

Midtown Renting Demand.

Eighty-five per cent. rented, seven months after the beginning of construction, is the record of the new 21-story structure owned by the No. 8 West Fortieth Street Corporation, now rapidly nearing completion, at 8 West 40th street, facing the New York Public Library. The renting agents are Ewing, Bacon & Henry. The Geo. A. Fuller Company was the general contractor. The tenants comprise representatives of many fields of endeavor, no particular class of business being conspicuous. The Munsey Trust Company has taken the ground floor and basement, where safe deposit vaults are now being installed. The advertising department of the New York Press will occupy the second floor. The seventeenth, eighteenth and nineteenth floors will be used by the Frank A. Munsey Company. Other entire floors have been leased by such firms as the National Hospital Bureau, the Vulcanite Portland Cement Company and Starrett & Van Vleck, the architectural firm which designed the building.

Other tenants in the structure include Renwick, Aspinwall & Tucker,the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs, the Fitzgibbons Boiler Company, the United Fire Proofing Company, John Lowry, Jr., the Harry E. Campbell Company, and others.

Many unusual features have been incorporated in the construction detail of the building. There is light on all four sides. The same high grade kind of brick has been used on every side, so that all sections of the buildings from every angle present a uniform appearance.

Bronx Facts and Figures.

Estimated population July 1, 1915, 705,742. The Federal Census of 1910 gave the Bronx a population of 430,980. The Borough, if a City, would be the fourth city in size in the United States.

During the four years subsequent to the census of 1910, the population of the Bronx increased 49 per cent., while the whole Greater City increased 17 per cent., thus winning the title of "New York's fastest growing Borough."

Area 40.6 square miles, or twice the size of Manhattan.

Fifty-nine miles of unexcelled waterfront.

With the completion of the Rapid Transit lines now under construction, the Bronx will have 620.9 miles of subway and elevated lines, thus affording splendid transit facilities.

The Bronx is in the midst of a great building boom, in anticipation of the inflow of population subsequent to the completion of the new transit lines, as is shown by the following figures of the Borough Bureau of Buildings, January 1, 1914, to April 15, 1914: Plans 177. Buildings 231. Estimated cost $5,057,955. For the same period in 1915: Plans 202. Buildings 294. Estimated cost $8,590,-425. Showing an increase of $3,532,460.

The Bronx contains 4,154.2 acres of the most beautiful parks in America, exceeding by 500 acres the combined acreage of all the other Boroughs of the Greater City.

There are over 2,000 factories located in the Bronx, employing over 40,000 workers.

Ideal for manufacturing purposes, as labor is good, sites reasonable and power cheapest in the Metropolitan Zone of New York.

"The Borough of Homes." Most healthful of all the Boroughs. Educational advantages of the highest order, from public schools to the two great Universities—Fordham and New York. Churches of all denominations. Rents moderate.—Bulletin of the Bronx Board of Trade.

Sale of Used Maps.

Thos interested in the real estate field are having an opportunity of purchasing second hand, or used, atlases and maps, of the different boroughs, published by E. Belcher Hyde. The sale, which will continue for two weeks, is being held at 97 Liberty street, Brooklyn. There are also some very rare and old volumes included in the sale.

Interesting Decision.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

A decision of interest to owners and lessees of real property was rendered on April 7, in the case of East Side Fireproof Stabling & Storage Company against New York Mail Company and American Surety Company, which was tried before Mr. Justic Samuel Greenbaum, and a jury in the Supreme Court, New York County.

The action was by the landlord against the New York Mail Company, as tenant, and the American Surety Company, as surety for the performance of the terms of a lease, which was based on the breach of the covenants as to making repairs and turning the premises over in good condition at the end of the term, and for the compliance of the requirements of the various city departments.

The item for repairs, as set forth in the complaint, amounted to $3,623.61. The violations came to approximately $4,000. The violations required the building of an inside stairway at the cost of approximately $1,800 and for other structural changes. After a three days' trial a verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount of the repairs and for practically the full amount of the reasonable cost of the violations, as claimed by the landlord. The total of the judgment was for $7,796.17. George Boochever, 5 Nassau street, was the attorney for the plaintiff.

Burns, to act for the Conference and have charge of the exhibit, which will

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Many sections of the city contributed to the week's activity and reflected the slow but steady improvement which has been noted for the last few weeks. The present situation has been caused by many years of retrogression and the improvement, many believe, will have to come through a long period of slow progress, and a gradual, rather than sudden, restoration of confidence in real estate as an investment. It is believed that this confidence will not manifest itself by a sudden outburst of activity in any one section of the city, but rather by steady conservative buying in a great many sections.

Perhaps that is why so much interest attaches to a survey of the week's activity. Park avenue apartment builders obtained desirable corner sities for the purpose of adding to the splendid colony of high class multi-family structures which are making that thoroughfare one of the most imposing and beautiful in the city. Similar tendencies were noted in the Bronx and on the West Side; even Washington Square contributed two deals, both of which will result in building operations.

Confidence in that section of Broadway, adjacent to Grace Church, was once more expressed, through the filing of a series of leases by the Sailors' Snug Harbor, involving the property for many years occupied by the dry goods establishment of John Daniell's Sons & Sons, on the west side of Broadway, between 8th and 9th streets. The leases run for five years, the total aggregate rentals being $114,000. Further south, at 39 to 45 Leonard street, several stores and lofts were leased, by an estate, to a concern which has been established upwards of twenty-five years.

Through a decision handed down in the Supreme Court, property owners have been victorious in the prevention of trade

SIXTY DAYS AGO

Wall Street commenced to recover from the stunning blow delivered by the European War.

It sat up, looked around and saw the greatest crops ever harvested and sold at prices 50 to 100% higher than usual—

It saw money pouring into the country from the sale of war supplies—

It saw everything at the lowest prices, business "rotten," and merchants with no stocks of goods—

It saw ninety-five millions of people still living in the United States to be fed, clothed, housed, just as usual—

It saw the wonderful new financial system of the Federal Reserve Bank in operation.

Then Wall Street made up its mind that this was the chance of a life time.

Fortunes have been made since by people who had foresight.

Mercantile business and REAL ESTATE still lie flat on their backs. Think this over. Read further why you should be interested in the absolute auction sale of the Estate of Arthur R. Morris, by order of Henry Lewis Morris, Esq., Executor, to be held May 11th, 1915, at the Exchange Salesroom, 14 Vesey Street.

Big Three-Cornered Transaction.

The Hargood Realty & Construction Company, Harry Goodstein, president, sold the two six-story apartment houses, Annadale and Bellecourt, each on plot 127.8 x 100, covering the block front on the west side of Fort Washington avenue, from 177th to 178th streets, to Mrs. Annie Rogers Benjamin, who gave in part payment six old dwellings at 33 and 34 Washington Square and 65 to 70 Washington Place, forming a plot 55 x 128 feet at the southwest corner of those streets, which the Benjamin family has owned for more than forty years. The exchange was negotiated by Edward L. King & Company. The latter property was resold by the realty company, through Pepe & Brother, to Frederick D. Fricke, treasurer of the Excelsior Brewing Company, of Brooklyn, who owns the Hotel Holley property, adjoining, which is held under lease by David and William Knott, for whom Mr. Fricke will improve the realty just purchased by converting the dwellings into one building as an annex for the Holley. The contemplated building was leased through Pepe & Brother to David Knott for twenty-one years.

New Bing & Bing Project.

Bing & Bing purchased from the estate of James Meehan, John, Joseph and George Meehan, the northwest corner of Park avenue and 84th street, a plot 516 on the avenue and 150 in the street, including 1000-1002 Park avenue, two five-story flats and 63-71 East 84th street, four three-story dwellings. Henry Rogers Winthrop also sold to a buyer, who re-sold to Bing & Bing, the vacant plot 55 x 82, on the west side of Park avenue adjoining the corner. On this combined plot, containing about 16,000 square feet, a fifteen-story apartment house is to be erected. The entire operation involves about $1,000,000. Clark T. Chambers was the broker.

Park Avenue Deal.

Edgar A. Levy has purchased from Katherine B. Childs, John Seely Ward, Jr., J. E. Reinthaler and David Lydig, respective owners, the four dwellings at 58, 60, 62 and 64 East 81st street, taking in the southwest corner of Park avenue, a total plot 100.2 on the avenue by 80 in the street, for improvement with a twelve-story apartment house. For the protection of this structure, Mr. Levy also purchased from David Lydig, the dwelling at 75 East 80th street. The operation will represent an investment of about $1,000,000. John J. Kavanagh was the broker.

Mrs. Mary M. Woolf has sold the plot 50 x 96, in the south side of 184th street, 9 feet west of Grand Boulevard and Concourse. Miss Florence Wood also sold to the same buyer, the adjoining plot, 9 x 96, at the southwest corner of Grand Boulevard and Concourse and 184th street. On the combined site, 59 feet in the street and 96 feet on the avenue, an apartment house is to be erected. Richard H. Scobie was the broker. This makes the third corner on this block sold by the same broker, to apartment house builders.

Hardgrove, representing the Queensboro Corporation, the entire block on Thomson avenue, bounded by Madden street, Foster avenue and Van Buren street, containing fifty lots, ten of which have been taken by the city for the widening of Thomson avenue. This boulevard will be 200 feet wide and will run from Long Island City to Jamaica. The property was bought by the Dean Alvord Securities Company in 1909 for about $130,000 and was held by them at $200,000. The E. E. Smith Contracting Company, which is building the elevated line from Long Island City to Corona, is the purchaser. The brokers report it a cash sale.

It was reported yesterday that Mary L. Crawford had sold the sixteen lots on the west side of Valentine avenue, 76 feet south of 182d street, running through 200 feet to Ryer avenue, and having a frontage of 200 feet on each thoroughfare. The property is near the Grand Boulevard and Concourse, which has been experiencing considerable building activity.
